Area farmer goes to Washington, D.C.

Ardeth Wieland visits with congressman Bart Stupak on her recent trip to Washington, D.C.

Ardeth Wieland was one of more than 130 Michigan farmers in Washington, D.C., March 31 through April 2. She attended Michigan Farm Bureau's annual Washington Legislative Seminar.

The Farm Bureau members met with their U.S. senators and representatives to discuss several agricultural issues, including implementation of the Food Quality Protection Act, federal highway funding, guest worker legislation and air quality standards.

Senators Spencer Abraham (R-Auburn Hills) and Carl Levin (D-Detroit) updated farmers on the status of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA), the Senate bill that provides for federal highway funds. They said Michigan should expect to get more money back from its gas taxes than in years past. Rep. Dave Camp (R-Midland) said he is cautiously optimistic that an ethanol excise tax exemption will be extended in the new federal highway bill.

Rep. John Dingell (D-Deerborn) said the Environmental Protection Agency should use sound science in implementing the Food Quality Protection Act and urged farmers to be aggressive in dealing with it. Rep. Nick Smith (R-Addison) told farmers he has requested a hearing on the issue.

Michigan Farm Bureau is the state's largest general farm organization, with 161,366 member families.

Pool changes swim rules for supervision

"We are beginning a new swimmer's participation policy at the Charlevoix Community Pool," said Steven Hansen, president of the Charlevoix Friends of the Pool. "Pool director Al Gooch and the board think our pool patrons and the lifeguard staff are no longer new to each other, and we can broaden the policy."

"Accordingly," Hansen added, "Young patrons in the sixth grade and older are welcome at the pool with or without a parent or adult (age 18 and older) in their party. Any swimmer may be called upon by the lifeguard to demonstrate an ability to swim the length of the pool (60 feet) before being allowed in the deep end of the pool."

"Patrons in kindergarten through fifth grades may be in the water without a parent or adult in the water with them, if the child can show the ability to swim the length of the pool and the child is at least 48 inches tall. With patrons of this age, a parent or adult in their party must be on the pool deck. First through fifth graders under 48 inches tall and who cannot yet swim 60 feet must have an adult in the water with them."

"Young patrons, not yet in kindergarten or not yet 48 inches tall, must have a parent or adult in their party in the water with them."

"Come on in, the water's fine; the new policy is effective immediately!" Hansen added with a smile.

How to Buy A New $1,500 Furnace for $495

You can actually replace your old (and probably very inefficient) gas furnace and central air conditioner for at least $1,500 less than you would have to pay at any other time.

Due to the unseasonably mild weather this past year, our distributors are overstocked with heating and cooling systems. We have contracted for the purchase of new, deluxe air conditioners and furnaces at low, off-season prices.

Purchase and have a deluxe air conditioner installed and receive a new gas furnace completely installed for the cost of labor - only $495.

You don't have to be a Top O'Michigan customer to get this great deal, but you do have to hurry. This offer ends April 30th.

Charlevoix area residents will gather to observe the National Day of Prayer at noon May 7, at Charlevoix City Hall on State Street.

This observance dates back to July 20, 1775 when the first National Day of Prayer was established. # BEACONS

Beacons of Blessing
By Rev. Bruce Hamilton

Friday found me filling in for Ms. Darling in the fourth grade at Charlevoix Elementary School. When I do substitute at the grade school, I usually try to wear something that tells the kids that I care. In this case, I wore a polo shirt with Tigger (the bouncing Disney tiger) on the front of it. To top things off, I have a Winnie-the-Pooh wristwatch and I wore that too.

One of the children saw my shirt and said, "You've got Tigger on your shirt." All the kids looked closely then. Another child saw my watch and said, "That's Winnie-the-Pooh!" It was the third child that got next to my heart. "You're a grown up. You're not supposed to have any fun!" I don't know how he got that idea, but when I look at the way some of us grown-ups go through life, I can see where he might get that impression.

How do you go through life? Think back to something you learned when you were a kid in science class many years ago. It takes more muscles to frown than it does to smile. If memory serves me right, a smile needs just 17 but a frown requires 85. You actually give your face a rest when you smile.

One of Solomon's proverbs says, "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine." We can face life in many ways. If we let circumstances dictate our spirits, we may often let the frowns outweigh our smiles. But if we know where hope is found and who really loves us, smiles are easier to find, even in the most difficult moments.

It never ceases to touch me how quickly young children respond to sincere love and concern. It's almost instinctive with them. They know if you really mean it and they respond to it without hesitation. I've often wondered if that wasn't at least one reason why Jesus spoke of our needing to be born again, needing to return to the child-like trusts that we had when we were young.

My Mom is fond of saying that men are nothing but little boys grown tall with more expensive toys. I don't think there's a man around brave enough to venture a version of that about women. Yet the challenge is there nonetheless, the challenge not to lock up the child-like trust and imagination when we grow up. God loves us as His sons and daughters with an eternal love that is up to whatever challenge we might face and we ought to be more willing to respond to it than we are.

Ms. Darling had left some equivalent fractions for me to do with her students. I have to be honest with you. I had to go find another teacher and ask her to jog my memory because I had forgotten how to do them. Treating me lovingly like one of her kids, she gave me a good pat on the back when I got the idea of what to multiply with what. When I went back to my kids as the "expert," I passed on her pat on the back as they got the idea and did the problems right.

If your frowns outnumber your smiles, seek out a friend whose counsel has always been important to you. Take your problems to the Lord and let Him show you how to work them through. When you know your worries have been heard and you are still loved, it makes it a whole lot easier to smile.

Natural area gets new name

After struggling for years promoting a worthy cause with an unwieldy name, Jo Anne Beemon instituted a name change for the St. Clair Lake-Six Mile Lake Natural Area.

The natural area, located just south of East Jordan in the South Arm Township, will now be known as the Great Blue Heron Natural Area.

"It was inspired desperation that prompted the name change," Beemon, committee member for the natural area, said. "Most people just couldn't remember our name, and the rest didn't know where we were. One newsman insists on calling us 'Kingfisher Flowage,' which sounds like a sewer problem. After six years of work, many people still think we're down by Detroit."

"We've given tours for adults and field trips for children, and when they tried to tell friends about it, they couldn't remember where they'd been. It was a PR nightmare."

The 193-acre natural area protects over one-and-one-quarter miles of contiguous river land in the chain of lakes. It was started in 1992 with the purchase of a 17-acre parcel, the Lawmaster preserve, on the river and St. Clair Lake. (Home of Tapawingo and Rowe Inn).

The name change will be eased into existence with the help of new T-shirts promoting the area. The words 'Great Blue Heron' are prominently displayed on the shirt, along with the old name.

Beemon chose the Great Blue Heron name in honor of the majestic bird that patrols the area.

"The presence of the Great Blue Heron in the natural area has always been an awesome gift," Beemon said. "So often we name our towns and places after the beauty around them, like 'Orchard View' or 'Maple Grove' or 'Elk Rapids,' and then development hurls dozens down the orchards and maples, reroutes the rapids and banishes the creatures. It just seemed right to recognize and honor this creature who has presided over the river and marsh meadow for thousands of years."

Beemon had to withstand some flack from other natural area committee members over the name change. One committee member accused her of discriminating against muskrats and beaver. Another member thought a name relating to flora instead of fauna might be more appropriate.

"I had to promise another member that when we change the name again, he could have the honors," Beemon said, adding, "He's quite glib and it made him happy."

Board looks at principals for interim superintendent

interim seat, momentum is gaining to hire one of the current building principals for the job or have the principals do the job via committee.

"If organized properly, I think they could handle it," board member Scott Boss said.

Board members are less inclined to form a committee of the principals to do the job. After battling around numerous hypothetical situations at a work session Monday evening, the board leaned toward appointing elementary school principal Richard Swenor as interim superintendent.

Hiring within for the short term, several board members said, would save money, be more efficient and make for an easier transition.

"It's not an experiment," Barney Way said. "We could always hire an interim if they can't do the job. If we want to have our full-time search done by July or August, we should handle the interim situation within ourselves."

The board will meet with the principals later this week, but hasn't closed the door on bringing in someone from the outside to keep the superintendent seat warm.

"We should at least interview other people to see what they have to offer," Pete Speiles said. "Going through the process will justify our decision."

The board has pegged three candidates, all retired superintendents, for interviews: Kenneth Harper, Zeeland schools, Mason Buckingham, Gaylord schools, and Tom Richards, Harbor Springs schools.

Board member Ike Boss said the interim search should be focused on these three candidates.

"This person has got to be able to say 'No' unless it's an absolute need," he said. "Can they (current principals) say 'No' to their own colleagues?"

Another possibility is appointing Gordon VanWieren, former Charlevoix Schools superintendent, for the job, an option supported by at least two board members.

Board member Ardeth Wieland said an interim should be a familiar face to the community whose main role would be to build a relationship between the schools' administration and the community.

"We have a lot of needs relating to the town that might not be adequately filled by another stranger in town," she said. "We need someone who'll hear what the community is saying."

After the interim superintendent is hired, the next question is — how long will the interim sit in that chair?

Board members said the interim will probably not be given much consideration for the full-time job because they don't want that person spending his time trying to impress them for the full-time position.

The board is aiming to have a full-time superintendent hired before the next school year begins, but the clock is already ticking.

Wieland recalled it took over six months in 1991 to whittle down the 73 candidates who applied for the vacancy. After over 50 meetings, the district hired Jackson.

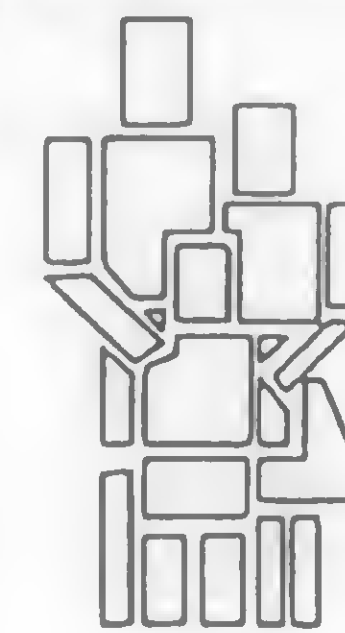

"It's crucial that we move swiftly," Scott Boss said. "If we move too slowly we will miss the cream of the crop."

For this search, the board is considering hiring help to conduct a search, either through the Michigan School Board Association, who helped the search in 1991, or another outside firm.

Early estimates from such companies range from $5,000 to $13,000 plus expenses to conduct searches and help pare down candidates, Telgenhof said.

Ike Boss said he's against hiring outside help, suggesting instead that whoever is hired as the interim be the point man for the full-time search.

Bay Street doctors are on the street where you live

Bay Street Orthopaedics' five physicians will begin seeing patients at a new office at Charlevoix Area Hospital beginning Monday, April 20, expanding the Petoskey-based practice's current patient service area.

Bay Street Orthopaedics will continue to provide the high-level of service and care it has been known for at its offices in Petoskey and Cheboygan, while opening the new office in Charlevoix, said Gar Atchison, practice administrator.

"We're going to start seeing patients in Charlevoix to better serve the needs of our Charlevoix patients and physicians," Atchison said. "We hope to make our services more accessible to our patients and the referring physicians, instead of making the patients come to us in Petoskey."

Bay Street Orthopaedics is dedicated to providing a full range of services for orthopaedic patients in Northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula. The physicians perform total joint replacements and other bone and joint surgeries. The orthopaedic surgeons hope to rely on the hospital's well-established physical rehabilitation department to complete the treatment of their patients, Atchison said.

The new Charlevoix office will be located at 14695 Park Ave. (in the former CHIP Counseling office) next to the hospital.

To make an appointment with one of the doctors at the Charlevoix office, call 547-7546.

Bay Street Orthopaedics was established in 1975, featuring experienced, board-certified physicians specializing in the latest treatment and surgical techniques for all types of orthopaedic disorders.

The services they offer include total joint replacement; arthritis treatment, arthroscopy of shoulder, knee and ankle; trauma and fracture care; sports medicine; foot and hand surgery, including carpal tunnel syndrome, rotator cuff repair and pediatric orthopaedics.

Soccer players challenged by tough teams

Rugged play will prepare team for district tournament

By Jamie MacMillan

Despite controlling the action for long stretches of play, the Rayders' soccer team dropped both of its games on its road trip to Lansing this past weekend.

The Rayders fell to Williamston 2-0 Friday night and to Fowlerville 3-1 Saturday afternoon.

The Rayders have now lost five straight games, to fall to 1-5 on the season since an opening day victory.

Despite the losses, team coaches remain encouraged because the club has faced a schedule dominated by schools with larger enrollments than Charlevoix.

"Since we don't have a conference, our focus is the district tournament," coach Tom Conlan said. "Our philosophy is to better prepare ourselves for that by playing the larger schools."

Against Williamston, Kristy Shindorf played in her first game of the season in the position of goalie and stopped 15 shots during a scoreless first half. In all, she stopped 20 shots and kept the Rayders in the game with her aggressive style of play.

Williamston broke onto the scoreboard early in the second half and added an insurance goal late in the game with the Rayders pressing up on offense trying to tie the game.

"We played hard, maybe our best game of the year," Conlan said. "We just couldn't work anything on offense."

The following afternoon, the Rayders jumped to an early 1-0 lead when Katy Conlan converted on a penalty kick just five minutes into the contest.

Fowlerville answered with goals off a penalty kick after the Rayders were whistled for a hand ball, a corner kick, and a breakaway just before halftime to put the Rayders in a 3-1 hole at intermission.

Charlevoix's offensive charge struggled to adjust to the awkward field conditions which sloped down three feet from sideline to sideline. As a result, many lead passes ended rolling down hill and out of bounds for turnovers.

"It was a factor, but not the reason we lost," Conlan said. "The reason we lost was because they made fewer defensive mistakes than we did."

The Rayders' next game will be at 5:00 p.m. Thursday, April 23. The game will be at home against Grayling.

Northmen take tournament

Mike Evans overcame a shaky first inning to pitch a complete game victory over St. Ignace in Charlevoix's opening round win in the Charlevoix Invitational. (Photo by Jamie MacMillan)

By Jamie MacMillan

The first ever Charlevoix Baseball/Softball Invitational had a navy blue look to it as the Petoskey Northmen swept to first place finishes in both tournaments.

After whipping Roscommon 10-2 in its opener, Petoskey doubled up on the host Rayders 14-7 to take the baseball title.

Charlevoix used four different pitchers to contain the Petoskey attack, but the Northmen adjusted to each of them, drilling three home runs, one each from Mike Jersey, Adam Foltz and Josh Hayes.

Jersey earned the win while Justin Thorp took the loss for Charlevoix.

Petoskey powered ahead 8-0 after two innings, but the Rayders rallied to 8-7 on a three-run home run and a two-run double from the bat of Jeremy Himebauch in consecutive innings. Himebauch also made some nifty plays in right field to prevent Petoskey from building on its early advantage.

In the top of the fifth, though, the Rayders committed three errors which opened the door for a six-run Petoskey rally that effectively ended the contest.

"I was real satisfied that we came back to make a game out of it," Rayder coach Scott Kelly said. "Then our defense took a little vacation and — bang — they scored six runs."

The Rayders advanced to the finals after defeating St. Ignace 8-5 in a game featuring nine runs in the first inning. The Rayders wiped out a quick 4-0 deficit with five, first inning runs when a series of errors, walks and timely singles jump started the attack.

Matt Horon had three hits and Shay Hutchison and Andy Granath had two apiece for the Rayders. Mike Evans was the winning pitcher.

In the softball tournament, the Lady Northmen dominated behind the crafty pitching of Katie Greyerbiehl.

Greyerbiehl pitched two complete game shut-outs while allowing just four hits in nine innings pitched. She struck out 15 batters in the two games.

The Northmen trounced Roscommon 15-0 in a mercy shortened, three-inning first game and bested St. Ignace 9-0 in the finals.

The Rayders, who entered the tournament with a 4-0 record, were unable to come through with enough clutch hits to register a win.

St. Ignace limited them to just five hits while taking the opener 5-1. Laurel English paced the Rayders with two singles while scoring the team's only run. Mandi Barrett allowed 12 hits and was the losing pitcher.

The bats awoke in the consolation game against Roscommon, plating two runs apiece in the first two innings. The Bucks kept pace and scored twice in the third for a 6-4 lead and added an insurance run in the fifth en route to a 7-5 win.

"We were in both games," Rayder coach Ron Cox said. "In the first game, we couldn't buy a hit while in the second game we got the hits, we just couldn't string enough of them together when we needed it."

Both teams will be in action Thursday, April 23 with a double-header at East Jordan.

Tennis team rebounds after loss

After winning just one match en route to losing its first two contests of the season, the Charlevoix tennis team rebounded to defeat Grayling 5-2 last Wednesday afternoon.

The Rayders won three of the five matches actually played, but their margin of victory was furthered when Grayling forfeited both the No. 4 singles and No. 3 doubles

Including the forfeit win, the Rayders swept the doubles competition. In No. 1 doubles, Erik Halverson and George LaBlance downed Mike Ostwald and Travis Beckett, 6-3, 6-0 while the No. 2 doubles team of Mark Yager and Tom Cunningham defeated Travis Pearl and Dan Mead, 6-2, 6-0.

Scott Pair brought home the Rayders only victory on court in the singles round, defeating Mike Winters 7-6, 6-2 in the No. 2 singles slot.

In No. 1 singles, Grayling's Shane Colby bested Dave Drury, 6-4, 6-0 while Tristen Williams nipped Joel Trubilowicz, 7-6, 7-6 in the No. 3 singles match.

Track results

With 10 first place finishes, the Charlevoix girls' track team cruised to an easy 79-47 victory over Grayling in a dual meet last Thursday.

The Rayders swept all four relay races with Tricia Hodge, Liza Gorkiewicz, Monica Browe and Laura Schairbaum taking the 3,200; Gorkiewicz, Hodge, Schairbaum and Anne Terryberry in the 1,600; Tricia Kelly, Jamie Gowell, Angie Potter and Amanda Eaton in the 800; and Terryberry, Potter, Kelly and Eaton in the 400.

Other first place finishes were won by Candy Siwarga, 3,200 run; Candice Vandergriff, 1,600 run; Hodge, 800 run; Kelly, 200 dash; Eaton, shot put; and Allison Kujawski, discus.

The girls' score was also bolstered by seven, second place finishes and eight third place finishes.

The boys' team lost 82-46 despite first place finishes from Grant Meggison in the 110 hurdles and Carl Goff in the shot put. The team won nine seconds and nine thirds.

Charlevoix's next meet is the Clare Invitational Friday, April 24.

Firefighters launch fund-raiser

Money will buy new imaging camera

The Charlevoix Fire Department announced this week a fund-raising drive to buy a new piece of high-tech fire fighting equipment proven to save lives and limit property damage.

The department is eyeing a Thermal Imaging Camera, a device that will improve firefighters' ability to see in any type of dark, smoke-filled environment, be it homes, commercial buildings or underground tunnels.

"During a fire, smoke is often the greatest enemy of firefighters," Joe Schwartzfisher, shift commander at the Charlevoix Fire Department, said. "It can become so thick that we cannot see even a few feet in front of us. We put ourselves at risk by entering a building blind to search for victims we can't see, feel or, sometimes, even hear."

A Thermal Imaging Camera uses specially developed infrared sensor technology, allowing it to make pictures from heat rather than light.

The warmer the source, the brighter the image. Firefighters can find people unconscious from smoke inhalation and children hiding under beds or inside closets.

The device also helps firefighters locate both the seat and path of the fire by sensing heat through walls, beneath floors and behind false ceilings. This helps minimize property damage as well provide firefighters a more efficient way to attack the blaze.

It's also effective locating accident victims in a dense fog or at night in a thick forest. The camera is waterproof and weighs less than six pounds. It is hoped the Charlevoix Fire Department can purchase the item and share it with other local agencies.

Cost for the camera is $18,000 and the department has set-up a fund at the Charlevoix State Bank to help raise money. Donation checks should be made out to the Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Department, T.I.C. Fund. For more information, call the Fire Department 547-3279.

"This is an investment in the safety of our entire community," Schwartzfisher said.

Fireproof: Whitney's Oyster Bar won't burn down again

By Laurie Lounsbury

Mrs. O'Leary herself could march into Whitney's Oyster Bar with a herd of line-dancing cows and kick over a dozen kerosene lanterns — one thing is certain.

"It will not burn down again," said Chuck Whitney, owner.

The new Whitney's Oyster Bar is constructed of concrete and steel, materials that will hold up in the face of fire or any other natural disaster.

"A hurricane could come through here, and our building would still be standing," said Gina Whitney, Chuck's wife and business partner.

The Whitneys lost their building last September when flames on the kitchen grill swept up the exhaust vent and quickly engulfed the entire building in an inferno.

After numerous delays, construction of the new building is now well under way. The three story building will have restaurant service on the first floor and third floor deck.

While the concrete and steel are a new look for Whitney's Oyster Bar, the interior will be a familiar sight.

"We're using bakery tile and hardwood, just like it used to be," Chuck said. "You'll hardly be able to tell the difference."

There will be one noticeable change — and it will be the only significant feature of the new building that is also flammable.

Doing their part to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, the Whitneys rescued an old, deteriorating sailboat from the Irish Boat Shop property on Carpenter Street. The boat was doomed for destruction when Irish took vigorous steps to clean up their property.

The Whitneys took the classic, but weather-worn, boat off Irish's hands.

"It's made of African mahogany," Gina said. "We figured we could do something with it."

When Jim Sawtelle, a shipwreck furniture builder, learned that the Whitneys had acquired the 1938 vintage boat, he contacted them and promptly offered his services.

Sawtelle, who once owned the shipwreck furniture store in Charlevoix called Treasure Cove, is probably best known for all the shipwreck furniture that once graced the Weatherlane Restaurant bar.

Mooring isn't as easy as dropping anchor

By Laurie Lounsbury

For as long as anyone still living can remember, boats have been moored peacefully in the snug, protected waters on the north side of Round Lake. The place where the boats are moored is officially designated a Special Anchorage Area by the Army Corps of Engineers.

Beyond the official designation, which was bestowed on the area in the early 1900's, the quiet side of the harbor has been unhindered by state and federal regulations of any kind.

Those quiet days without government interference have come to an end.

Last summer, property owners on the north shore of Round Lake complained to the Army Corps of Engineers that boats were moored too close to their dock. The Coast Guard cooperated with the Corps, identifying the boat owners through their Michigan registration numbers. What followed was a stern letter sent to the boat owners from the Army Corps of Engineers, telling the owners to "Cease and desist from further unauthorized activities within the navigable waters of the United States."

In essence, the letter told boat owners they had to apply for a mooring permit from the Army Corps of Engineers, and non-com-

Award-winning Tapawingo owner expands the business

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

There's good news at one of Northern Michigan's premiere restaurants, Tapawingo! For the second time, Pete Peterson has been nominated to the final ballot for the 1998 James Beard American Express Best Chef in the Midwest honor. The awards gala takes place in New York City on May 4 and is open to the public.

But for those of us who enjoy dining right here in Ellsworth instead of New York, you will be delighted with the tasteful, 2,200 foot expansion that has taken place since your last visit.

For starters, a private chef's dining room has been added, featuring a bay window and fireplace. This exclusive room may be reserved in advance for multiple, seven course dinners with accompanying wines. (And for those, who have never been to Tapawingo, let me caution you right now that it has been playfully pointed out that the price of the modern American cooking featured here is pricey, and the elegant portions are dainty). Wine toasting will be done in delicate Riedel glassware that seem like soap bubbles. (They ought to look choice at $40 a piece). Newly designed tri-um china plates are on order from Villeroy and Bosh.

One of the former dining rooms has been extended to seat spaciously, an additional 16 guests, thus accommodating a total of 40 guests. New acoustical ceilings make conversation soft and pleasant at each table, and well-placed, low voltage ceiling lights cast a gentle glow just where it's needed. Attractive new wallpaper has been applied throughout the dining areas.

Peterson is especially proud of the new walk-in white wine cooler and red wine chamber located on the main floor. It boasts 900 world wide selections of wines that are lovingly guarded by Pram Acharya, host and cellar master.

We are pleased to hear that Tapawingo will be serving popular luncheons again this summer. Now you will have the option to dine outdoors on the red brick patio facing Lake St. Clair. A new, charming pergola area has been designed adjacent to a red brick patio. The usual flower boxes and border gardens, planted with perennials and annuals, will abound everywhere. As Peterson pointed to the pastoral setting, I noticed a white swan flying across the secluded lake on cue. Tapawingo means "a place of peace" in the Ojibwa language, and Peterson kept the original name bestowed on this tranquil setting by Art Center College of Design, now located in Pasadena, Calif., and then for 10 years he worked for Ford in the Design Department in Detroit. His turning point came when he spent a week in Paris at LaVarenne, Anne Willan's cooking school. He decided cooking is what he really wanted to do. He found just the right spot to practice at the Rowe Inn, also in Ellsworth, where he worked for seven years until he founded his own restaurant 15 years ago.

Today, dining in the refined surroundings of Tapawingo, and savoring his remarkable presentations at the table, one recognizes that Peterson did not abandon his sense of design when he turned to cooking. His menu reflects the seasons and the locale of the restaurant as well. This week, for example, we were offered fresh pureed asparagus soup, tempura smelt, and shrimp-stuffed, fresh, boneless, Antrim County rainbow trout. All indescribably tender and delicious.

Peterson gives credit to his competent wait staff and executive chef, Rich Travis, and the devoted kitchen help for the success of this larger and more challenging undertaking. He credits Bob Haldeman, a Traverse City architect, for not losing the original, informal identity of this former, private summer hide-a-way.

The early gamble to change careers and settle "up north" has been fruitful in many ways for Peterson, his staff and for his enthusiastic following.

the previous far-sighted owners.

Peterson started cooking as a child in his mother's kitchen, but never expected to make a career of it. He originally studied art at the

Tree planting project is growing successful

Editor:
The Adopt a Road and Plant Trees (ARPT) project wishes to thank the first and second grade students of Charlevoix County who participated in the spring planting of trees. We thank them for doing an important task for our community and themselves. Their tree will help improve the beauty, environment and heritage of our neighborhoods for years to come.

Last Friday, hundreds of three-year-old blue spruce seedlings were given to every elementary school in Charlevoix County.

We also wish to thank the school principals and teachers who helped. And a special thanks goes to the anonymous supporter who donated the money for the trees.

Plans are to duplicate this effort annually and for the fall planting seasons. Maples and other hardwood plantings will be encouraged. We will continue to expand the demonstration projects that we have established over the past several years.

Former neighbor didn't like dog column

Dear Editor:

I can't believe what you printed in your paper about our family. Me and my brother thought we took very good care of our dogs. We lived on a four lane highway. We kept our dogs in a pen because we didn't want our dogs to get hit by a car like other dogs in the neighborhood have.

I read the whole article about "Dogs are family members not lawn ornaments," and as a 12 year-old I was really confused because you said that if your dogs are in a pen they're neglected and if their loose they're neglected. So what should you do then, send them away to the Humane Society?

Yes, our dogs have a better life in the country because they don't have to listen to your telling them to shut up or your son's fire crackers that hurt their ears!

Sue DeYoung walk to benefit breast cancer research

Men and women in Charlevoix will be taking steps — a lot of them — to raise money for breast cancer research. The Sue DeYoung Memorial Walk, a 2.5 mile walk, will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday, May 16, starting at the Clarence Odmark Pavilion in East Park. The course will take walkers out to Ferry Beach and then back to the Grey Gables, where a reception with refreshments will be hosted after the walk.

There is a $3 entry fee for the walk, and all walkers who raise more than $50 in donations will receive a free T-shirt.

A Terrace Inn weekend getaway will be awarded to the top fund raiser.

The Sue DeYoung Memorial Walk started in 1994, less than two years after Charlevoix's Sue DeYoung died of breast cancer. DeYoung was 42 years old when she died Jan. 31, 1992. She had been diagnosed with breast cancer in September of 1989. After surgery and chemotherapy that lasted one year, DeYoung went into remission for nine months. The cancer reoccurred, ultimately causing her death. Laurie Howell organized the first memorial walk in 1994.

The walk is now organized by the Preceptor Beta Mu and Laureate Beta Chi chapters of the Beta Sigma Phi sorority.

Registration forms for the walk are available at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. Walkers may also register at 8:00 a.m. the morning of the race.

Donations may be sent care of Janet Freidinger, 14730 Park Ave., Charlevoix, MI 49720, or to the American Cancer Society, 401 W. Front St., Traverse City, MI 49684. All checks should be marked for the Sue DeYoung Memorial Walk.

There are 1.6 million American women living with breast cancer today, and although there are no known ways of preventing breast cancer, research has begun to identify the genes responsible for inherited breast cancer. These discoveries help to pinpoint the areas of research that hold the greatest promise.

Departing minister reflects on life in Charlevoix

On June 16, 1989 through the direction of God, my wife and I moved to Charlevoix to start the Safe Harbor Baptist Church. When we first moved to Charlevoix, we did not know one person living here. Therefore, I believe we have been given a special gift: The gift of seeing Charlevoix from an outsider's view.

When we first moved here, we noticed the slogan, "Charlevoix the beautiful." Of course, we first felt that the slogan was speaking of the lake, the sunsets and the nature around us. Yet, over the years, we have grown to feel that the slogan best suits the people of Charlevoix. Charlevoix is a city of beautiful people.

Our evaluation of the Charlevoix people does not come lightly. When we moved here I was a 25-year-old young man, fresh out of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Ft. Worth, Texas. Upon first appearance, it was easy to see that I was not acclimated to Michigan. My southern accent quickly revealed the fact that I was not a Michigan native. Nonetheless, I have proudly called Charlevoix my home for almost nine years.

Our purpose for moving to Charlevoix could have also brought much skepticism to the people of Charlevoix. Although Charlevoix has been blessed with many fine churches, we sensed that God was calling us to join the ranks of the believers to share Christ's good news with this community. Therefore, a new church was born and has steadily grown throughout our tenure.

Today, I would like to thank the entire community for taking a chance on us. While some communities could have let first appearances become a road block to accepting us, Charlevoix has opened its arms to us.

When we first moved here, we were amazed to see how helpful the Christian community was to us. The Drost and Browe families allowed us to have Children's Bible Clubs at their homes. I received prayer cards from the Christ Episcopal Church. Even one of the pastors, Rev. Lowell Anderson, made telephone calls to help locate a building where we could hold services. Charlevoix has a beautiful church community.

The business community has also been a blessing. Although I could never name all the businesses that helped us, I must mention a few special groups: Many thanks go to John Campbell and Site Planning Development for believing in us and selling their sand and gravel offices to our church on a land contract. Because of John's kindness, we were able to buy the building and through many remodeling projects, now enjoy a nice place of worship. We also appreciate Ron Way's assistance drafting all the drawings for our building renovation. Thanks also go to the helpful people at Wolohan Lumber, who made every effort to assist us with our construction needs. Many thanks go to Rich Wojan and the people at Wojan Plumbing. They have always gone the extra mile to make sure our heating needs were met. Also, the men at K & J Excavating have always been there to lend a helping hand and offer a smile.

When thinking of the Charlevoix people that make up Safe Harbor

BEACONS

Beacons of Blessing
By Lowell Anderson
Charlevoix Assembly of God

If you were asked to name the most universally known hymn you would probably say, "Amazing Grace." If it is not indeed the most universally known, it has to be in the top five.

Amazing Grace is popular and universal because it captures in the few simple lines the core truth of the Bible, which is: salvation by faith in Jesus Christ through the Grace of God (His unmerited favor) and not by any goodness or worthiness of our own. We like the song because of that basic message, because it expresses the gratitude in our hearts that God's grace has touched and changed us, and because of the simple and singable tune to which the words were set.

Knowing the background of the hymn and the story of its writer will give you an even greater appreciation for the grace of God and help you understand why he felt that grace is so amazing.

John Newton wrote the hymn following a dramatic conversion experience in 1748. Newton's father owned and sailed a British cargo ship. At the age of 11, Newton joined his father's sailing crew and, as was typical of sailors, he soon became profane, non-religious and indulgent. Often the ships' cargo was black slaves being transported from Africa. The female slaves were at the disposal of the sailors and John Newton alarmed even the most seasoned sailors with his corruption. His conduct angered his father and fellow sailors, so John was pressed into service in the British Navy. He became a deserter and later was arrested and punished. He ended up as the property of a slave trader in Sierra Leone, who gave him to his sadistic mistress who tormented him for a year.

In March of 1748, John Newton boarded a ship bound for Britain. On board ship he carelessly read a Christian book to pass the monotonous hours. While he was reading, the thought came to him, "What if these things I'm reading are true?" He quickly closed the book and tried to shake off the question. He went to bed that night with his usual indifference to spiritual things. In the middle of the night the ship encountered a violent storm and the sea began to fill the vessel. An alarm was sounded with the cry that the ship was going down. The crew feverishly manned the pumps but the water level rose despite their best efforts. Every time the ship plunged beneath a breaker Newton wondered if it would rise again. He feared to face the death that he felt was imminent, and he knew what his fate would be if the Scriptures he long had opposed were true.

The ship did not sink. Newton turned to the Scriptures, began studying the Bible, and soon surrendered his life fully to Jesus Christ as his Savior and Lord. He eventually became a minister and one of England's best loved preachers and joined the fight to end the slave trade he once propagated.

No wonder John Newton considered the grace of God to be amazing! It could take an immoral and corrupt sailor who plied the slave trade and transform him into a preacher of the Gospel who came to despise the slave trade and sought to bring it to an end.

While your life and mine may be different from that of John Newton's, the sin which we all have committed is just as evil in the eyes of God. None of us is deserving of the love and grace of God which will dramatically transform our lives, as it did Newton's.

Next time you sing Amazing Grace, you will sing it with new appreciation, both for what it meant for John Newton and what it means for you. If perhaps you are a person who can sing the words to Amazing Grace but you have never had a personal experience of that grace through a life transforming encounter with Jesus Christ, I encourage you to surrender your life to Him. I, or any Pastor in the community, would be delighted to assist you in your decision. You can reach me, Pastor Lowell Anderson, at 547-6430.

Baptist Church, our hearts are moved with deep emotion. The motto at Safe Harbor is: "Not just a church, a family." Today, we thank God that these are not just words, they are reality. Leaving this church is the hardest thing God has ever asked us to do. Yet, we know that there is a bright future for Charlevoix and Safe Harbor has a special place in that picture.

When we moved to the Charlevoix community, we noticed that the ministers have a long tenure. Today, we understand why. Not only is Charlevoix a nice place to live, its people make Charlevoix special. God bless you Charlevoix, we love you.

CT Scanner arrives at Charlevoix Area Hospital

After a year of working toward an ambitious goal of raising $500,000, Charlevoix Area Hospital now can boast ownership of a CT (computerized axial tomography) scanner.

Charlevoix Area Hospital's much anticipated CT Scanner arrived Tuesday, April 21, from Germany.

Traveling from its manufacturer, Siemens Medical, in Germany, the cost of the new X-ray equipment — and the renovations to the space to accommodate it at the hospital — totals about $500,000. To date, about $350,000 had been raised through donations.

CT scanners are imaging devices that are necessary for diagnosing head injuries and other physical ailments. The computer takes pictures in slices and then reconstructs the images so the physician can view the 3-D X-ray from any direction. When the physician looks at the results of a CT scan, it's similar to being able to look at a loaf of bread slice by slice.

"This is a great day for everyone in Charlevoix and the service area of Charlevoix Area Hospital."

said hospital president Bill Jackson. "The overall health of the community will now be enhanced with this equipment being available for diagnosis and treatment of traumas and illnesses."

An open house for the public to tour the hospital and see exactly what the CT Scanner does is planned for later in the summer.

Baseball team wins three out of four last week

By Jamie MacMillan

After a 1-7 start, the Charlevoix Rayders baseball team rebounded to win three of four games last week, including its first win of season in conference play.

Scoring seven runs in each game, the Rayders swept two games from Suttons Bay on Saturday while in the process showing off a solid core of pitchers.

Tom Kennedy pitched a complete game, leading Charlevoix to a 7-5 win in the opener. Scattering six hits, Kennedy was on cruise control until the final inning, giving up two runs while leading the bases before registering the final out. Kennedy struck out six batters.

Mike Evans, T.J. Carey and Shay Hutchison each had two hits, pacing the offense.

Using three pitchers, the Rayders swept the twin bill with an extra inning, 7-6 victory.

Carey began the game on the mound and pitched three innings of one hit ball before giving way to Andy Granath, who hurled the fourth, fifth and sixth innings. Hutchison came in on relief in the seventh inning and ended up the winning pitcher by scoring the winning run in the bottom of the seventh.

Hutchison reached base on a single and scored when Steve Speigl drove a single into the outfield.

Justin Thorp's two-run home run in the bottom of the third broke a 2-2 tie, but Suttons Bay sent the game into an extra inning by scoring twice in the fourth and one in the fifth and sixth.

"These two games were big confidence boosters for our team," coach Scott Kelly said. "The team is beginning to develop some confidence in themselves."

The Rayders split a doubleheader earlier in the week in the conference opener against East Jordan.

The Red Devils limited Charlevoix to just four hits in taking the opener 3-1, but the Rayders rode the arm of Jeremy Himebauch to earn a split with a 6-1 win in game two.

Himebauch was strong, allowing only five hits, but it was a fundamentally sound offense that received raves from Kelly.

"We played much better with aggressive base running and moving base runners into scoring position," Kelly said of the second game which saw eight of Charlevoix's 10 batters smack a hit.

Evans and Hutchison each had two hits.

Charlevoix, 4-8, next plays a doubleheader at 4:30 p.m. Thursday, April 30 at Harbor Springs.

Soccer team locks in 0-0 tie

It was a goal tender's classic Saturday afternoon as Charlevoix and Gaylord battled to a 0-0 tie in girl's soccer action.

In a back and forth battle of midfield possession, neither team's offense was able to exert itself and capitalize on any offensive rushes.

Rayder goalie Kristy Shindorf faced only three shots to earn her first shutout of the season. Shindorf's toughest save came in the game's closing minutes, stopping a Gaylord attack and preserving the tie for Charlevoix.

Sweeper Lindsey Carland, full-backs Julie Swenor, Kate Lord and Carrie Beemon and mid fielders Mandy Webb and Taya Drost played a strong game for Charlevoix which earlier in the year bested Gaylord 1-0.

Earlier in the week, the Rayders lost a back and forth game of a more showy variety, 4-3 to Harbor Springs.

The teams exchanged goals throughout the contest, but two late goals by the Rams turned a one-goal lead for the Rayders into a one-goal deficit it could not overcome.

Erika Kammermann tallied two goals and Carland added a third for Charlevoix, who played with a shortened team in order to get more of its younger players some time on the field.

That same varsity "B" team was in action at Sutton's Bay on Tuesday, while the whole varsity team next plays at 6 p.m. Thursday, April 30 at home against Petoskey.

Future of high school wrestling remains uncertain

By Jamie MacMillan

Should wrestling ever grapple its way back to the pinnacle once achieved in the 1970s and '80s, then last Thursday night might be remembered as the night the fire was rekindled.

The program, on life support system throughout this past season with a squad of five students, resuscitated itself when over 70 parents, students and fans arrived to support the sport at the Charlevoix Board of Education's extracurricular committee meeting.

The meeting was called to offer a recommendation to the greater board regarding the program's future. It sparked a revival of reminiscences and hopes for a sport which dates back to the beginning of athletic contests.

"It's not about image, it's about wanting to wrestle," said Charlevoix eighth grader Walter Plumm, who plans to wrestle for the Rayders next winter.

Despite Plumm's assertions, it was an image problem which pushed the program to the edge of extinction.

During its heyday, the wrestling squad numbered 20 strong, but in recent years the number of participants has dropped steadily, to less than five wrestlers for the past two seasons. The low numbers did not sit well with either the school's administration or its governing board.

"I'm concerned about what type of image you're portraying when you have four kids wrestling," board member Scott Boss said. "This is not a money issue."

Earlier in the meeting, athletic director Keith Haske offered a similar opinion, saying sending teams that small to meets sends a "negative message."

"I'm concerned about fielding teams," he said. "If we continue with three or five kids, then that's not a wrestling team."

Image problem aside, Haske said it wasn't his intent to abolish the program. He supports wrestling because, like all sports, it keeps students motivated to do well in the classroom. It's particularly important to maintain a strong winter sports base, he said, because winters can become long and tedious.

Haske reiterated throughout the evening that money and a desire to cut the budget were not driving the issues.

In an earlier conversation, Haske said that money for the program remained in the budget and that the $4,700 spent on the sport this season exceeded only two other sports — golf and cheerleading — in expenses for the athletic budget.

Numbers need to improve, Haske said, but he will give the program some time to blossom under the new leadership of coach Joe Johnston.

He will recommend to the board that the team needs to be able to fill 75 percent of the weight divisions expected in competition.

With 14 divisions, the number needed to put the program on level ground is 10 wrestlers, double what the club had when its season ended in February.

The board of education will next meet at 7 p.m. Monday, May 11 to discuss Haske's recommendation. The meeting will take place in the high school study hall, ironically in the same room that the wrestling team practices in during the season.

Board member Pete Speiles said maybe a better way to judge improvement in the program would be a percentage increase of the number of students who go out for the sport. Many in the audience agreed and welcomed the challenge to make sure the team reached the 75 percent level.

"We need to grow it and challenge ourselves to continue it," former Charlevoix wrestler Greg Whitley said. "We need to take this challenge and back it up."

Johnston, who coached his first season this past winter, said the 75 percent number is fair and that there would be no sense doing it without enough kids.

"We have a new confidence," he said. "It's time for a new era."

Track teams sweep opening meet

The Charlevoix track teams won the opening quad meet of the conference season, but did so in differing fashions.

The boys' team, behind seven first place finishes, nipped East Jordan by one-half point to win the meet.

The Red Devils won the meet's final event, the 1,600 relay, and with it, seemingly, the meet. After a retabulation, judges noticed they had shorted the Rayders a point in the high jump competition, pushing Charlevoix over the top.

Grant Meggison was a double winner, taking both the 110 high hurdles and the pole vault. Other first places were won by Carl Goff, shot put; Brain Cornett, long jump; Steve Felter, 300 hurdles; and both the 400 and 800 relay teams.

"It was a nice way to start," coach Hal Evans said. "The kids are doing a good job. Our young kids are starting to filter into positions."

With '11 first place finishes, the girls' team dominated the meet.

Tricia Hodge in the 1,600 and 3,200 yards and Amanda Eaton in the 400 dash and shot put were double winners for the Rayder girls.

Ken Plude's team appears ready to tackle Harbor Springs and Kalkaska's dominance in the conference. Those squads have split the last four conference titles. The Rayders squared off with the Rams in a five-way meet on Tuesday, but will not compete against Kalkaska until the conference finals Thursday, May 21 in Boyne City.

"We can definitely be a threat to those teams if we stay healthy," Plude said. "But can we win it is the question."

The teams also competed in the Claire Invitational over the weekend. The Rayders took home 12 medals, including first places in the girls' 3,200 relay and the girls' freshman-sophomore 1,600 relay.

She Wants To Play Santa. He Wants A New Toy. Both Can Benefit With "Holiday Cash On The House."

Now, clients with a Citizens Bank Home Equity Line of Credit can enjoy special "Holiday Cash on the House."

That can mean up to $500 in rebates on December 1st-just in time for holiday shopping. Here's how: With an increase of 20% on your average daily outstanding balance over eight months (2/26/98-10/31/98),* we will rebate 20% of the total interest paid during that period, up to a maximum of $500.

New accounts or existing accounts with a zero balance just need to increase your February 26, 1998 average daily outstanding balance to $2,000 or 20% of your available line, whichever is greater, during the eight month period ending October 31, 1998.

Use your credit line for that new "toy" be it a boat or snowmobile (whatever moves you.) Remember-your Citizens Home Equity Line of Credit carries a significantly lower interest rate than traditional credit cards. And any interest you pay may be tax deductible.**

You don't have a Citizens Home Equity Line of Credit? Then take advantage of this special "Holiday Cash on the House" offer and apply today! Visit your nearest Bank Branch, or call 1-800-444-6989 to apply.

"Holiday Cash on the House." One of the many benefits that define the difference between being a customer elsewhere, and being a client at Citizens Bank.

You're A Client First.™

*Eligibility determined based on the 2/26/98 balance of your Home Equity Line of Credit and an increase of at least 20% in its average outstanding balance over the specified period, using the "daily balance" calculation method applicable to your account. Accounts with a balance of $10 or less as of 2/26/98 need to average 20% of the established credit limit during the specified period or $2,000, whichever is greater, using the "daily balance" calculation method applicable to your account; new accounts are eligible to participate based upon activity from date of opening through 10/31/98. **Consult your Tax Advisor regarding the deductibility of interest.

SCRAPBOOK

Kiwanis Club of yesterday

While digging through his own scrapbooks, Ralph Hamilton came upon this picture, taken in 1942 or 1943. The picture is of a regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club, where they met in the high school lunch room, which is now the middle school. The meeting was a dinner pail luncheon for the war effort. According to Hamilton, everyone in the photo has passed away, but left many descendants in the area. From back left side of the table to the front left are: Kit Carson, lumber dealer; Frank Bird, county clerk; a guest; Bill Meyers, auto dealer; Floyd Supp, judge; Doug Nettleton, dentist; Frank Young, dentist; Oscar North, school superintendent and the accordion player who provided the program entertainment. From back of right side of table to front are: Fred Bancroft, motel owner; Fraley McMillian, physician; Mr. Gifford, hotel owner; R.F. Sloan, surveyor; Floyd Ikens, sheriff; Lou Comfort, retired lighthouse keeper; Otto Kreuger, manager of the Chicago Club; Meyer Levinson, clothing store owner, and Harry Bingham, school principal. ## Kiwanis collecting donations Saturday

On Saturday, May 2, members of the Charlevoix Kiwanis will be collecting donations to eliminate the world's leading preventable cause of mental retardation, Iodine Deficiency Disorder. It is the primary cause of children's mental retardation in third world countries that do not have iodine in their diets, as we do with iodized salt in the United States.

Kiwanis International is raising $75 million to eliminate this preventable disorder throughout the world. So far, they have raised more than $25 million, including $8,000 from the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club. These funds are already being used to treat children in 56 countries.

Kiwanis members will be located at Glen's, Oleson's and Kmart entrances on Saturday, May 2.

Young riders may lose personal water craft rights

For Mary Anne Roberts, a ride on her personal water craft is a soothing end to a hard day of work.

"It's nice to come home, crank down the hoist and go," she said.

Roberts, an East Jordan resident, and countless other riders might have to begin checking their watches to make sure their cruises are within the boundary of the law.

Last month, the State House of Representatives unanimously passed a series of new rules and regulations designed to curtail the dangerous use of personal water craft, commonly referred to as jet skis, Sea-doo's or Wave Runners.

One of the laws limits the hours of usage from 9:00 a.m. to one hour before official sunset.

The proposed legislation raised the minimum age required by drivers to 16, while requiring those between the ages of 16-19 to have successfully passed a boating safety course prior to being allowed to drive.

Currently, anyone over the age of 12 can drive a personal water craft and those between ages 12-16 can continue to operate the machines under the new laws, provided they have already completed a boating safety course.

Other regulations include creating no wake zones 100 feet out from designated swimming areas, maintaining a minimum distance of 150 feet from other water craft, and prohibiting any unnecessary maneuvers like wave-jumping — a display of showmanship among personal water craft riders.

The above laws tighten up what's on the books now, but, more importantly, increase possible punishments.

Violations are only civil infractions with fines up to $100, according to present laws. In some cases, the only punishment was attending a boat safety course.

Under the new laws, violations will be classified as misdemeanors, with sanctions ranging from 30 days in jail to $1,000 in fines. Three violations within two years could lead to 90 days in jail and a $2,000 fine.

"You always hate to see more laws," Roberts said. "It's just another way to enjoy the water. What makes these any different from boats?"

Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater sees an easy difference between the two types of water craft.

The smaller vehicles are easier and less intimidating to drive for a novice. High speeds are attainable almost immediately, and that concerns Lasater.

"For whatever reason, people just don't use good judgment with the speeds of those vehicles," he said.

Lasater's department got a jump start on the proposed legislation, blanketing county water ways with a zero tolerance policy last summer regarding personal water craft use.

The results were predictable. The number of citations passed out to personal water craft riders more than doubled, from 30 in 1996 to 75 in 1997. Most of the tickets stemmed from underage driving, careless operation and violation of no wake zones.

Accidents on the waterways, however, still increased from 23 in 1996 to 26 last year, with most of the serious accidents involving personal water crafts resulting in broken bones and hospital trips.

"We're just waiting for a fatality to happen," Lasater said. "It's nice the legislation is at least directing its attention to the problem. I don't see anything offensive with the new laws."

The legislation was drafted by Rep. Thomas Callalan (D, St. Clair Shores) after a series of public hearings throughout the last year on the topic.

The senate is debating the topics and supporters hope legislation will be signed by the governor by May 22, just before Memorial weekend.

Earth Day celebration a big success at natural area

By JoAnne Beemon

It was the best, Great Blue Heron (formerly St. Clair-Six Mile Lake) Natural Area "Celebration of Creation" ever, when the group celebrated Earth Day with a nature tour and activities.

School children from Ellsworth, Central Lake, East Jordan, Charlevoix and Bellaire joined seven area girl scout troops, three boy scout troops and area nature enthusiasts to "walk for wildlife" and to support acquisition of three new preserves in the Blue Heron Natural Area.

The children planted cedars and received recognition and awards for participation in the yearly soil and water conservation poster contest.

Over 150 people participated in the day's events, walking the two-and one-half mile distance from Wooden Shoe Park in Ellsworth to the South Arm Preserve. The first walkers to arrive at the viewing platform at the end of the boardwalk were greeted by ducks and a vibrant frog chorus. As they watched, what appeared to be a gray post transformed itself into the Great Blue Heron. A gift of wonder and beauty, the heron spread its wings, slowly lifting itself above its marsh meadow home and the delighted visitors below, as if to give them a blessing.

The Charlevoix Trolley was on hand to give tired and hungry walkers a ride back to the Banks Township Hall, where Ellsworth Lionesses served up chili and sandwiches to participants whose appetites were keen after a morning of walking and planting trees.

Options to buy three additional preserves in the 193-acre Great Blue Heron Natural Area have been obtained, protecting over 700 feet of river front.

It's downtown for Dorian

By Laurie Lounsbury

Dorian MacGillivray had an enviable life — a good job in southern California, growing career, and sunshine all year long on the Pacific Coast.

But she chuckled it all to live in Charlevoix.

MacGillivray had been following career opportunities for 16 years, which took her from her home in Vassar, Michigan to California, then to Alabama. Yet another good job lured her back to California two years ago.

"I started living life out in California again, and I said to myself, 'Why am I doing this? I want to be in Charlevoix,'" MacGillivray said.

With that, she packed her bags and headed for Charlevoix, the place she'd been spending her vacations since childhood.

"I decided my career wasn't going to determine where I lived anymore," MacGillivray said. "I came here and decided a career would have to work itself into my decision."

Her decision was kismet. Within a few months of settling into her mother's home on Park Avenue, MacGillivray found the job that suited her perfectly.

In mid-March, she became Charlevoix's new downtown coordinator.

"My friends had to laugh when I got this job," MacGillivray said. "They said I'm finally getting paid for what I've been doing for the last 15 years — promoting Charlevoix." MacGillivray explained that she always told her friends everywhere she lived about her zeal for Charlevoix.

With a background in advertising, marketing and public relations, MacGillivray has much to offer Charlevoix. Her part-time salary is paid through a group of organizations that will benefit from her assistance.

"There's a cooperative feeling now, of promoting Charlevoix together because in the long run, it will help us all," MacGillivray said of the different groups funding her position. The City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, Downtown Development Authority and Convention and Visitor's Bureau all contribute to the downtown coordinator position.

"Everything I work on, they can all see a benefit from it," MacGillivray said.

What MacGillivray is working on now is to find ways to promote Charlevoix in the off-season as a destination for conventions and business meetings. She is compiling a meeting planner's kit, which will include restaurants, hotel accommodations, golf, skiing and other attractions of Charlevoix.

Laser show approved Carnival will stay downtown

By Laurie Lounsbury

With unanimous approval, the city council granted permission to the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce for a laser light show instead of a fireworks display at this year's Venetian Festival.

"I'm happy with the laser show, 'cause I'm not happy with fireworks again," said councilman Gabe Campbell. "But I'd like to have a $10 million bond on the table before we approve anything."

With that notable exception, the Venetian Festival will pretty much be business as usual.

The carnival location, which was found objectionable by nearly everyone who attended the festival forum, will remain downtown.

"The committee reviewed other sites, but you don't want people to get in a car and drive to another site," said Jacqueline Merta, chamber president. "That just adds to traffic congestion."

Merta said the chamber committee considered alternative carnival sites such as Michigan Beach, which was deemed to be too small, and the Charlevoix Middle School property, which is located in a residential district. Another consideration for the committee was to keep the carnival close to other downtown areas.

Law suit filed over Venetian explosion

By Laurie Lounsbury

Charles and Diane Craddock were sitting in their truck, parked in front of the Beaver Island Boat Company offices on the evening of July 26, 1997. From their vantage point in the truck, they watched the Venetian fireworks display.

When they sensed the grand finale was about to begin, they decided to beat the traffic out of the park and head for their home in Cedar, near Traverse City. Before embarking on the drive home, they both decided to make use of the port-a-johns sitting across the parking lot from them. After taking care of that business, both Chuck and Diane were headed back to the safety of their truck when the horrific explosion occurred.

"We sat in the truck the whole time, except for those few minutes," Diane said.

Flying shrapnel sent Chuck flying through the air.

"From what people have told us, he went head over heels and landed on his head," Diane said.

The explosion left both Craddocks with many serious injuries.

Nine months have passed since the accident, and the Craddocks are now the first of at least 15 vic-

Law suit claims fireworks operators acted recklessly

tims who might file a civil law suit in Charlevoix County's 33rd Circuit Court.

Charles and Diane Craddock vs. the City of Charlevoix et al was filed April 27, by their attorneys Daniel O'Neil and George Thompson. "Et al" (and others) to be named as defendants are the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, the Venetian Festival, city manager Michael Wiesner, police chief Dennis Halverson, and fire chief Doug Carver. From the private sector, the suit names as defendants fireworks operator Richard Davis, his employees Michael Jaye, Glen Crawford and Lawrence Grise.

In the lawsuit, it states that the injuries of Charles and Diane Craddock "constitute a serious impairment of an important bodily function as well as serious permanent disfigurement."

Diane Craddock suffered a complex pelvic fracture and dislocation, and severely crushed fractures in one of her leg bones.

Charles Craddock sustained a skull fracture, right temporal lobe hemorrhage, a closed head injury and severe fractures of the tibia, fibula and patella (leg bones and knee cap).

Both Cradducks have undergone extensive physical rehabilitation. Charles had an external fixation device on his leg for nine months, while Diane was in a cast and had hip replacement surgery.

No monetary damages were named in the law suit, other than to say that they will seek more than $25,000.

The suit makes many charges against all defendants, including:

— Launching the fireworks in such close proximity to the viewing public as to be unsafe, and in violation of federal regulations and standards governing the safe display of fireworks — Launching the fireworks from a trailer that was not suitable or safe for public launching — Failing to exercise due care in the purchase of fireworks, the preparation for the launch and the conduct of the launch

— Failing to obtain or to provide adequate training in the handling, storage, loading, transportation, display and detonation of fireworks of the nature displayed at the 1997 Venetian Festival.

The suit goes on to say, "The action taken by private actors (not government employees) were so contrary to safe practices and so reckless as to demonstrate lack of concern for whether an injury might result."

Regarding the role of Wiesner, Carver and Halverson, (city manager, police chief and fire chief) the suit said they "failed to prohibit and allowed launching fireworks within 75 feet of people despite their knowledge of federal and industry standards of 720 feet."

None of the city employees were at liberty to comment on the law suit.

Coordinating the downtown's future

The kit will be distributed to all potential businesses and organizations who may want to book a meeting in Charlevoix.

"I think we have a lot to offer in the spring and fall," MacGillivray said.

Since starting her new job, MacGillivray has been focusing on both the long and short term goal of finding businesses for unoccupied downtown storefronts.

"We have to determine who the Charlevoix shopper is, and look at having the right mix of businesses," MacGillivray said. "We all think we know what we need here, but we don't want to go on assumptions. We want a more methodical approach."

Working toward that goal, MacGillivray will be going door-to-door through the downtown area, interviewing business owners and gathering their thoughts and opinions.

"We're doing a lot of brain storming, and right now there's no such thing as a bad idea," MacGillivray said.

Part of MacGillivray's job, as she sees it, is to be the landing zone for airborne ideas on how to improve the downtown area.

"There were a zillion ideas flying around, but no place for them to land," she said. "Now there is — me."

"It's going to be a challenge, but it's wonderful to have a job that will never be done," MacGillivray said.

What people are saying

"I believe we can sell ice cream in the winter. And oh, by the way, the Polly Kay is back into Charlevoix."

— John Haggard, telling city council that the new business he owns with his brothers, Polly's Parlor and Deli, will be open all year. Slipping in a plug for the family-owned business, Haggard pointed out that the adjoining business, Kay's Wine Shop, will bring back into town the two names once associated with a popular dress shop across the street.

"It was a relief to have that fund. Otherwise, we wouldn't have been able to survive."

— Diane Craddock, who, along with her husband, was seriously injured in the fireworks explosion, discussing the Venetian Fireworks Victims Fund and how it helped them financially after the tragedy.

Coming attractions

New businesses are starting to open up in downtown Charlevoix, giving Bridge Street a fully occupied feeling once again.

In the former location of Northern Possessions, Brookstone, a national chain store selling high-tech gadgetry, will open. In the rear of the same building will be a business called Hawaiian Ice.

Interior Motives, an interior design business selling home accessories, is opening in the former movie theater building.

The Village Peddler, a clothing store, will open in the location of the former Anchors men's store.

Salt Marsh, a business selling antiques, collectibles, pottery and gifts, will open in the former LaBlance Insurance building behind Murdock's Fudge.

The Pine Lake Boat Shop will open in the same location as the former Charlevoix Boat Shop.

Polly's Parlor and Deli has already opened in the former location of Cravings, near the bridge.

Charlevoix actors take home state awards

The Charlevoix Performing Arts team took home a number of awards from the state championships in the individual events competition. Prior to the event, the cast performed at home for parents and friends. Shown here are some of the students who performed. Top left: Performing a condensed version of the rock opera "Tommy" are (from left) Nick Grosberg, Jon Sell, Tyler Lieberman, Heather Gotchall, and Nick Kessler, who took fifth place. Also in their group are Chris Meredith and Ryan Borths, shown on front page. Top right: Mike Czerkes and Katie Golski took 12th place when they entertained the audience with a skit showing the foibles of growing older. Lower left: Caleb Levengood did a convincing impression of a troll in his storytelling event, which took 13th place. Other winners were Danica Kilander, Sally Beennon, Tanya Wyniawskyj, Jennifer Ricks, Jenny Wojan and Kim Cunningham, who took ninth place in a multiple event, Dan Bennett, who took sixth place in broadcasting, Laura Borths and Laurel English, who took 13th in the 9-10th grade duo, and Jaime Baker and Lisa Kerncr, who took 19th in the 9-10 duo. ## Insurance a big consideration for festival town activities.

"It (Venetian Festival) really is a community and family event," Merta said. "Adults and grandparents come with kids. It's nice they can all enjoy activities in close proximity. We don't want to remove adults from the youth with two different locations."

The carnival is the primary fundraising event for the chamber of commerce, bringing in about $40,000 to cover festival expenses.

"We will continue to look for different sites in the future," Merta said, adding, "There's only so many things you can switch in one year."

A recurring theme at Monday's council meeting was discussion of insurance and liability coverage. Merta told the council that the carnival operator has already given them a certificate of insurance for $10 million.

"Ten million is clearly enough," said city attorney Jim Young. "I'd be comfortable with at least $5 million."

The laser show isn't a pyrotechnic show, and therefore the city won't be exempt for insurance coverage during the event.

The city will have standard insurance coverage of $5 million for the festival, and the chamber of commerce will take out an additional $2 million insurance policy.

Although it wasn't directly mentioned, the concerns for insurance might have stemmed from last year's Venetian fireworks explosion that killed one Charlevoix resident and injured at least 15 other people.

Councilman A.J. Witthoef broached the subject of last year's fireworks victims at the end of the festival discussion.

"Is there going to be some kind of memorial for the victims?" Witthoef asked.

"We talked about it, and had some ideas, but I can't say we've made a decision," Merta said.

For anyone who is curious about the laser light show, Merta said the chamber of commerce has a video tape of laser shows that is available for the public to check out and view at home.

OPINIONS

Performing arts teaches more than drama skills

You may not have known it at the time, but if you've ever had a conversation with a high school student who was remarkably articulate, poised and had a quiet air of confidence, the student was probably a member of the performing arts team.

Performing arts at Charlevoix High School is an extracurricular activity that attracts an interesting bunch of kids. They are the students who, in elementary school and middle school, were sometimes either too shy, too short, too stout or too smart to fit in comfortably with the mainstream crowd.

When they get to high school and join the performing arts team, a magical thing happens. Under the guidance of Connie Ford, these students become confident, capable performers.

The skills learned in performing arts are attributes that will serve the students well for the rest of their lives. They learn to stand up straight, enunciate, make eye contact, project their voices and carry themselves with grace. They are the same qualities that can make the difference, later in life, between getting a job or losing out to a competitor with better people skills.

I had the pleasure last week to watch performing arts students present their individual event pieces they performed at the state championships.

I was mesmerized by the talent I saw. Their performances, to me, were even better than the plays and musicals they perform as a team.

Clearly, a lot of work and dedication goes into the individual events competition. One group of kids condensed the entire rock opera, "Tommy," into a 15 minute production. It was astounding. Other students performed alone, or with a partner.

EDITORIAL

In the individual events competition, students performing with others still have to maintain an individual profile. They can't look at one another or touch one another, making the performance even trickier.

The sizes, shapes and personalities of performing arts students is quite varied, yet they all seem to get along extremely well, encouraging one another. Perhaps they form a bond by doing one of the hardest tasks in life — performing in front of the public, where all the world can see your failures as well as your successes.

I've never met a performing arts student who was unable to look me in the eye and converse with confidence. If I owned a business in town, I'd want to hire performing arts students for summer help. They are sure to dazzle the tourists visiting the area.

Performing arts is an extracurricular activity, but if I were responsible for high school curriculum, I'd make it a required class for all freshmen. Not only would it boost the confidence and self-esteem of freshmen, it would teach them the most important acting skill — how to act appropriately in all of life's situations.

After last week's performance, Nick Kessler spoke to the audience, explaining the individual events competition.

"It's tedious, it's hard work, and sometimes it's hard to take the criticism from the judges when they tell you almost everything you did was wrong," Nick said.

I'm no judge, but in my opinion, everything they're doing is right.

Guest commentary

By Dean Davenport
Director, Charlevoix Junior
Golf Program

Summer is a great time for children of all ages to learn in a setting that is different than the classroom. One of the options some parents overlook is the golf course. While learning and establishing a desirable lifetime value system is something all parents are seeking for their youngsters, learning it through the sport of golf is a relatively new approach. Yet, if you understand what may be learned through golf participation, you suddenly can grasp its value.

One of the first lessons stressed in golf is to be punctual. Golf lessons, like tee times, must start on time. If you are late for a tee time, you lose and often someone else takes your place. Lessons are dealt with in the same manner — you must be on time.

Etiquette is stressed for several reasons. It is important to not talk when people are getting ready to hit their golf shot. Learning to help others find their lost ball is stressed, as is not walking on the green in front of a partner's ball. Waiting for their turn before hitting can be the foundation for always thinking of others even when not on the golf course.

Golf is a game that involves honesty more than any other sport. There are no umpires or referees to "make the calls." A youngster will count their own strokes, determine if their ball is out of bounds or in the water, and penalize themselves whenever a penalty stroke is called for.

Civic obedience is crucial for our society. Laws and rules are made to follow. Golfers must follow game and etiquette rules and this is stressed by all teachers of golf. Social skills are emphasized, as a youth will find themselves playing with different people every day. In addition to learning to get along with the opposite gender and those from different economical backgrounds, we stress having empathy for the golfer struggling to master the many fundamentals of the game. Educators agree it's more difficult to teach desirable social traits needed to be successful in today's society in a classroom setting. Yet, through golf, the emphasis is on honesty, helping and thinking of others, obeying rules even when it affects your playing, socializing with those in all walks of life, and being accountable to others.

The goal of the Charlevoix Area Junior Golf program is to introduce area youth to these attributes through the game of golf. The local teaching professionals donate their time to see that the golf experience is the best possible. Five area golf courses — Dunmaglas, Belvedere, Antrim Dells, the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course and the Charlevoix Country Club — provide their facilities for the program. Lessons meet twice a week, starting in mid-June and go through July. The small fee of $3 per lesson or $30 for the season allows for lender sets of golf clubs so that no one goes without clubs. There are also scholarships for those families where the lesson fees might cause a hardship.

Registration will begin at 10 a.m. Monday, June 15 at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course. Parents must accompany their child for the orientation session and official registration as their signature is needed on the waiver of insurance. Additional information may be obtained by calling program director Dean Davenport at 547-6433, Dwight Boss, city recreation director, at 547-3253, or board member Nancy LaCroix at 547-6418.

Friends of Jordan auction and dinner a big success

About 200 people attended The Friends of the Jordan River Watershed First Annual Dinner, Photo Exhibit and Auction at the Country Club.

The auctions featured about 365 items in all, ranging from works of art to fashion and jewelry to services and recreational trips. Some of the more unique items auctioned off included a Beaver Island getaway package, a flight over the Jordan Valley, a 7-foot tall carved hall tree, several guided tours on the Jordan River and throughout the Jordan Valley, several full-body massages, and an Old Towne canoe. The keynote speaker for the event was Wil Cwikiel, Water Resources Program Director with Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council. He had just returned from a trip to India and drew comparisons of the Ganges River in India to the Jordan. He discussed the spirituality of the Indian people and how sacred the river still is to them. The inference he drew were that each river has its own physical characteristics, meaning, history, and spirituality about it. The evening raised nearly $6,000 for the Friends of the Jordan. They plan to use the funds to continue their efforts to conserve the natural resources and protect the environmental quality of the Jordan River and its watershed. In addition, a special $3,000 grant was presented to FOJ to assist in its production of a Jordan River Watershed Handbook. The grant was presented by Dan Rcszka, chair of the Land Use and Conservation Planning Fund of the Grand Traverse Regional Community Foundation.

If you are interested in learning more about Friends of the Jordan or becoming a member, call John Hummer, director, at 533-5063.

that says, "Lord, if you want somebody, here I am, send me!"

We can give a life that says to living mothers, "You can hold your head up high, because even though everything isn't exactly as you expected it would be, everything you hoped for, it's going to be all right." And we can give a life that says to mothers who have gone on to their greater reward, "Take peaceful rest, for your good deeds follow after you."

On Mother's Day, may each of us give a gift like that, the gift that lasts. Give flowers of a life that is blooming with the love of God.

Give the gift of a life lifted up in the manner of Christ that gives glory and honor not only to your mother, but also to your Father who is in heaven.

Such is the greatest gift anyone could ever give to another — a gift that is available to all; a gift that doesn't cost anything; a gift that lasts for an eternity. May that be the gift which each of us gives on Mother's Day this year.

City roads are a real work in progress

By Jamie MacMillan

When local roads get a makeover, it is usually accompanied by sighs of relief from neighbors who no longer have to navigate roads dotted with cracks and potholes.

Residents from the neighborhood that will benefit from the city's largest street project of 1998, though, will probably drink a sign of relief.

The city is rebuilding from scratch about six city blocks of roads along May, Upright, Hurlbut and Lincoln streets, east of Bridge Street.

While the roads will end up smoother, the biggest improvement is expected to be in the water quality of the neighborhood.

The roads are being completely gutted so new and improved water mains can be installed.

For Anne Puffpaff, the project will be a welcome improvement. Puffpaff, who has lived in the same West Upright home most of her life, said their water tastes funny at times and freezes periodically during the winter.

"This is long overdue," her husband Fritz said as the couple watched road workers uproot their road last week.

John Martin, street manager for the City of Charlevoix, said the city prioritizes road projects based on which roads need the most improvement underground in terms of sewer and water problems.

Most of the work will be done in six stages, beginning with tearing up the old road.

Next, any sewer repair will be done, followed by the installation of new water mains, which Martin said is the step that takes the most time.

After the new water lines are tapped for the residents, workers will install new storm drains, curbs and gutters, and lastly line the roads with a new gravel base before re-asphalting them.

"It's a complete reconstruction," Martin said of the work. "These will be totally new roads when we finish."

In addition to the old water mains, the actual roads have problems that need to be fixed. All of the roads are a bit jagged with cracks and potholes. The roads have also been severely crowned — the middle of the road has risen higher than the curbs.

Martin said the project will continue through most of the upcoming summer, with a target date for completion near the end of August. He did note that the project began about three weeks earlier than expected, thanks to the unseasonably warm, dry spring.

Work will progress from May Street, which received its new curbs and gutters last week, to Upright to Hurlbut and finish on Lincoln.

Traffic remains passable so long as the roads aren't in their torn up stage. Other than that, Martin said there might be a day or two when residents won't be able to get to their driveways.

The city contracted the work to Tri-County Excavating, and the cost of the project will approach $500,000, Martin said.

Fritz Puffpaff (far right) looks on as road crews tear up portions of Upright Street in front of his home. Six city blocks of May, Upright, Hurlbut and Lincoln streets, east off of Bridge Street, are amid total reconstruction that will keep workers busy through the end of August. ### Landscape architect earns certification

John W. Campbell, of Charlevoix, was recently granted Council of Landscape Architectural Registration Boards (CLARB) certification. CLARB certification distinguishes recipients as having achieved the level of professional development required to satisfy CLARB's standards for recommendation for national licensing.

Campbell is a licensed landscape architect and owner of Site Planning Development, Inc. in Charlevoix. He is chairperson of the State of Michigan Board of Landscape Architects, and a member of the American Society of Landscape Architects, the National Federation of Independent Business, and numerous state and local organizations.

Realtor awarded special designation

Donald Fedrigon, Jr., a RE/MAX realtor, has been awarded the Certified Residential Specialist designation by the residential sales council of the Realtors National Marketing Institute, an affiliate of the National Association of Realtors.

Those receiving the CRS designation must complete the required courses offered by the residential sales council and demonstrate specific expertise in applied residential real estate marketing. Over 33,000 realtors hold the CRS designation, representing only 5 percent of all realtors.

Fedrigon is an owner/broker with RE/MAX of Elk Rapids. He is a member of the Traverse Area Association of Realtors and the Antrim-Charlevoix-Kalkaska board of realtors. Fedrigon is also the president of the Elk Rapids Area Chamber of Commerce.

4-H group visits Lansing

Protecting Michigan's wildlife topped the list of issues Northern Michigan 4-H members discussed with state legislators in Lansing during the 1998 4-H Capitol Experience. Kristin Hammerberg of Charlevoix was among the 98 teens and adults from 28 Michigan counties who met with state legislators and representatives of community and state agencies during 4-H Capitol Experience to discuss how government deals with eight issues the teens chose as important to them.

Pischner has been at the hospital for so many years she can remember when the emergency room used to be where the pharmacy is now located. Surgery used to be in a different wing, and the current administration wing used to be the obstetrics unit.

Over the years, Pischner has worked in every nursing capacity at the hospital.

She now works in the medical/surgical wing, taking care of patients during their recovery.

Baseball team continues to rack up wins

By Jamie MacMillan

Charlevoix ran their winning streak to a season high of four games when Steve Speigl played the winning run in the top of the sixth on a throwing error to give the Rayders a 2-1 win over Kalkaska.

Pitcher Mike Evans scattered five hits while striking out eight Blazers to earn his second win of the year. Kalkaska had runners in scoring position in every inning, but Evans bore down and kept them off the scoreboard until the final inning.

Speigl's run made it 2-0, but Kalkaska cut the lead in half in their last at-bat and advanced runners to second and third base before grounding out to third base to end the game.

The win followed three games when it was the Rayders' bats that did the talking. The loudest of which was shortstop Speigl who went 5-for-5 with two home runs and double to break open a 14-5 win over Harbor Springs last Thursday.

The hitting was contagious through the second game as Levi Bakker, Shay Hutchison and Justin Thorp each hit one over the fence. The Rayders completed a sweep of the Rams, 9-5.

Despite issuing nine walks, Jeremy Himebauch earned the win in the first game, while Tom Kennedy struck out six batters for the win in the nightcap.

Speigl belted his third home run of the week and had another "outless" day at the plate going 3-for-3 with five RBI as the Rayders routed Kalkaska, 10-3, in Monday's first game.

Kennedy also went 3-for-3 as Charlevoix plated multiple run innings in four of its six at-bats. T.J. Carey added a double and a single and Hutchison drove in two RBI for the Rayders.

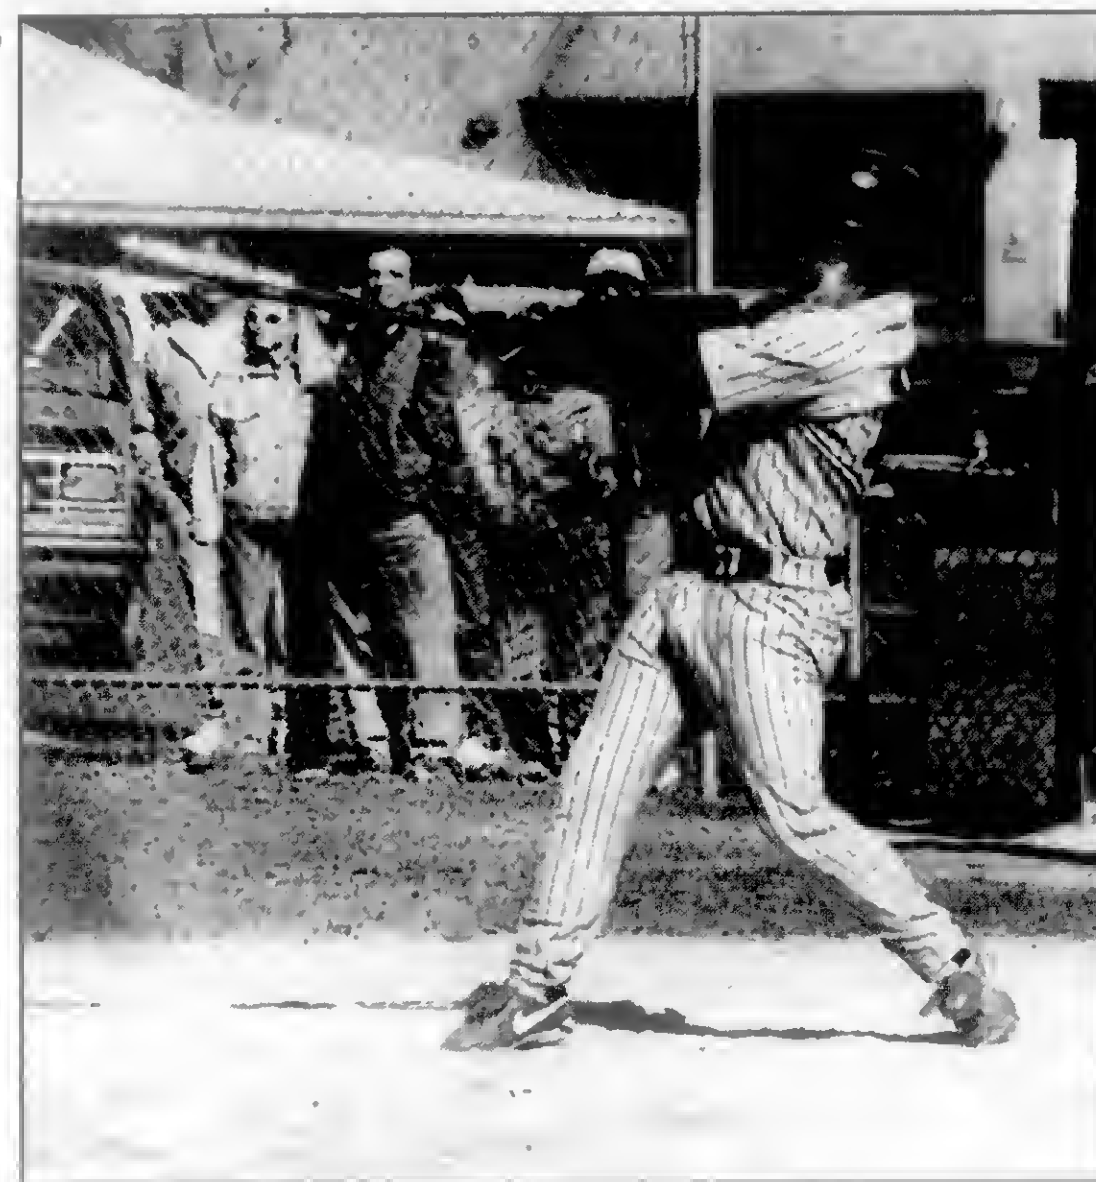

Himebauch, exhibiting better control of the strike zone, won his third game of the season, allowing no walks while striking out five Kalkaska batters.

After a dismal start, Charlevoix has rallied to win seven of 10 games, upping their record to 8-10;

5-3 in conference play. The conference record is already one game better than last year, which saw the Rayders finish 4-7-1.

"I think we're starting to mature as a team," coach Scott Kelly said. "We are still making mistakes, but they aren't as costly to us as they were earlier in the year."

The Rayders will wrap up their conference slate with home doubleheaders against Traverse City St. Francis at 4:30 Thursday, May 7 and against Boyne City at 4:30 Monday, May 11.

Strong defense scores soccer victory

Erika Kammermann redirected a corner kick in the second half for the game's only score to propel Charlevoix to a 1-0 win over Roscommon last Saturday afternoon.

Brooke Block launched the corner kick to pick up an assist on the goal and goalie Kristy Shindorf stopped all 15 shots she faced as the Rayders won their second game of the season.

Despite tallying just one goal, the forward line of Katy Conlan, Taya Drost and Mandy Webb created numerous offensive chances throughout the game. Lisa Skippergosh, Julie Swenor and Kelly Kusina also played well at their respective positions.

Earlier in the week, the Rayders fell to Petoskey for the second time this season in a 3-0 contest.

The Northmen offense peppered Shindorf, launching 23 shots on net while the defense bottled up any Charlevoix attack, limiting the Rayders to just two shots on goal.

Charlevoix, 2-6-1, will host the third annual Charlevoix Invitational this coming Friday, May 8 and Saturday, May 9.

Elk Rapids and Roscommon will do battle in the first game at 5 p.m. Friday, May 8. Charlevoix and Reed City will square off in game two at approximately 7 p.m.

A consolation game will be played at 9 a.m. Saturday, May 9 with the championship game to follow at 11 a.m.

Elk Rapids won the event in 1996 and Lansing Central Catholic won last year.

Softball team battles with Blazers and losing streak

The Rayders softball team dropped to 5-11 after losing two games to Kalkaska, 11-0 and 9-3, Monday afternoon.

Charlevoix was limited to just one hit, a single by Krysta Pearsall, in the opener.

The offense was a little more in gear in the nightcap, but wasn't enough to heat the power-hitting Blazers.

Dena Sheldon had a single and a double and Lyndsay Blechel, Ann Spang, Laurel English, Rachel Thorp and Barrett each had a hit. Blechel and English each had an RBI.

Barrett was the losing pitcher in the first game, allowing 12 hits and two walks while striking out three. Blechel took the loss in the day's second game, giving up seven hits and three walks while striking out two.

"We're just not hitting the ball when we need to," coach Ron Cox said of his team, which is mired in a six-game losing streak.

Charlevoix, 5-11, 1-7 in league play, will wrap up their league play this week with doubleheaders against Traverse City St. Francis at 4:30 p.m. Thursday, May 7 and against Boyne City at 4:30 p.m. Monday, May 11. Both games are at home.

Tennis results

Charlevoix scored a 4-3 victory over Grayling.

In the doubles competition, No. 1, Erik Halverson-George LaBlance won their match, 6-3, 6-1; No. 2, Mark Yager-Tom Cunningham also earned a win, 5-7, 6-2, 6-3; and No. 3, Craig Siwarga-Dennis Mitchell swept their match, 6-0, 6-1.

The doubles team of Annie Martin and Leah Dulaney won an exhibition match as did Caitlin Dulaney in a singles match.

The team will compete in the conference championships beginning at 10 a.m. Friday, May 8 at Boyne Mountain.

School adds coaching positions with new pay rate

By Jamie MacMillan

Ten new middle school coaching positions, 13 varsity head coaches receiving a raise and 15 coaching positions throughout the payroll having their pay slashed are highlights of an early proposal to retool the way the district compensates its coaches.

The scope of how Charlevoix's coaches are paid will be hashed out one year from now as part of contract renegotiations between the districts' teachers and its governing board.

Athletic director Keith Haske crafted the proposal with varsity volleyball coach Brenda Bryan and varsity cross-country/track and field coach Ken Plude. According to Haske, it reflects more equity in terms of female sports and time spent coaching any team.

In the 1997-98 school year, the district expects to pay $111,424 on coaching salaries.

A coach's salary is based on a percentage of the teacher's salary, which parallels the coach's experience at Charlevoix or at another institution.

If you're a coach with 10 years' experience, then you get paid a percentage of the salary of a 10-year teacher.

The new proposal divides coaches into six levels, with the first level being head coach of the varsity football, boys' basketball and girls' basketball programs. Those coaches receive 12 percent of a teachers' salary, which isn't a change from the previous agreement.

The second level groups the remainder of the schools' varsity coaches at 10 percent, which will give 13 coaches an increase in pay.

Currently only the wrestling head coach receives 10 percent, while the remainder receives 8 percent.

This past season, for example, if those 13 coaches were paid at 10 percent, the district would have spent an additional $12,000.

A change of significant proportions is being proposed for coaches at the middle school.

In the present faculty contract, 38 coaching positions are included, but only six are for middle school sports. Those coaches are paid at a 5.5 percent rate.

While the new plan would decrease that rate to 4.5 percent, it would also add an additional 10 positions to the contract.

Seven would be head coaching positions, five of which would be for sports already offered at the middle school level: football, cross-country, seventh grade volleyball, eighth grade volleyball and

The road less traveled to pool is convenient bike path

"The faint green color now on the ground around the Charlevoix Area Community Swimming Pool is a promise of things to come," said Steven Hansen, president of the Charlevoix Friends of the Pool.

The green color, Hansen said, is from the mixture of mulch, water and fertilizer sprayed on top of the soil. The machinery and manpower costs were donated by Site Planning Development as a gift to the community.

"Under the mulch," said Hansen, "is a super surprise for the community — wildflowers! Someone, whose name we don't know, donated wildflower seed to make the area around the pool a beautiful meadow. To the north and west of the building, the fine grove of conifers was made possible by a gift from Marvin's Gardens. The washed stone dressing around the perimeter of the building is a gift of Hand D, Inc. of Petoskey."

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club sent a delegation to the pool to assist in planning the landscaping. Anne Hansen, Hal Johnson, Inge and Jim Ladahl and Lois Lewis toured the grounds and recommended two large petunia beds to dramatize the building; one bed just to the east of the front door, and another bed around the flag pole.

"There is now a gravel walking and bicycle path from the pool driveway to Waller Road, thanks to the efforts of the elected officials and officers of Hayes Township," Hansen said. "The Hayes Township Council approved the expenditure of money to start this segment of the bike trail which is planned to reach, eventually, to Harbor Springs. The Hayes Township officials recognized the value of a pedestrian and bicycle route to the pool, to avoid using the highway. The friends of the pool board, the bike-riding patrons and their parents are all appreciative.

"Everyone can rejoice in the way Charlevoix area individuals, companies, organizations and units of government are helping this community resource improve."

Elizabeth Ulrick prepares to head down the bike bath to the Charlevoix Community Pool. The path connects the pool parking lot to Waller Road, so bike riders no longer have to ride on the highway to get to the pool. (Photo courtesy of Dave Wassenaar)

KCB plans Vegas night

Departing from the former practice of hosting a joint, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful and Charlevoix Friends of the Pool fund raising dinner, KCB is planning a Las Vegas night party this year.

The group plans to host the party aboard the Emerald Isle on Saturday, July 11. Gambling, music and dancing on the top deck and two bars on the ship promise to make the evening entertaining.

"This will be our annual fundraiser for the petunias and truck maintenance," said Joanne Curtis, president of KCB.

Historical society hosting old sports dinner

A Bob Miles photo such as this one shown here will be offered as a door prize at the Charlevoix Historical Society's "Charlevoix in Sports Pictures" dinner.

The Charlevoix Historical Society is hosting a "Charlevoix in Sports Pictures" dinner at the Grey Gables Inn on Thursday, May 14. The public is invited. A wide variety of photos from the society's archives will be on display along with athletic memorabilia from the high school.

No program is planned. This will be an informal evening of shared personal reminiscences and stories that go as far back as memory allows. They need not be limited to school-related athletics, but can cover the entire range of sports activities in Charlevoix — baseball, golf, skiing, water sports, the ice rinks, tennis courts, etc. Those who attend are encouraged to bring personal photos and newspaper clippings relating to our sports past.

A social hour from 6 to 7 p.m. will precede an all-you-can-eat chicken dinner served family style. Three historic photos from the Bob Miles Collection, of the Manitou in Round Lake harbor, will be offered as door prizes.

Tickets are $15 per person. They are available at the Bridge Street Book Shop, Charlevoix State Bank, Citizens Bank, and the Harsha House Museum (547-0373), 103 State St., open from 5 to 9 p.m. Thursday, May 7.

Everyone is welcome to join the society for an evening of fun and remembrance (and maybe a little bragging), and to learn a little more about our sports history.

New coaches face pay rate change

wrestling. Now, coaches for those sports receive stipends between $300-$500 for their time. The volleyball and cross-country programs, though, receive no pay.

The other two new positions are for fledgling girls' and boys' middle school soccer teams.

Also included are three assistant coaches, to be paid at a 3.5 percent rate for middle school football, girls' basketball and boys' basketball.

Assuming that those middle school positions are all hired at step one, it would cost $11,834, or about 400 percent more than the $2,900 which the district spent on those coaches this past season.

Varsity assistant coaches are slated to make seven percent, which would be a 1 percent decrease.

It would seem that the 15 positions which will see a decrease in pay could defray the extra costs for the raises and new positions, but only newly hired coaches will be hit with lower wages. Any coach currently in position will not see their pay decrease.

The plan is expected to do away with the $5,500 paid to the high school fall sports coaches for pre-season pay, but only for newly hired coaches.

TRACK AND FIELD

Boys' and girls' track teams loaded with players

This season's track meets will be crowded with more competitors due to an increase of numbers on both the boys' and girls' Charlevoix teams.

The girls team, for example, is expected to have 33 participants, up from 23 last season.

"We won't have people running four events in one meet," coach Ken Plude said. "It's a much bigger team than last year, and it's pretty talented."

Plude does have 10 returning varsity letter winners from last year including seniors Candace Vandergriff, last year's top scorer, and Tricia Kelly, the team's top scorer from 1996.

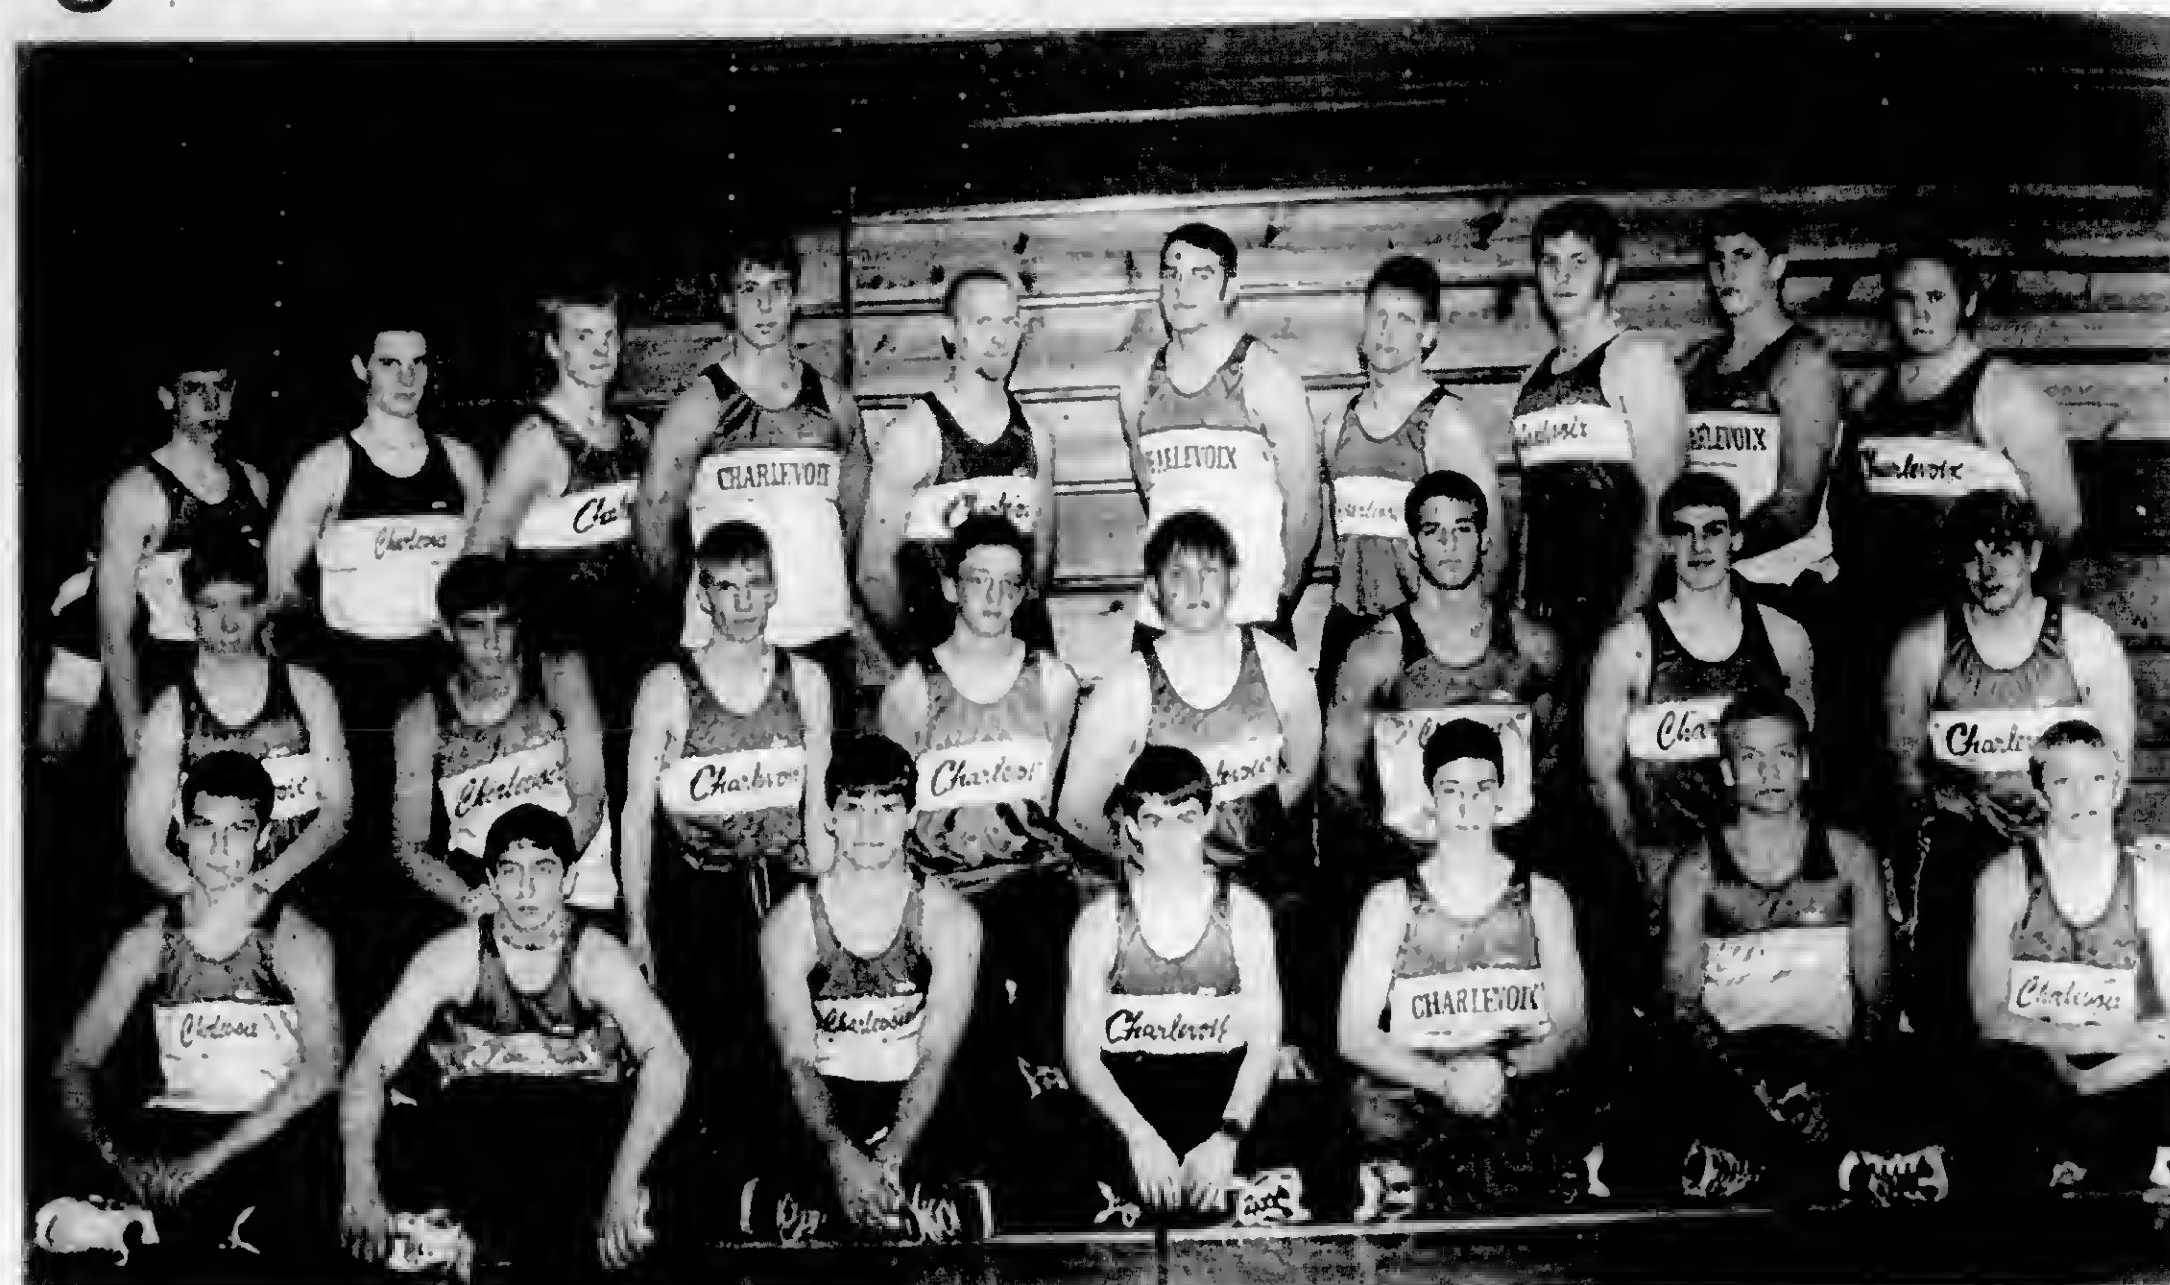

Vandergriff is a distance runner who set three school records at the state meet last spring in the 1600, 3200 and 2-mile relay. The relay team placed sixth overall in the state.

Kelly, meanwhile, is a sprinter who won the conference championship in the 100 meters while placing second in the 200 last year.

Other holdovers from last year's squad are seniors Anne Terryberry and Liz Andreae and juniors Tricia Hodge, Liza Gorkiewicz, Allison Kujawski and Emily Martinus.

As for the boys' team, they might not be as experienced as their female counterparts, but they have strength in numbers, with 30 boys out for the club.

Only three, though, have earned varsity letters in track.

Senior Steve Felter returns for his fourth season running sprints and hurdles. Felter is this season's captain.

Sophomores Jeff Popenhagen, a distance runner, and Jeremy Rafacz, who runs in the sprint relays, are the other returning lettermen.

"We're a very young team," coach Hal Evans said. "It'll be wide open for spots which will make it fun."

Evans said the team has a core of promising newcomers, including Wally Wujcik and Carl Goff in the discus and shot put events, Colin Carr in the sprints, and Michael Ricks, Sean Stockman, Hal Evans Jr. and Ben VanGuilder in the middle distance events.

"This will be a fun year," Evans said. "We'll have to sort it out and find spots for the kids to train in for the next couple of years."

Both clubs are off to good starts as each has won two conference meets. Both teams sat atop the field in a quad-meet with Elk Rapids, East Jordan and Boyne City as well as a tri-meet with Traverse City St. Francis and Harbor Springs.

The teams will host a meet with Traverse City at 4 p.m. Thursday, May 7.

Boyne City will host both the regional finals, Saturday, May 16 and the conference finals, Thursday, May 21. Starting times will be announced later.

The annual Meet of Champions will wrap up the season 5 p.m. Tuesday, May 26 at Kipke Field.

BASEBALL

Underclassmen give varsity team a boost

In order to improve upon last season's 10-12-1 record, the Charlevoix baseball team will rely heavily on a core of underclassmen playing their first season of varsity baseball.

Of manager Scott Kelly's 13 players, nine will be newcomers to varsity level, including three sophomores and two freshmen.

"It's a good bunch of kids," Kelly said. "We'll take our lumps at times, but I think we'll improve as the year goes on as we develop some experience."

Four players return from last year's squad led by steady infielders Steve Speigl and Mike Evans. Speigl will man the shortstop position while Evans, Kelly said, will play either second or third base. Both are seniors.

Fellow senior T.J. Carey returns and is expected to be one of the squads better pitchers. Sophomore Shay Hutchison, who spent half of last season on the varsity club, will be the team's catcher.

After that the club is comprised of players who impressed Kelly with their play during Senior League ball last summer.

Juniors Ryan Bier and Jeremy Himebauch will join Carey in the starting rotation while fellow juniors Tom Kennedy and Levi Bakker will play outfield and Justin Thorp will see action at first base.

Kelly said Thorp and Kennedy will also pitch while Bakker will also play some innings at catcher.

Sophomore Andy Granath is expected to man the center field position and a trio of freshmen, Jeremiah Teuscher, Matt Horon and Troy Smith will round out the rest of the roster.

Teuscher will split time between second and third base and Horon and Smith will roam the outfield.

For the second year in a row, Kelly's club got a jump on practice by spending spring vacation training at the baseball school in Fort Lauderdale.

In addition to the work, the club caught an exhibition game between the Orioles and the Mets and attended opening day at Pro Player Stadium in Miami, where they saw the Florida Marlins battle the Chicago Cubs. It was an extra special opening day as the Marlins raised their 1997 World Series Championship banner prior to the game.

"I want to thank the businesses in town for their donations, without them we wouldn't have been able to go," Kelly said of the Florida trip.

Based on what he saw down south, Kelly expects his club to be a good hitting team. As soon as the pitching gains some varsity experience, the team will win its share of games.

"It's a pretty balanced year for our league," he said. "I don't see any team playing a dominant role. It'll come down to who makes the plays."

Elk Rapids won the league crown last year, but it was Boyne City's senior-laden squad that made the most post-season noise, advancing to the state finals. The Rayders were 4-7-1 in league play.

SOCCER

Soccer team has upperclassmen to lead the way

Fourteen returning lettermen on this year's Lady Rayder soccer team should give coaches Tom Conlan and Hagen Manker more than enough experience to compensate for the graduation of a quartet of seniors who provided last year's club with most of its offensive punch.

This year's offensive charge will be led by sophomore forwards Taya Drost and Erika Kammermann, who are the team's top returning goal scorers after tallying six apiece in 1997. Kammermann led last year's club with 17 total points.

Senior forward Katy Conlan, with 25 career points including a team high nine assists last year, will also be an offensive spark-plug.

Sarah Schofield, Jill Ramsey, Lisa Skippergosh, Bridgette Browe and Mandy Webb will also see action at the forward positions.

The team's strength might be the play between the goal posts. Sophomore Kristy Shindorf returns as goalie after seven shut-outs last season en route to winning team MVP honors.

The keeper position is further bolstered by the return of Kelly Kusina, the 1996 team MVP, after sitting out last season with a knee injury. Kusina and Shindorf will give the Rayders a last line of defense that will be hard to beat.

Whoever tends the goal will have a solid core of fullbacks in front of them, limiting the shots on goal. Carrie Beemon, Brooke Block, Jenny Hater, Lindsey Carland, Kate Lord and Julie Swenor each will alternate between the fullback and mid fielder positions.

The Rayders have added some depth with a quintet of freshmen: Kelly Dreyer, Jesse Murray, Shannon Nystrom, Kate Romig and Abby Shaperkoter.

The Rayders, 2-6-1, have two 1-0 victories on their resume against Gaylord and Roscommon. The club has six games remaining before district play including this weekend's third annual Charlevoix Invitational with Elk Rapids, Roscommon and Reed City.

Elk Rapids and Roscommon will play at 5 p.m. Friday, May 8 followed by Charlevoix-Reed City at 7 p.m. A consolation game will be played at 9 a.m. Saturday, May 9 with the championship game expected to begin at 11 a.m.

TENNIS

Twenty-nine students playing on tennis team

The Rayders' tennis team is a nice blend of newcomers and veteran letter winners from previous seasons.

Overall, 29 students joined the team, with 17 of them playing varsity tennis for the first time. Twenty of the team members are from the freshmen and sophomore classes.

Coach Janet Freidinger is pleased with the number of newcomers to the team as it provides them an opportunity to learn a life-long sport.

Freidinger is in her first season as the head coach after helping out as an assistant in previous seasons. Vinnie Klooster and Cindy Brooks will help Freidinger out as assistants.

On the court, Dave Drury and Scott Pair, both sophomores, are the top returning single players while seniors Erik Halverson and Jamie Whitley and juniors George LaBlance and Wally Pair are the top returning doubles players.

In matches, the team roster is comprised of four single spots and three double teams, so the Rayders, Freidinger said, are still determining the team's order of play.

"This was our first week of regular practice and we're still in the process of playing challenge matches to determine the line-up," she said.

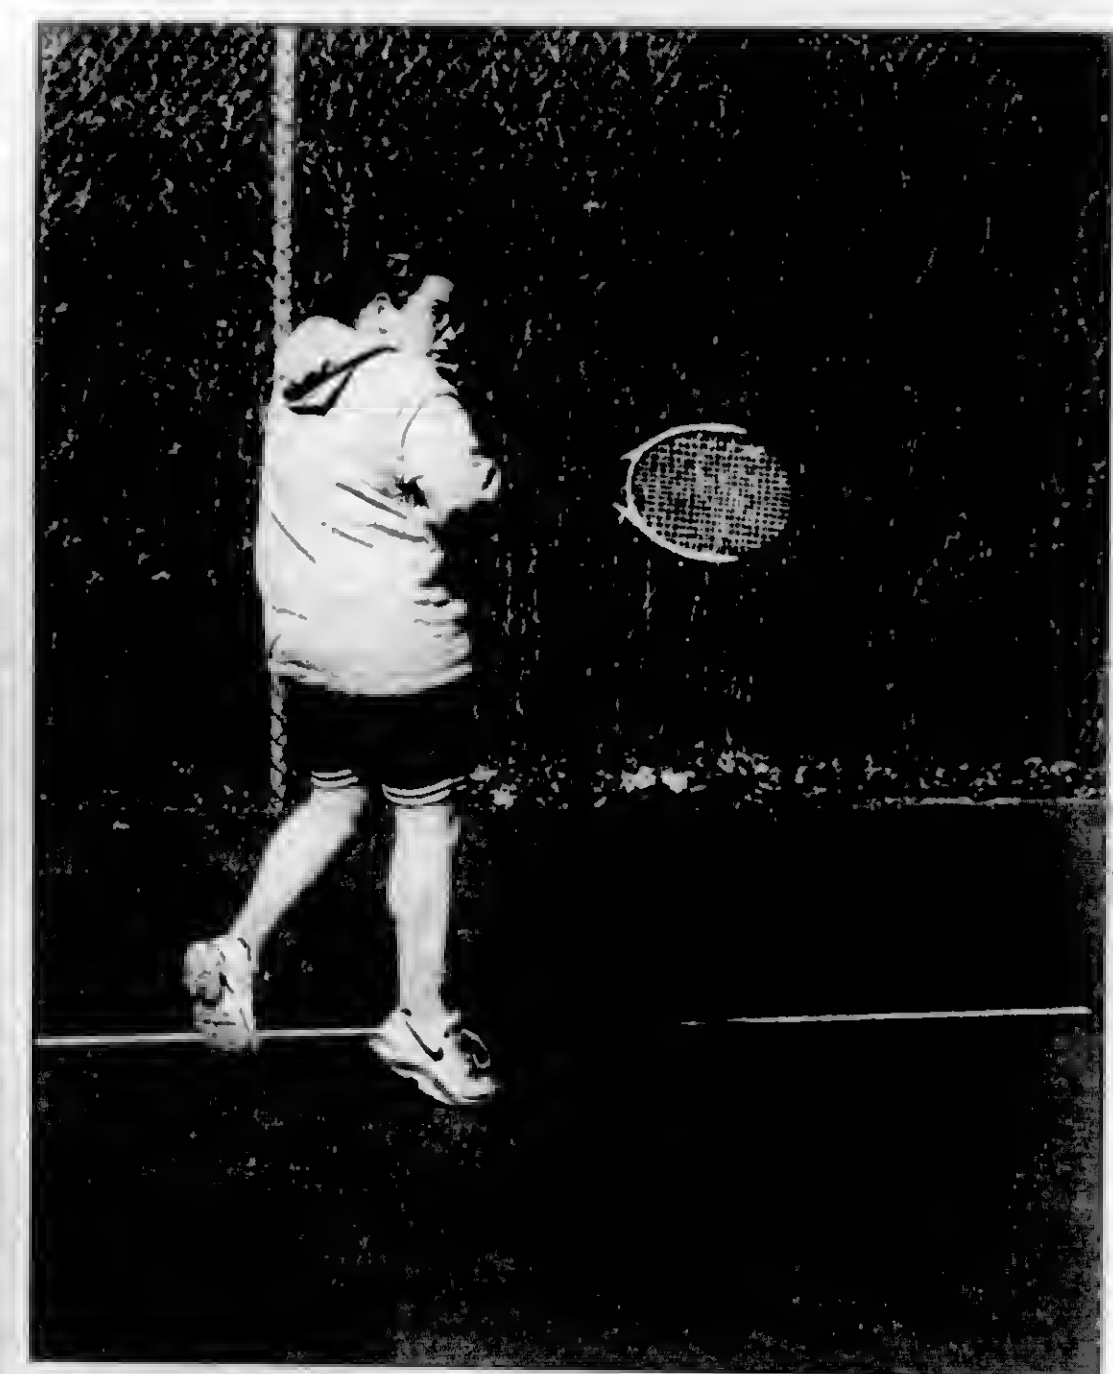

Freidinger noted that, beyond that, the immediate goals are to improve overall consistency and baseline play.

The club began play with dual matches against Harbor Springs and Traverse City-St. Francis. The home schedule includes three other dual matches, Thursday, April 16 vs. Elk Rapids; Wednesday, April 29 vs. Grayling; and Wednesday, May 6 vs. Boyne City. All matches begin at 4:30 p.m.

The season concludes with the conference championships Friday, May 8 and the regional finals Friday, May 15. Both events will be held at Boyne Mountain with starting times to be announced later.

SOFTBALL

Softball team is short on experience but long on potential

While this year's varsity softball team may be dominated with a lot of new faces, a familiar face has returned to lead the Rayders into action.

Ron Cox returns for his third stint of duty coaching Charlevoix softball after leading the club from 1985-86 and 1989-94. Cox's clubs earned the school two district titles in 1985 and 1992, and overall will be coaching his ninth spring of varsity softball.

This year's club is short of experience, but long on potential the coach said.

"As far as expectations, I wish I knew," Cox said. "If we can have fun, we'll be all right. That's the most important thing."

The club's nucleus centers around seniors Lyndsay Blechel and Mandi Barrett. They are the club's top two pitchers and when not on the mound, they will anchor the left side of the infield, with Barrett at third and Blechel at shortstop.

Sophomore Dena Sheldon will be the team's third pitcher and will rotate in the infield.

"I think we'll be fine pitching," Cox said. "With Dena, we have three who can throw hard, that's probably our strength."

Rounding out the line-up are infielders Becky Hosler, Andrea Arnold, Christine Sweeney and outfielders Rachel Thorp, Ann Spang, Krista Pearsall and Jessi Whitley.

Laurel English will be the team's catcher and Cox said Sweeney will see action behind the plate.

For the most part, though, Cox said positions are up for grabs because he's waiting to see who can play where under live action.

"It'll be a learning process finding out who can play where," he said.

The team plays eight home doubleheaders this year, including conference games with Traverse City-St. Francis Thursday, May 7 and Boyne City Monday, May 11. All games begin at 4:30 p.m.

Reunited: Brothers by birth find one another after 30 years

By Laurie Lounsbury

In all, there were nine brothers and sisters born to a couple who lived in Petoskey three decades ago. Nine children living — or at least existing — under one roof.

But in 1968, the seventh probate court found the parents of those nine children guilty of child neglect.

The children were permanently removed from their parent's home and placed in foster care.

For Charlevoix's Andy Stewart, the event isn't even a distant memory. He was the second-to-youngest child, only one year old when the children were divided up and placed in separate foster care homes.

Andy was adopted by a single woman, Jill Stewart, as a little boy. He has no memories of his birth parents or their lack of parenting skills.

He grew up in Charlevoix, attending Charlevoix Public Schools in happy ignorance of his brief, past life.

He didn't even know he had a brother in school with him.

"One of my brothers was adopted by a family in Charlevoix," Andy said. "We passed each other in the halls every day at elementary school, and I never knew it."

His blissful lack of knowledge of his early life ended in 1992, when a strange letter was passed along to him.

One of his unknown brothers living in Bloomington, Ind., embarked on a quest to find his missing siblings. The brother's wife wrote a letter to Vane Smith, who was then a school principal, asking if he knew of an adopted boy being raised by a single mother.

Smith did. After Andy's adopted mother passed away, Smith passed the letter along to Andy's uncle, leaving the matter in the family's hands.

"I knew I was adopted, but I didn't know any of the history," Andy said. "My mom didn't want me to know anything."

Andy slowly started to pursue the story of his brothers and sisters — a trail that brought him to a fateful Christmas day in 1996. He learned that one of his brothers, Pat Clay, was living in Pellston.

"I called him, and he came over that weekend to visit," Stewart said.

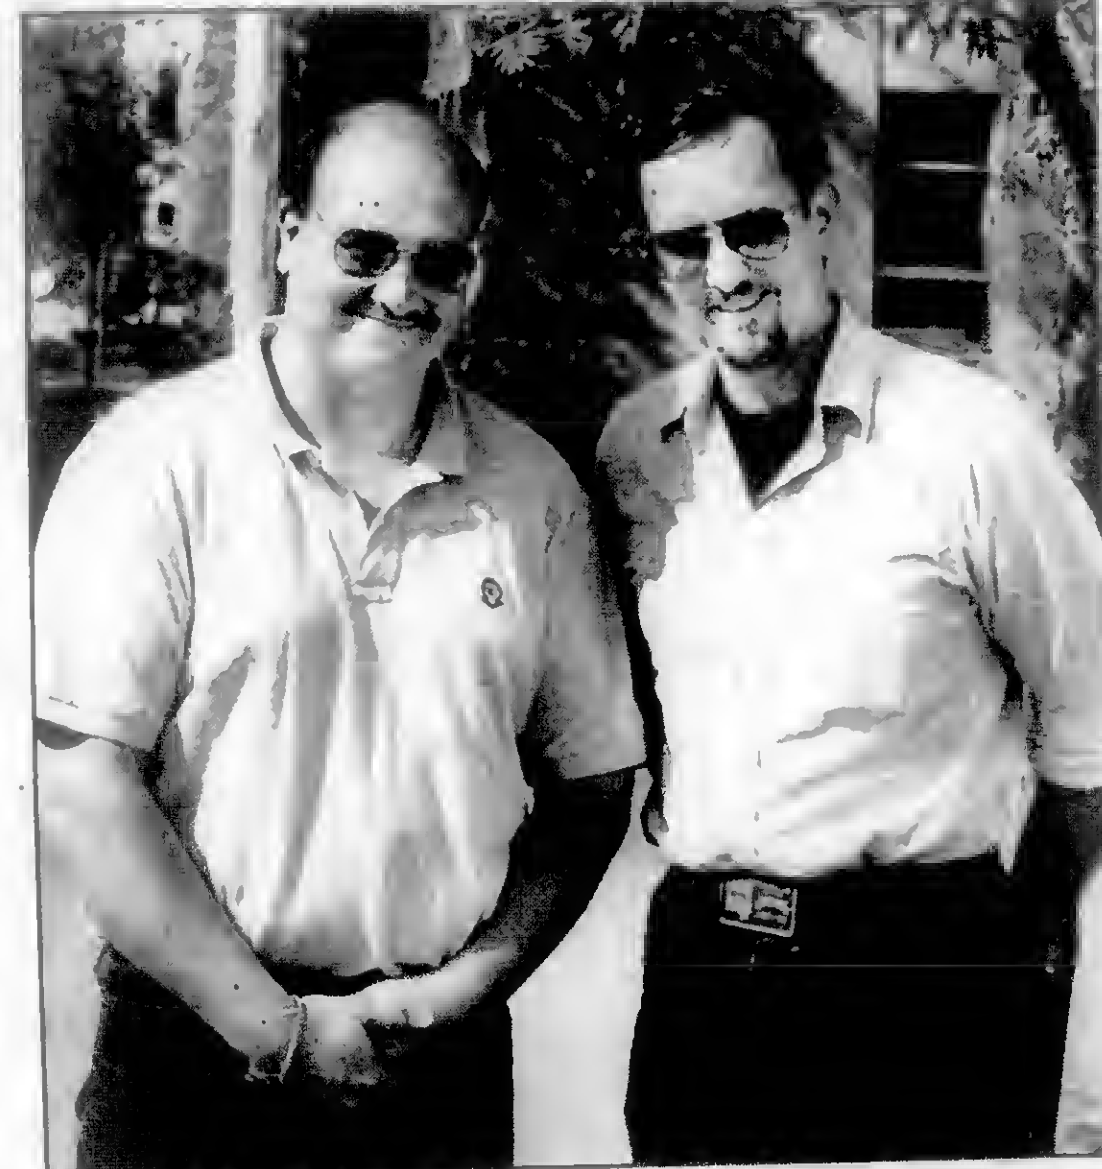

What Andy learned from Pat Clay was that many more siblings were all searching for one another. Another brother, Pat Edmonds, had found all the siblings except one — Andy Stewart.

"He was the missing link," Pat Edmonds said of Andy.

Pat had been looking for Andy for nearly a decade.

"I came up to Charlevoix in 1989 and stayed about a week, making phone calls, just looking for Andy," Pat said. "Andy was the lost brother no one could find."

Through Pat Clay, Pat Edmonds and Andy Stewart finally found one another. They talked on the phone for a year before Pat found the time to come to Charlevoix. The brothers were reunited last week after 30 years. Even though Pat was six years old and Andy was just a baby when they last saw one another, the bonds of brotherhood were still strong.

"It's like it stopped one day and took up the next," Pat said. "It's a totally different face than I remember, but the feelings are the same."

Unlike Andy, Pat remembers the years of parental neglect before the kids were placed in foster care. It's a subject he's uncomfortable with, even today.

Pat learned that three of his older siblings ran away from their adoptive homes and went back to their

City wants to reroute Marion Center Road

By Laurie Lounsbury

As Charlevoix summer resorters and part-time residents return to town, a common lament is being heard everywhere — M-66 is a disaster.

With the addition of the new post office on M-66 and growth in that direction, traffic snarls are increasing at an alarming rate.

"It's ridiculous right now," mayor Josh Barnes said.

The city council voted to take the first step toward correcting the problem.

After their regular meeting last week, city council went into closed session to discuss a possible land acquisition.

The council approved a motion to pay $5,000 for a 90-day purchase option on property between Marion Center Road and U.S. 31.

"We're working with the state highway department to divert Marion Center Road away from M-66," Barnes said.

The plan is to reroute Marion Center road over to U.S. 31, cutting across south of Buday's Sound Advice. The old portion of Marion Center Road that runs past the cemetery would then be closed.

Also getting altered would be the entrance to the city airport. If the Marion Center reroute works according to plan, the airport entrance road would be a continuation of Marion Center Road, straight across U.S. 31 and into the airport.

The city is working with the Michigan Department Of Transportation (MDOT) on the proposed project. If the city is able to buy the property, then the state will help pay for the project, providing curbs, turn lanes and a traffic light.

"The whole proposal is pending a public meeting with MDOT, which we hope will be scheduled very quickly," Barnes said.

The intersection of Marion Center Road and M-66 is just one thorny problem in a whole thicket of M-66 issues. Traffic turning into and out of Kmart Plaza, the post office, the County Post, Marvin's Gardens and other businesses along the state highway continue to confound drivers.

"This won't solve the whole problem, but it will be a step in the right direction," Barnes said. He added that when the city meets with MDOT, they plan to discuss turn lanes along M-66 and other methods to alleviate the existing traffic problem.

Two school staff members honored with awards

By Jamie MacMillan

When reflecting upon their careers in education, Roxy (Loding) Peevyhouse and Beverly Boss both attribute their longevity to the spirit of the students they serve.

"They really are the fountain of youth," Peevyhouse said. "You have to keep up with their world and not stagnate in your own views. They demand that from you."

Peevyhouse, a middle school art teacher, and Boss, a middle school office secretary, were given the Outstanding People in Education awards at a banquet at Boyne Mountain.

Nine other educators in Charlevoix and Emmet counties were also honored in a ceremony sponsored by the Michigan Education Association. Recipients are honored in one of two categories: classroom teacher or support staff.

"They really are the fountain of youth. You have to keep up with their world and not stagnate in your own views. They demand that from you."

— Teacher Roxy Loding Peevyhouse, discussing the challenges of being a middle school teacher.

she moved to the middle school and began her current job of running the main office and coordinating all the confusion and havoc that can come with the operations of a middle school.

"This is a fun place," she said. "It's enjoyable. I've never said 'Lord, I don't want to go to work today.'"

Over the years, Boss has noted a change in students.

All winners were originally nominated by the colleagues they work with on a day-to-day basis, which made the award more special in the eyes of the honorees.

"It really is nice because it's an award given to you by your peers," Boss said. "We're like a big family here at the middle school."

Boss began her career in education in the 1950s, when she worked in the East Jordan superintendent's office. After moving to Charlevoix to raise her six children, she reentered education, on a whim, to work with friends in the Charlevoix Elementary School cafeteria. In 1985,

She said they're much more self-reliant and are more interested in getting a job and earning some money at an earlier age. Despite that, her philosophy has remained unchanged.

"I take things one day at a time," she said. "Education can be such a challenge, but if you work as a team to do what needs to be done for the school, then the kids benefit. We're here for them — we need to always remember that."

Peevyhouse began her career in Charlevoix in 1971 after a brief stint teaching art at Pottsville schools. Arriving in Charlevoix, she found an art program consisting of just "five scissors and $500 in budget for more supplies."

Beverly Boss

She recalled spending about as much time asking the community for donated supplies and materials as she did in the classroom during that first year.

In addition to raising the quality of the art program, she said that, over the years her main priority has been raising the expectations students have for themselves.

"What I try to do is prove that each of them has the ability, if they're willing to play the game," she said.

Peevyhouse noted that if you place high expectations and don't "allow them to do crummy work," then in most cases the students will respond and work harder for you.

Her favorite moments occur at the end of each semester when she pulls out students' earlier works and sees their progression to become better artists.

For both Boss and Peevyhouse, the awards are a tribute to long-standing careers. Peevyhouse will retire at the end of this school year and Boss' will call it a career at the conclusion of next school year.

"I'm flattered and surprised," Peevyhouse said. "What a nice way to leave a good job."

Correction

A headline regarding a story about school coaches last week was incorrect. It should have said, "School might add new coaches next year." We regret the error.

What people are saying

"Sounds like Outward Bound for the Junior League set."

— Roscoe Serrels, after learning that a summer resort friend of his hit a channel marker in Florida and sank his 65-foot boat.

"A year from now we'll be up to our elbows with resumes."

— Middle school principal Dennis VanGuilder, commenting on the high number of expected applicants wanting to teach in Charlevoix. Thirteen teachers in the district will be calling it quits after the 1998-99 school year.

Charlevoix technology class takes home gold medal

By Jamie MacMillan

For Charlevoix senior Chris Romig, just being a part of the 1998 Student Robotics Automation Contest was memorable.

"Everyone wanted to be there and just to be around people with a common goal was rewarding in itself," he said. "Everyone was trying to do what we wanted to achieve."

Of course, a close second in the memorable category is the fact that Romig and his classmates from Joe Woods' manufacturing technology class won a gold medal for their effort.

Sponsored by the Society of Manufacturing Engineers, the 12th annual competition was the first weekend of May at Saginaw Valley State University. Over 550 students from 135 teams and 14 states participated in the event designed to showcase aptitude and creativity in the field of manufacturing, robotics and automation.

The contest was divided into 10 categories ranging from robot construction to product design to team effort to get it back working," Nick Faloon said.

As it turns out, it was a common problem as a humid, sticky afternoon wrecked havoc on the sensory devices of most other projects, Faloon said. As a result, judges gave everybody a second opportunity to show-off their wares before rendering final decisions.

While happy for themselves for the success they had, Woods' class enter, since Charlevoix was a first time entrant.

"They walked in cold," Woods said. "Not every design worked either. They went back to the drawing board many, many times."

Two late hiccups really tested the class's mettle. On the Thursday before the competition, the mechanical arm charged with loading the gun began faltering under the precision asked of it. While it didn't take long to correct the problem, Thursday night had evolved into Friday morning by the time it was fixed.

Trumping that moment was the actual day of the competition, when, as the judges made their way around the entrants, the Charlevoix students suddenly had a machine that wouldn't work as built.

Since part of the competition dealt with an oral presentation of the device, the group who was charged with explaining the device swept into action to keep the judges interested as the remainder of class fixed the machine behind them.

"That was real pressure, it was a team effort to get it back working," Nick Faloon said.

said their showing will prove just as important to the school.

"I think this will open a lot more opportunities for the school and students," Faloon said. "This is stuff that everybody needs to know if they want to go into industrial work and get a top job."

The class' Shell Shock 1,000 will be on display during a presentation to the board of education at their next meeting.

Another law suit filed over Venetian explosion

By Laurie Lounsbury

A second law suit over last year's Venetian fireworks explosion has been filed in Charlevoix's 33rd circuit court.

The suit has been brought by Charlevoix's Tad Dobrowski, his wife, Janet, and their sons, Christopher, Kyle and Adam. Tad lost an arm and a leg in the explosion when he was struck by flying shrapnel from a 12-inch shell that detonated in its metal casing.

The suit is similar to the first one filed by Charles and Diane Craddock, naming the same defendants, which include the city of Charlevoix, the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, the city fire chief Doug Carver, city police chief Dennis Halverson and city manager Mike Wiesner.

From the private sector the suit names Richard Davis, owner and operator of Fireworks North, and his employees.

Both suits claim that the city is not immune from civil liability because they engaged in an inherently dangerous activity.

Municipalities can be immune from civil law suits if people injure themselves in regular activities, such as stepping off a city curb or falling down in a park.

The suit said that "The handling and launching of fireworks of the size utilized in Charlevoix constitutes an ultra-hazardous and/or inherently dangerous activity... so the defendant municipality and its municipal actors (employees) are not immune from civil liability."

Another aspect that is mentioned in both suits is that they both charge the defendants with "res ipsa loquitur," which means the defendant has to prove their innocence instead of the plaintiff having to prove the defendants' guilt.

Louis Corey, attorney for the Dobrowskis, stated in the suit that the "res ipsa loquitur" charge was appropriate for the following reasons:

— Fireworks are activities that do not normally result in injuries to spectators;

— Plaintiffs were free from comparative negligence (they were not involved with the launching of fireworks);

— The explanation of the explosion is more readily available to persons who caused the injuries, particularly Richard Davis and Fireworks North;

— Injuries were caused from equipment that was permanently attached to trailers or being unloaded from trailers at the time of injury.

New neighbors share common interests

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

My two friends and neighbors on Michigan Avenue who practically live across the street from each other, have never met. Summer resident Beth Rosenthal lives in a "cottage" formerly owned by her grandparents, and June McIntyre moved onto our street only a year or so ago. I can hardly wait to introduce them to each other because they have so much in common, as you will see!

June McIntyre has produced several popular meditation tapes that she declares soothe the soul - but to my delight, her tapes always put me sound to sleep! Her comforting voice leads us in relaxed breathing while she expertly accompanies herself on a digital keyboard with flute, piano, strings, percussion and other digitally orchestrated musical sounds.

McIntyre first explored the field of meditation exercises as a kindergarten teacher. Since then she has held many seminars and currently has volunteered her services to the Women's Rehabilitation Center in Petoskey, where she has been well received by troubled women and children.

If you happen to ask her, "Why meditate?" Her answer is clear - to manage stress, to release tension and anxiety, to enhance concentration, to lower blood pressure, to open creative channels and, of course, to soothe our soul.

Her nurturing philosophy, then, leads us directly to the related topic of Elizabeth Rosenthal's new book titled, "Where to Go When You're Hurting: A Healing Resource Guide."

Beth Rosenthal has a background in business, health care management and consulting. She holds a PhD and an MBA from the University of Chicago's Graduate School of Business and a Masters in public health from the University of California, Berkeley.

"While there is a growing interest in holistic health, there is also a cautious reluctance to abandon conventional medicine, as if having one excludes the other," the author convincingly admits.

Writing like a medical insider, Rosenthal outlines various healing paths that are available to all of us. She lists the numerous healing institutions by state, as well as listing healing hospitals, healing retreats and spas, healing clinics and centers, including several pages of publications and web sites. In addition, she covers a variety of specialties including acupuncture, massage, breath work, herbal medicine and homeopathy medicine. She includes Chinese medicine systems and Ayurveda, both of which are thousands of years old. In addition she lists nutritional therapy, yoga, aroma therapy, and of course, meditation and sound therapy.

Anyone interested in obtaining a copy of either the book, "Resource Guide to Healing," or the "Guided Meditation" tapes can find them locally at the Bridge Street Book Shop.

Maybe the combined efforts of Rosenthal and McIntyre will have a calming influence on our town, like the mild, lapping waters of Lake Michigan on a windless day. Some of us might welcome a good dose of gentling this coming summer!

that government only has the authority to deprive someone of this right when an individual endangers or violates the rights of others. This is another example of usurpers changing an inalienable right into a privilege and is unconstitutional!

As for this being a federal mandate, I would suggest that we start taking the 10th amendment seriously before Washington completely runs everything. It is a sad day indeed when our congressmen and senators use our own tax money to bribe us into accepting federal edicts.

The festival is the culmination of a nine month search for the finest artistic talent in Michigan high schools. The selection process involves over 60,000 students statewide. Of those, 800 of the most outstanding students are invited to attend the festival. They share their talents with their peers and the public through performances and exhibitions. In addition, each student has the opportunity to attend clinics, workshops and master classes in his or her own discipline. Dance, theater, instrumental and vocal music (both classical and jazz), visual arts, creative writing, and film/video are included in the three-day event.

Pool needs more volunteers

The Charlevoix Community Pool is looking for volunteers to help man the front desk. Currently, about 15 volunteers fill 46 time slots every month. In addition to the individual volunteers, the Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix and Zonta have "adopted a day" to meet the volunteer needs of the pool.

The Friends of the Pool would like to increase the number of active volunteers to 60 in order to ensure that all time slots are covered.

The volunteer job entails checking in swimmers, collecting fees and selling passes and swim gear. There is plenty of time in between duties for volunteers to read, do crossword puzzles or whatever hobby they may wish to bring with them. An added benefit to the job is seeing friends and neighbors that come to use the pool and see children enjoying themselves.

The time slots needing volunteers are as follows:

— Sunday, 2-5 p.m.
— Monday through Friday, 5 or 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.
— Saturday, 9-11 a.m., 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., and 2-5 p.m.

There may be some variation due to program schedule changes.

Interested persons may pick up a volunteer information form at the pool or visit Dave Ward at the Charlevoix Federal Credit Union. For more information, call Dave Ward at 547-4433 during office hours or 547-3125 at home.

Tennis team struggles through conference meet

By Jamie MacMillan

Winning four of seven flights, Traverse City-St. Francis romped over the field in last week's Lake Michigan Division tennis finals at Boyne Mountain resort.

The Gladiators swept the top three singles flights as well as the No. 1 doubles flight en route to 17.5 points.

Gladiator pairs also reached the finals in the other two doubles slots, but were ousted, in each case, by a pair from Elk Rapids. The wins by the Elks placed them in a tie for second with Harbor Springs. The Rams' had one champion in the No. 4 singles flight.

Boyne City was fourth with 4.5 points and Charlevoix was fifth in the five-team field with 2.5 points.

Track team gearing up for regionals

Charlevoix's track and field teams warmed up for this Saturday's regional finals at Monday's 16-team East Jordan Invitational, with the Rayders' girls squad finishing a strong, albeit distant, second place.

Benzie Central took the top prize with 119 points, followed by the Rayders' 66 points.

"We had a good day with a lot of balance thrown in there," coach Ken Plude said.

Highlighting the afternoon was the Rayders' 400 relay team of Amanda Eaton, Kariann Miller, Angie Potter and Tricia Kelly, who broke the school record with a time of 53.0 seconds en route to a first place finish.

Kelly was a double winner, topping the field in the 100-meter dash.

The 1,600 and 800 relay teams placed second, as did Eaton in the shot put, who missed a school record by three-quarters of an inch.

Rounding out Charlevoix's point winners were Potter, fourth, 110 hurdles and fifth, 330 hurdles; Tri-

Scott Pair and Dave Drury, playing in No. 1 and No. 2 singles respectively, each advanced past the first round with straight set victories over opponents from Boyne City. Pair bested Randy Guznick, 6-0, 6-0 while Drury ousted Brian Guznick, 6-2, 6-4.

With a spot in the finals at stake, each lost to a competitor from Harbor Springs: Pair to Phillip Weston, 6-4, 6-3 and Drury to Randy Wood, 6-3, 6-2.

"We didn't do well in the team standings, but both Scott Pair and Dave Drury played two really good matches," coach Janet Freidinger said.

No other Rayder advanced out of the first round, but the No. 2 doubles' team of Mark Yager-Tom Cunningham did win a half point with a 1-6, 7-6, 6-4 win over Mark Pater-Justin Stubbs of Harbor Springs in the consolation round.

The Rayders warmed up for the tournament by dropping a pair of 4-3 contests earlier in the week to Whitmore-Prescott and Boyne City.

Pair and Jamie Whitley won singles matches against Boyne City while Erik Halverson-George LaBlance won a doubles match.

Against Whitmore, Joel Trubilowicz won a singles match and Yager-Cunningham and Craig Siwarga-Annie Martin each won doubles matches.

The Rayders will convene again at Boyne Mountain to conclude their season in the regional finals at 9 a.m. Friday, May 15.

Soccer team gets physical in invitational meet

By Jamie MacMillan

Using a physical style of play, the Elk Rapids Elks won this weekend's Charlevoix Invitational, allowing just one goal in the process.

The Elks pushed and shoved their way to a bruising 4-1 win over the host Rayders in the tournament final.

The game featured numerous collisions of players and twice had to be stopped to allow an injured player time to get back on her feet.

The Elks scratched the scoreboard first on a direct kick from 20 yards out. The Rayders, who had an earlier goal waived off due to an offside call, tied the score minutes later when Erika Kammermann knocked home an unassisted goal.

From that point on it was all Elks on the scoreboard. They scored on a breakaway rush and then on a deflected shot minutes before intermission for a 3-1 lead. Their fourth and final goal came on a direct kick from about 30 yards which sailed just above goalie Kristy Shindorf's outstretched fingertips.

Shindorf turned away 10 other shots, as the Elks used their grinding style to keep the pressure on Rayders throughout the game.

"We played pretty well, it was an even game," coach Hagen Manker said. "It was a matter of focus and concentration, letting how the game was called affect us. Hopefully, this will give us more incentive not to be intimidated by that kind of play."

The Rayders, 4-7-1, advanced to the finals by dominating Reed City, 9-0, in a game that had eight different Rayders tally goals. Kammermann scored twice and Shindorf, Lindsey Carland, Brook Block, Lisa Skippergosh, Kate Conlan, Mandi Webb, Taya Drost, Kelly Dreyer and Abby Schaperkott each added a goal.

The Elks, meanwhile, advanced with a 1-0 double overtime win against Roscommon. In the consolation game, Roscommon spotted Reed City the opening goal but reeled off six unanswered tallies for a 6-1 win.

Charlevoix concludes its regular season with a home game against Suttons Bay at 6 p.m. Thursday, May 14. The district tournament begins at 5 p.m. Monday, May 18 with Charlevoix hosting the Harbor Springs Rams. The winner will advance to play Elk Rapids Wednesday, May 20. The district finals will be at 5 p.m. Friday, May 22 at Harbor Springs.

Softball fees due for recreation league

This is a reminder that softball fees are due to the Charlevoix Recreation Department. Women's league, $100 fee is due May 29; men's league, $100 fee is due May 22.

Women's league games will be played Tuesdays and Thursdays and the season will start June 2. Men's league games will be played Mondays and Wednesdays and the season will start June 1.

There is still room available for more teams.

Taya Drost hurries to the bouncing ball on an offensive attack in a 7-2 Charlevoix win over Harbor Springs last Wednesday. Drost scored twice and chipped in an assist in the romp. (Photo by Jamie MacMillan)

Girls' track team on top

Advancing to the state meet will be the top two finishers in each event in addition to those who beat a predetermined time.

The teams are much improved from last year, so it could be a fun day for the Rayders. If prior meets are any indication, the girls will have a fighting chance to advance to the state meet in nearly every event.

"We can be a top five team, if everyone is on," Plude said. "Anything can happen in a big meet."

As for the boys, Evans' young squad has been impressive at times this season.

"They're coming along, for youngsters they're doing well," he said. "We'll have to wait and see about Saturday."

Walking in honor of friends and family

By Laurie Lounsbury

In a small town like Charlevoix, it seems everyone knows one another. It stands to reason then, that everyone knows someone who has battled breast cancer. After all, one in every eight women will get the disease.

"It's an epidemic, and we've got to figure out a way to stop it," said Judy Edger, steering committee member for the Sue DeYoung Memorial Walk. The walk is a local event to raise money for breast cancer research.

Breast cancer isn't something that "happens to someone else." It happens to our friends and relatives.

Because of that, Linda Moore, a member of the steering committee for the Sue DeYoung walk, came up with a new idea for this year's event. Every person walking to raise money for breast cancer research will receive a paper bib with a place to write in the name of a person they know who has breast cancer or has succumbed to it.

There will be a variety of bibs. Some say, "I'm walking in honor of my friend..." or "I'm walking in honor of my mother..." Other bibs are dedicated to sisters and aunts who have breast cancer.

For those who have died of breast cancer, the bibs say "I'm walking in memory of..."

Edger, who was diagnosed with breast cancer eight years ago, will have a number of names to write on her bib. She has lost close friends to breast cancer, and made new friends with breast cancer through support groups.

Edger was cancer-free for five years after her initial diagnosis. Then, two years ago, the cancer came back, metastasized in her bones and a small amount in her liver. At this point, it is somewhat controllable, but not curable.

For a woman like Edger, it's a race against the clock, surviving every day and hoping research will find a cure in time to save her.

"The trick is to hang in there and be positive and hope they make strides with new research," Edger said. "They come up with something new all the time. All this money raised is making that happen."

Edger acknowledges the importance of having small communities raise money for a big cause.

"I'm really proud of Charlevoix for raising so much money in this little town," Edger said.

Last year, Charlevoix raised $9,000 for cancer research. This year, the group hopes to reach a goal of $10,000.

The walk will begin with registration at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, May 16, at East Park. Walkers should pick up a pledge sheet as soon as possible at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, so they may solicit pledges.

"People are afraid to ask for money, but it's really simple," Edger said.

The walkers will follow a 2.5 mile course from East Park to Ferry Beach, then back to the Grey Gables for a reception. There is a $3 entry fee for all walkers.

Edger also noted that new support groups have formed in Charlevoix for anyone battling any type of cancer. One group meets at 12:30 p.m. every Tuesday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital cafeteria.

Another group meets at 7:30 p.m. every Thursday at the hospital.

"It's all pretty positive," Edger said of the support groups. "We give each other a lot of hugs. It's a really strong bond that's being developed."

Edger has her own positive way of viewing her situation.

"Life is a lot sweeter — I don't take it for granted anymore," she said.

For my friend...

Judy Edger shows the design for paper bibs that will be handed out to walkers at the Sue DeYoung Memorial Walk Saturday, May 16. The bibs will honor those who have breast cancer or who have succumbed to it. A $1,000 donation from Big Rock Point Nuclear Power Plant paid for the bibs. (Photo by Laurie Lounsbury)

How To Kill A BUSINESS ... in ten easy steps

Just assume everybody knows what you sell.
- 4. Don't Advertise
Convince yourself that you've been in business so long customers will automatically come to you.
- 5. Don't Advertise
Forget that there are new potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded.
- 6. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have competition trying to attract your customers away from you.
- 7. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise and that you don't get enough out of it.
- 8. Don't Advertise
Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling ... not an expense.
- 9. Don't Advertise
Be sure not to provide an adequate advertising budget for your business.

SCRAPBOOK

Getting ahead used to be easier

By Marilyn Boss
Special to the Courier

In 1950, Earl Young, a local realtor, had a special deal on lots he had owned for quite some time in the plat of Mt. McSaubia. Mt. McSaubia was platted in 1891, and 59 years later, 90 percent of the lots were still on the market.

Dale's shop teacher, Mr. Uno Suomela, told him that he bought one of the lots for $35, and he thought the lots next door were still available. At the time, Dale was making $40 per week, delivering milk door-to-door. In September of 1950, he stopped at Mr. Young's office, which was where the Apple Tree gift shop is now located. Mr. Young said he would give him a deal and sell him two lots for $60. Dale told him he thought one would be fine, and bought it.

The next week, after thinking it over, he went back to see if he could buy the one next to it for the remaining $25. Mr. Young replied, "Yes, to a nice young fellow like you, $25 would be okay. Besides, they are all outdoors." He then told Dale that he would give him a bargain of ten more lots for $100, but they were in the next block to the west, and no one thought you could get water there without going halfway to China. Later, another realtor in town, who owned the lot adjoining the two Dale bought, offered the lot to Dale. He said he would have to receive $75 for his lot, so Dale bought that one also, to square up the package.

Dale went down to tell his friend, Charlie Bleha, about his purchase. Charlie owned the Food Port grocery store, where Koucky's gallery is now located. Charlie said "You crazy kid, you'll never get back 10 cents on the dollar on that junk property behind the mountain." I'm still laughing about it, because six years later, out came Charlie, and bought four pieces of lake frontage that Ed Shanahan put on the market and built his home there, where he still lives today.

Dale had asked my parents for permission to marry me, but they said we were too young. I was 17 at the time, and Dale was 19. He decided the only way he could get permission was to build a house on the property he bought. He bought an old horse barn for $100, which was located in the alley at 310 Clinton St., behind the residence now owned by Dr. and Mrs. W.E. Mosher. The neighbors laughed again, saying we should have been paid $100 to tear it down. Every night after work, Dale and I tore the old barn down, board by board, and cleaned out every nail. We had some help from neighborhood kids, who thought it was a fun project. Dale took some of the boards to Charlevoix Lumber Company to have them sawed into usable pieces. Jim Hiller said they would do it for $1 a nail. The boards were so clean, that not even one nail was hit. Harold "Ike" Byers hauled the wood for us on his big stake rack Ford truck for $5. He didn't have the heart to charge a couple of kids any more than that.

Dale and I pooled our savings, and began building a house. We didn't have to ask any permission, get permits, or any title insurance — we just went to work. We worked all winter in our spare time. After working all day at our jobs, we went out to build all evening. We then had a house ready to move into the following June, when we were married. Our parents couldn't complain, for we had our home.

built and paid for. The real estate taxes on the whole kit and kaboodle were $2.34 that first year. During that time of intense building, we didn't go out courting like the other kids, but were together, working every spare minute. Sometimes we worked until three in the morning, when things like pouring cement and building our fireplace were going on.

We sent a picture of the completed house to Mechanix Illustrated magazine, and won their golden hammer award, and the picture was featured in their pages. With all the bureaucracy and red tape involved in building a house today, a young couple hasn't got a fighting chance. Where could you buy a building lot, 200 feet from Lake Michigan, today, for less than a week's pay? That is what we were able to do, back in the good old days.

The eight students making the trip were: Anora Ruehle, Jacqueline Mailloux, Brie VanDam, Katie Lieberman, Vicki Stevens, Carolyn Bellairs, Rachel Bellairs and C.J. Toton. The group began with a short performance on Saturday morning for the NMU Jazz Band and its director, Dr. John Cooper, who is shown here (left) working with students Rachael Bellairs and C.J. Toton. ## Brothers together again

birth parents, who had moved to Bloomington, Ind. Their birth father has died, but the birth mother still lives in Bloomington. Pat is determined to keep Andy away from his birth mother.

"I won't let him see her," Pat said.

"I have no desire to," Andy agreed. Like many young brothers, Andy defers to his older brother's wishes.

Pat has no desire to orchestrate a family reunion. He'd rather protect his baby brother from learning all the harsh facts of their early lives.

"There are things in the past that don't need to be brought up," Pat said.

"He (Andy) had a good mom, and he has good memories of her. It ought to stay that way."

Siblings Andy and Pat have formed their own special bond, the way kids in large families are apt to do.

"There are lots of things he does that I do. We have similar likes and dislikes. It's amazing," Pat said.

The brothers have no regrets about how their lives have turned out. Pat now lives in North Carolina where he is in the civil service at Ft. Bragg. Andy works at the Quiet Moose in Petoskey and lives in Charlevoix with his wife and family.

"The only regret I really have is that it's been 30 years since I've seen my brothers and sisters, but that's more or less destiny," Pat said.

Candidates file for election

It's been said that when people are happy with their local government, there isn't much citizen interest in running for office. If that's the case, Charlevoix must be loaded with happy constituents.

There will be no contest for any of the available seats in Charlevoix's city government.

Mayor Josh Barnes will not be seeking reelection. In his place, city council member Alvin "Butch" Russell has decided to run for mayor.

"After 10 years on the council, I decided it's time," Russell said. Barnes said he's not seeking reelection because he is confident in Russell's ability to do the job, and he is ready for retirement.

"Mr. Russell has been an outstanding deputy mayor and great mayor pro tem," Barnes said. "He runs a good meeting. I'm sure he'll

It's planting time!

What a difference a year makes. Last year, the annual petunia planting was scheduled for the Thursday before Memorial weekend, but frosty weather made that impossible.

This year, the petunia committee met in January and decided to plant the petunias later in May, due to last year's spring snow and frost.

This year the weather was much kinder, which would have allowed for an early planting, except the flowers were not ready.

The planting will therefore take place after Memorial weekend at 5 p.m. Thursday, May 28. A picnic will follow the planting in East Park. Hot dogs are free for all planters. Everyone is encouraged to line up along Bridge Street for planting. The task should prove to be much easier this year, with the colors of flowers mixed together.

MASB will be paid to help with superintendent search

current principal contract which runs through June 30, 2000 and pays him $69,530 in base salary this year.

Of course, Swenor may not be in the interim role for very long, should the board follow its own time line set during a superintendent search workshop earlier this month.

The board will meet on three different Mondays next month — June 8, 15 and 29 — to settle on which candidates to interview.

The candidates will be narrowed down to a field of six, and the board will interview two of them a night between July 6-8.

From there, the board will choose two finalists, go on home visits to those candidates' current districts, and do final interviews before settling on its top choice.

At a minimum, the board will offer a salary of $85,000 and they expect a host of different prospects to apply for the position.

To help with the search, the board approved hiring the Michigan Association of School Boards (MASB) for a fee of $5,500 plus up to $1,000 for out of pocket expenses. It was also agreed that should additional screening of applications be required due to the volume of applicants, the board would provide MASB with another $1,000.

In other action Monday, the board approved three different elementary school personnel changes.

Due to an expected growth in next year's kindergarten classes, the board gave permission to post an opening for an additional part-time teacher at that level.

The district currently has 87 students registered for next year's kindergarten, but if expected increases occur over the summer, that number could swell to as much as 122.

Prior to the last four school years, the average percentage increase between April registration and actual fall enrollment has been 40 percent.

Should that hold true this year, there would be 30 students in each of the four kindergarten sections. An extra section could reduce that number to no higher than 24, according to Swenor.

The decision to hire a part-time kindergarten teacher is a more pragmatic solution, Swenor said.

Currently, Stephanie Carey teaches four kindergarten sections as well as serves as a part-time middle school special education teacher. To have Carey teach a fifth section of kindergarten would prevent her from fulfilling her special education duties.

Swenor said it's easier to find a part-time kindergarten teacher than it would to find a part-time special education teacher.

The board also hired Helen Donahue as a new fifth grade teacher to replace Kathy Schofield, who is moving to the fourth grade, and Carol Madison will become a fourth grade teacher to replace Dixie Darling, who will be leaving the district after this year.

The board next meets at 7 p.m. Monday, June 8 in the high school study hall.

do an excellent job.

"I've done my four years," Barnes continued. "It's a lot tougher than people think, and it takes a lot more time than people think. We're lucky that Butch is willing to give the time to do it."

In the first ward, Don Meggison is vacating his seat, primarily for health reasons.

"I spent nine years with the county and four years with the city. I think that's enough," Meggison said.

In his place, Valerie Barnes will be the only person seeking election in the first ward. She is the daughter of Mayor Barnes.

"I think she'll do an outstanding job, too," Barnes said.

Valerie Barnes said she has no ax to grind with city government, but has an interest in community business.

"I just want to get more involved with the community," Valerie said.

In the second ward, Gabe Campbell is running unopposed, and in the third ward, Bernie DeVries will run unopposed.

Assuming Russell wins his unopposed bid for the mayor's seat, council will appoint a person to serve the one remaining year on Russell's second ward term.

Local woman celebrates Russian Memorial Day

The following story was written by Charlevoix's Janice Spurgeon, who is currently in Russia on a missionary trip. She shared in the Russian Memorial Day activities with her new Russian friends, and sent an E-mail account of the day to her friends in Charlevoix. This is her account of the day.

The square in perfect order with representation from all branches, both volunteer and regular service. The General proudly greeted each troop individually from his convertible car, with a salute and words of remembrance that it had been 53 years of victory. In the distance, the salute of the cannon was heard.

Yesterday, May 9, was another holiday in Russia. This was an important day, as they celebrated their victory over fascism in 1945.

This was a time to honor those who had given their lives for their country.

They say not one family here is untouched by the loss of someone throughout the years of war in this country.

The celebration began in the morning with the gathering of all the military troops and veterans for a parade. The troops lined around

This was then followed by a parade consisting of not only the troops but of hundreds of veterans. They continued to the memorial wall, a wall much like our Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C. There, a large wreath was placed in front of the eternal flame that burns in honor of the dead, as another tribute in music was played. They did not let the general public close for a short time, as it was a time for the veterans to reflect and pay tribute.

Eventually, they let us near, and tears were flowing as people remembered days gone by and loved ones. I was given some tulips by my young friend Natalie to place on the ledge in front of the flame along with the many others. This was our tribute, an even number of tulips for the dead. She also handed me three more tulips — an odd number for the living (both according to tradition) — and these were to give to the veterans.

We walked around and selected an old gentleman who proudly displayed many medals. We walked up to him and offered congratulations for the day of celebration. He proceeded to tell us his story of service in the war and the memories he held. We handed him the flowers and he said with a smile, "I shall place them in honor of the dead."

We proceeded to greet other veterans and listen to their tales, their stories of near-death trauma and bittersweet memories. People wandered around the wall as they sought out the names of distant relatives. In the midst of tears, they laid flowers or just lovingly touched the wall. Young people greeted the old with compassion and respect. People lingered for a long time.

The day continued with a concert and celebration, complete with fireworks to end the day.

It was not the Memorial Day service I am used to. It was a day of memories for the old and a day of learning for the young. It was a day to remember what had been and a desire to not face that suffering again, as well as a day to celebrate victory.

I realize that in America, we did not face the turmoil on our own soil as this country has, but we did face losses. I cannot help but wonder, have we forgotten the meaning of Memorial Day? Has it become just another commercial holiday that gives us a long weekend? Many do not even display the flag that day or take even a few minutes to pay tribute to those who have given us the land of the free, which I have come to appreciate very much.

As you make plans for the Memorial Day holiday, take a few minutes and praise God for those men and women who made this day possible for you. Remember the sacrifices made on your behalf. And pray for our current government, that we shall remain the land of the free. It is more than just a day of picnics at the beach. It is a day to remember and rejoice.

Timing of state MEAP test may have boosted scores

By Jamie MacMillan

When the state announced the results from this year's Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) test, local school administrators expected to see some sort of increase in scores.

Sure, they were confident their students and staff were up to the task, but the root of the expectations lay with the state switching the test dates from October to February.

"With the tests later in year, scores simply had to be better," Charlevoix Middle School counselor Steve Stargardt said. "We had an extra half-year between tests."

As a result, scores from Charlevoix and every other school district in the Char-Em I.S.D. rose from the previous years, and in most cases exceeded the state's averages.

The MEAP tests fourth and seventh graders in the subjects of math and reading and fifth and eighth graders in writing and science. Results were released earlier this month from the fourth and seventh grade tests.

In the Charlevoix's fourth grade, 75.9 percent were proficient in math and 63.9 percent were proficient in reading. In the seventh grade, 60.2 percent were proficient in math and 54.2 percent were proficient in reading.

For perspective, each figure represented an increase in scores from the MEAP test given in October, 1996. While seventh grade scores have remained steady over the last four years, the fourth grade scores continued with an up and down trend in math scores, ranging from 61.1 percent in 1994 to 71.1 in 1995 to 48.8 in 1996. Also, the reading score this year was the first time during that period that more than half of the fourth graders scored in the proficient range.

Elementary school principal Richard Swenor said the increase in reading scores could be attributed to a more study skills-oriented approach to reading, which includes instructing students in the art of highlighting important passages and the necessity to reread passages in order to pinpoint main themes.

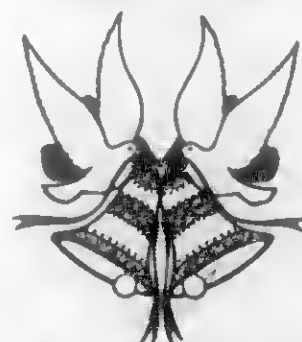

Middle School Principal Dennis

VanGuilder noted improved scores are the result of furthering efforts to align curriculum to match the basic requirements of the test. Also, more critical thinking exercises are being utilized in the middle school classrooms to reflect the nature of the MEAP test, VanGuilder said.

While the schools tinker with curriculum to match the test, state officials continue to tinker with the test itself. Next year, a social studies section focusing on history, geography, economics and civics will be included in the fifth and eighth grade MEAP test, while the writing section will be moved to the fourth and seventh grade test to combine with the reading for a more encompassing language arts section.

Crop Walk committee sets date for fall event

New fund raising goal also set

A date for the 1998 Charlevoix County Crop Walk has been set for Saturday, September 26, by the walk planning coordinators.

A goal of $18,000 was set to be raised by an estimated total of 180 walkers from the three county cities.

Those present at the planning meeting included: Marge Teske, coordinator for East Jordan and walk treasurer, Mary Barnum, East Jordan; Diana Walls, Boyne City coordinator; Kay Smith, Charlevoix coordinator, and other Charlevoix church representatives; Joy Malvorsen, Linda Matchett, Mary Helen Riggie, Velma Smith and Mary Towsley.

This is the 15th year for the Charlevoix County Crop Walk, which is sponsored by the County Ministerial Association.

In 1997 the walk raised an all-time high of $17,264 to counter hunger needs locally, nationally and globally. Twenty-five percent of the money raised is returned to the food pantries in each of the three cities. In 1997, that amount was $1,438.10 each.

BEACONS

Beacons of Blessing
By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

It is no secret that being a doctor is not always the easiest profession. Sometimes they seem cold or detached from us in the treatment process. It's not that they intend to, but being human right along with the rest of us, if they let themselves get too attached, it can make tough times really heart-wrenching.

Perhaps you heard the story recently under the heading of "Sometimes Even The Doctor Can Cry." It seems this one physician had been close friends with a married couple for many years. Try as they may, they could not have children. But one month the news was different. They had conceived. On the day the baby was born, however, there was a problem. Where the child should have had a right arm there was only a stump. The doctor looked at his friend and asked, "Do you want to tell her or shall I?" The husband indicated right away that he would break the news.

As the wrapped baby was placed into his mother's arms for the very first time, she looked up at her husband and said, "Isn't he perfect in every way?" She caught the look of warning in her loved one's gaze and as she pulled back the blankets and viewed her son she exclaimed, "Well if this isn't a miracle or what. The good Lord knew just who to send this baby to. He knew just how much we needed him and how much he's going to need us."

My heart just about jumped out of my chest when I heard that. Talk about perfect love, talk about faith, talk about believing in the face of some rather huge uncertainties, and there it is wrapped up in that mother's marvelous declaration. There isn't a parent here who shouldn't appreciate the wonder in those precious words. There are challenges that face each and every one of us from time to time, but if we start out believing from the first that we can reach our desired goals, half the battle is already won.

When we talk about having faith in the Lord, half the battle is also believing. To go from thinking about the eternal, to hoping about the eternal, to knowing your heart is secure in the eternal can be quite a pilgrimage. Jesus did the best He could to get the disciples comfortable with that idea in everything He did. He taught them about the true nature of faith but ultimately it was up to them to put it into practice and really believe. My role in these brief weekly visits is to also prepare your hearts. But it still is up to each and every one of you to take that final step and truly believe.

One of the things I have thoroughly enjoyed about substituting in the grade school this year is how, once the children know you are there to help them, they trust you completely. I wish more grown ups realize that Jesus is here to help you and you need to trust Him completely. Once the children open up, there is no limit to what we can explore together. If you will open up, you will never cease to be amazed at what Jesus wants to show and teach you.

Just like that mother could see the blessing rather than the challenge in her newborn son, Jesus looks at you and sees endless possibilities. He knows how much you need Him. He's hoping you will realize how much He wants to be needed by each and every one of us.

Gambling help offered

Legalized gambling is one of the nation's fastest growing industries. In 1995, the revenue for legalized gambling was estimated at $550 million dollars. Gambling for most people is a recreational activity. However, for an estimated 2 to 6 percent of the population, gambling becomes a compulsive disorder.

Warren Biller, Director of the Michigan Council on Problem Gambling, will be presenting a community education seminar from 7 to 8:30 p.m. May 27 at the Petoskey Holiday Inn. Biller is a recovering gambler who has dedicated his efforts toward educating the public and increasing the availability of resources for problem gamblers. Compulsive gambling, like many other addictions, is a progressive disease which can most effectively be treated at the earlier stages.

The seminar is free to the public and is appropriate for those who think they may have a gambling problem or for professionals in the health and human resource field that would like to learn more about problem gambling. For more information contact the Michigan Council on Problem Gambling at 1-800-270-7117.

Students' art show is always a crowd pleaser

The Charlevoix K-12 student art show last week displayed the art work of over 1,000 Charlevoix students, providing an ample amount of art for enjoyment.

Far right: Fourth grade student T.J. Bogart stands beside the snakes he made, which leap out from the wall. The rattle snakes were made in art class in conjunction with music class, where the snakes were used as percussion instruments.

Right: Brittany Niswander, fifth grade, stands next to her pop art project — a rendering of Jughead from the old Archie comics.

Local garbage hauler gets financial boost from feds

By Jamie MacMillan
As its competition merges and worries about the future of its local landfill, Top Rank Disposal learned last week it would benefit from a loan, sponsored by the federal government, of $714,000.

The United States Department of Agriculture, through its Rural Development program, approved a loan guarantee of $714,000 to Charlevoix State Bank for a loan to the Charlevoix-based rubbish hauling company.

United States Representative Bart

Stupak, (D-Menominee), called the business support of the Rural Development program "The best kind of public-private partnership."

For Top Rank owner Tom Rankl, the loan should provide a needed edge in a rapidly merging industry. When the company began in 1995, eight waste haulers provided service for the area. With the gobbling up of Waste Management by USA Waste which should be finalized this fall, the number of haulers will decrease to three.

"The waste business is so capital intensive that it prohibits the average Joe from entering," Rankl said. "It's not as easy as renting a storefront and selling T-shirts."

The three-year-old company services 2,500 customers a week and grossed $1.25 million in the past year. Top Rank employs 10 people and has a fleet of nine trucks. Rankl said the trash they pick up is deposited, in an even split, between the Cedar Ridge landfill in Charlevoix's Eveline Township and the Glens Landfill in Leelanau, eight miles west of M-72.

The company has ambitious plans for the money, including purchasing 300 more Dumpsters to "fill in the gaps" of its current service area, which extends from Eastport along M-88 to Harbor Springs along M-119.

The company will also increase its staff by six employees, and the first hire will be a salesperson to help build the company's commercial base, Rankl said.

The company's strength lies in its rural customer base, of which the company has about a 50 percent share. As far as commercial ventures with restaurants, industries and other businesses, the company lags with only a five percent share, Rankl said.

Other future plans for the company include the possible purchase of the building and 1.5 acres of land on South U.S. 31 where the company is based, and bolstering its fleet of trucks.

"I can't say enough good things about those who recognized the potential of this business," Rankl said. "This will allow us to make the next step."

Baseball team enjoys an almost perfect week of play

By Jamie MacMillan

When does a baseball game more resemble a hockey game?

When the final outcome ends in a tie, such as the nightcap in last week's doubleheader between Gaylord and Charlevoix.

The game was called due to darkness after eight innings with the Rayders and Blue Devils knotted at five apiece.

The deadlock was the only blemish on an otherwise perfect week that saw Charlevoix win three other games to up its record to 13-14-1.

Softball team drops two double headers

The Rayders softball team suffered through a light hitting week as the club was swept in two double-headers last week.

Collecting just six hits in each twin bill, the Rayders were shutout by Gaylord 8-0, 15-0 and 14-1, 10-4 against Cheboygan.

The Rayders prevented Gaylord

Saturday, they smacked out 21 hits en route to a doubleheader sweep of Cheboygan, 10-7, 9-6.

The first game featured 3-for-3 at bats for both Matt Horon and Ryan Bier, sparking the Rayders to a two-run lead each of game's first two innings. Bier belted his first home run of the season in the game.

Steve Speigl had three hits, including a triple, and Justin Thorp doubled to lead the Rayders in the second game. Charlevoix jumped on the Chiefs for a six-run second inning to give them an early cushion.

from a big hitting attack in the day's second game, but nine bases on balls propped up a Blue Devil attack that had just five hits of their own during the contest.

Against the Chiefs, Charlevoix was limited to just one hit in the opener, and despite flashing a bit more muscle in the nightcap still Jeremy Himebauch pitched six innings for the win in game one while T.J. Carey went four-and-one-third innings in game two for the win.

Prior to the tied contest at Gaylord, Charlevoix used some nifty base running and poor Blue Devil fielding to push across an 8-6 win.

The Rayders scored on a suicide squeeze, twice by advancing home from third after Gaylord players balked, and twice more after errors. Charlevoix played a doubleheader vs. Petoskey Tuesday, and will next play at home at 4:30 p.m. against Central Lake.

Lift-a-thon to raise money for football team summer training

The Charlevoix Rayders 1998 football team will be using an old preseason tradition in attempt to raise money for upcoming summer camps.

The Rayders will be hosting a Lift-A-Thon at 7 p.m. Wednesday, May 27 at the high school gymnasium.

Teammates from both the varsity and junior varsity squads will receive monetary pledges to be paid off based on how many pounds they can bench press during the event.

For example, a 5 cent pledge would pay out $5 for a 100 pound bench press.

All money raised will go toward payment of two summer camps the Rayders hope to participate in, the first of which will be held in town Monday, July 20 and Tuesday, July 21.

Leading the camp will be former Charlevoix defensive coordinator Plas Presnall, currently the running back coach and recruiting coordinator for Central Michigan University. The camp will also include instruction from five other assistant coaches on the Chippewas' staff.

The team also will kick off their official practice sessions with a three day camp Monday, August 10 to Wednesday, August 12 at the Camp Grayling Military Base.

"Both camps will be new for us, and give us a chance to work on fundamentals," Charlevoix coach Todd Klinger said. "It's a win-win situation for all of us, and hopefully people will come out to the lift-a-thon to see how hard we've worked in the off season."

Dunmaglas Golf Course hosting two fund-raising golf events

Dunmaglas will be hosting the Boyne Valley Fire and Rescue Unit Four-person golf scramble at 2 p.m. Saturday, June 6.

The scramble is to raise funds to help support the local fire department. There will be prizes on all par three holes and long drives on the front and back nines.

The cost is $75 per person and includes a grill buffet.

For more information, or to book a tee time, call Becky Ordway at 547-4653.

Dunmaglas will also be hosting the Michigan State University Alumni club golf outing at 8 a.m. Saturday, June 13. The event is to raise funds for a scholarship to MSU. The scholarship will be awarded to a high school student in the Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan counties.

The cost is $75 per person and a buffet lunch will follow the golf.

The outing is a four person, best ball scramble. For more information, call Jeff Wellman at 582-2400 or Becky Ordway at 547-4653.

Rayder girls' track team sends 10 to state meet

By Jamie MacMillan

A notable first occurred during Saturday's track and field regional finals at East Jordan, and that's not to mention the first-ever sunburn while covering a spring sporting event.

Instead, it was the girls' pole vault competition, a new event to girls' meets this year, that pushed forward its first finalists to the state meet, one of which was Angie Potter of Charlevoix.

Potter, who jumped 7 feet, 6 inches, placed second behind Inland Lakes' Jennifer Haight, but still qualified for the state finals Saturday, May 30 at Midland High School.

The top two finishers in each event, in addition to those who beat a predetermined time or distance, qualified for state.

Potter began her pole vaulting career midway through this season, and her first competitive jump was just six feet.

"It looked fun to get up as high as you could and then fling over the bar," she said of how her interest was piqued in the event.

Potter sprained her ankle on one of the day's first jumps, but continued to compete in a variety of events because, she said, as a senior it would be her last chance.

"I tried to do a little better with each jump this year," she said. "The competition really pushes me to go farther."

Potter's achievement also ensured that the Lady Rayders would have representation at the state meet in all four disciplines of a track and field meet: sprints, distances, relays and field events.

"It's a lot of fun that way," coach Ken Plude said. "It's a good number to take to states, and they've all worked so hard to get there."

In all, 10 Rayders advanced to the year's final meet, leading Charlevoix to a third place finish in the 17-team regional field.

Kingsley, last year's state champions, nudged by Benzie Central to take the regional title. Area teams Harbor Springs, Inland Lakes and East Jordan were on the Rayders' heels to round out the day's top six teams.

The Benzie Central boys' crushed the field in their meet, besting second place Lake City by 28 points. Charlevoix, which didn't qualify anyone for the state meet, finished with just three points for a 18th place finish in the 19-team field.

In this meet, it was the girls who drew the spotlight, highlighted by all four relay teams advancing into the state field.

Qualifying were: The 400 relay team of Amanda Eaton, Karianne Miller, Tricia Kel-

Carl Goff exerts as much as he can to push the shot put through the air. Goff advanced into the meet's final round, but fell just short of a medal.

ly and Potter, which finished third and broke a school record with a time of 53.02 seconds.

The 800 relay of AnnMarie Terryberry, Jamie Gowell, Kelly and Eaton placed third.

Flanked by two competitors, Charlevoix's Tricia Kelly motors down the straightaway in the finals of the 100 meter dash. Kelly crossed the finish line in 12.9 seconds, placed fifth and qualified for the state finals. (Photos by Jamie MacMillan)

The 1,600 relay team of Laura Schairbaum, Eaton, Gowell and Terryberry placed third and was bolstered by Terryberry's anchor leg, which she ran three seconds faster than any of her previous times.

The 3,200 relay team of Schairbaum, Candice Vandergriff, Liza Gorkiewicz and Tricia Hodge placed second.

In the 100 meter dash, with a field that saw all eight finalists advance to the state meet, Kelly finished fifth. In the 3,200 meter run, Hodge placed second in one of the day's most grueling events due to strong head winds and extreme heat.

"The long distance runners were really fighting that wind," Plude said.

Earning regional medals, but not qualifying for the state meet were Eaton, fifth in shot put and Hodge, third in the 1,600 run.

Tennis team finishes sixth in regional finals at Boyne

Four Rayders won matches, leading the Charlevoix tennis team to a sixth place finish in last Friday's 10-team regional finals at Boyne Mountain resort.

Traverse City-St. Francis won the championship with 21 points, while Elk Rapids ended in second place with 18 points. Both teams advanced to this weekend's state finals.

Harbor Springs finished third, followed by Glen Arbor-Leelanau, Leland, Charlevoix, Grayling, Boyne City, Maple City-Glen Lake and Northport.

Scott Pair advanced the farthest of all Charlevoix players, reaching the third round of the No. 1 singles' competition.

After a first round bye, Pair bested Jeff Schwaiger of Maple City-Glen Lake, 6-2, 6-0 before being eliminated by Jason Pratt in the next round.

Other Rayders advancing out of the first round were: In No. 3 singles, Jamie Whitley topped Nate

Mitchell from Northport, 7-5, 6-2; No. 1 doubles, Erik Halverson-George LaBlance, 6-2, 7-5 over Leelanau's Bri Burke-Kristen Maynard; and No. 2 doubles, Mark

Yager-Tom Cunningham, 6-1, 6-0 over Northport's Kylan Kilcherman-Ken Lewis.

Dave Drury, No. 2 singles, Joel

Truhilowicz, No. 4 singles and Craig Siwarga-Dennis Mitchell, No. 3 doubles, each dropped first round matches.

SCRAPBOOK

Young Charlevoix soldier died in French battlefield

By Geoffrey D. Reynolds

For some time it has been unclear as to which fighting men Veteran's Park was dedicated. With the help of archival materials housed at the Harsha House Archives of the Charlevoix Historical Society and city records, those names can now be noted.

While the United States did not send men to fight during the early years of World War I, many Charlevoix County men gave their lives in the last years of the war. Beginning in May of 1918, Charlevoix's local draft board be-cases they received there.

The men Charlevoix citizens choose to honor with the building of Veteran's Park totaled eight. According to city records, the property was given to the Leslie T. Shapton Post of the American Legion on January 23, 1922, with the understanding that it would be developed into a veteran's park within two years. After the acquisition of the property, the following men were honored with the planting of a tree that has been periodically trimmed to extreme in order for townspeople to remember how these men's lives had also been cut short by the war: Dean Charles Scroggie, Leslie

Thomas Shapton, Ray F. Solomon, George W. Crouter, Joseph Holocheck, Levi Lewis, Harry Potter and Joseph Eugene Powers. As you can see, Shapton was honored, like so many World War I veterans, with the designation of the local American Legion post in his name.

This Memorial Day, stop and visit Charlevoix's newest renovated park and remember why those trees are so important to preserve and let stand as one of many local memorials to Charlevoix's war veterans.

Corporal Leslie T. Shapton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Shapton, died July 18, 1918. He was 21 years old when he was killed in action while serving as a Marine officer with the American Expeditionary Forces during World War I. Shapton was born April 11, 1897 in Barnard, where he was raised. Later, he moved to Charlevoix, where he graduated from high school in 1916. The following fall he attended the University of Michigan. He enlisted in the U.S. Marines Jan. 15, 1918. On April 22, 1918, he departed for Europe, landing in France on May 9, 1918. He saw active service on the front line trenches and he died in a wheat field near Vierzy, France, in the big Soissons offensive. He was cited for bravery. His body was returned to Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix on May, 1921.

Victors over Math Challenge

In March, a group of Charlevoix high school students participated in the NCTM Math Challenge at Traverse City High School. They are (from left) Jeannette Bohn, Nathan Bartlett, Cailin Dulaney, Kevin Evans, Jon Tebeau and Laura Schairbaum, who placed third in the meet. The students did extremely well in the Theme portion of the contest where they had to explain to judges how they answered specific questions.

Building fees levied for court time

fee, so, for example, if you needed an electrical permit for your new 1,300 square foot pole barn you would have to pay $130. In the past, such a permit would have cost $105.

Any additional inspections will also increase from $20 to $30.

The fee increase will not go into effect until new forms are ordered, perhaps mid to late summer.

The increase comes on the heels of the board raising overall building fees in January. Those fees had not changed since 1984.

Commissioners also approved a contract between the inspection department and the city of East Jordan, which will pay the department $40 an hour for time spent inspecting buildings.

The contract says East Jordan will also pay the department a similar fee for any courtroom time that inspectors log to be expert witnesses as the city enforces its building codes.

East Jordan city manager Dave White said the city council has given tentative approval to the contract.

The agreement is a first between the department and East Jordan, and commissioners said similar agreements with the county's other municipalities could follow.

The board next meets at 7 p.m. Wednesday, May 27.

More law suits filed over Venetian explosion

By Laurie Lounsbury

The list of defendants grows longer and the charges grow more serious with two new law suits filed over the Venetian fireworks explosion.

Lisa and Mark Sokolowski of Kent County filed a suit last week, as well as the Mark Yager family of Charlevoix. Mark Yager was a 43-year-old radiology technician who was killed by flying shrapnel from a 12-inch shell that detonated in its steel tube during last year's Venetian fireworks display.

The Yager family suit, brought by Mark's wife, Deborah, and children, Megan, Mark A., Katie and Emily, includes a charge of wrongful death. The wrongful death count sets the suit apart from previous suits filed. Deborah Yager also suffered injuries in the blast, including a severe laceration of the right knee resulting in permanent injury, a severe contusion to the right shoulder and neck.

loss of wages, physical pain and suffering, and mental anxiety and depression.

The Yagers are represented by attorneys Robert Scott and Drew Masse of Toledo, Ohio. In the Sokolowski law suit, the defendants are similar to the other law suits, with the addition of city clerk Joanne Patrick and city attorney Jim Young.

"I named the city clerk because she signed the permit, and I named city attorney Jim Young because he was present at all discussions about the fireworks display," said attorney John Tallman of Grand Rapids, who is representing the Sokolowskis. "Jim Young was also Richard Davis' attorney (prior to the explosion.) I think he's got quite a lot of responsibility here."

Also added to the list of defendants were the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, the Venetian Festival, chamber president Jacqueline Merta, and John Taylor.

Venetian Festival chairman.

From the private sector, fireworks operator Richard Davis was named along with his employees and companies. An additional company was also named as a defendant — Wolverine Fireworks Display of Kawkawlin, Bay County.

"There was a reference in the police report that they may have manufactured the fireworks and trailer components," Tallman said. "Richard Davis said he bought them (fireworks) from Wolverine, and said he bought trailer parts from them. In a law suit like this, you want to name everyone responsible."

Lisa Sokolowski's left leg was nearly severed below the knee in the fireworks blast. She also suffered lacerations to her left ear, pain and suffering, shock, anguish and fright. Her husband, Mark, suffered loss of society, companionship and consortium of his wife from the explosion, according to the suit.

Tallman said the city acted without authority (ultra vires) when they approved the fireworks permit, which was the proximate cause of Sokolowski's injuries.

Ultra vires, or acting without authority, means the city did not follow a Michigan statute and issued a permit without adequate liability insurance, despite the pyrotechnic operator's (Richard Davis) demonstrated lack of qualifications and disregard for the law and without regard to safety aspects of fireworks.

Tallman said the city and its representatives had an obligation to follow the standards recommended by the National Fire Protection Association.

"There's no law, but there is the standard," Tallman said. "If you don't rely on these, what do you rely on?"

No specific amount of monetary damages was mentioned in either suit. Both said they would be seeking more than $25,000 in damages.

Four candidates seek three seats on school board

By Jamie MacMillan

At first glance, the best way to describe this June's school board election is — what a difference a year makes.

Last year, seven candidates vied for three positions and two ballot issues stoked interest, controversy and, at times, ill feelings.

With no ballot initiative stirring the pot, only four candidates signed on for the available three seats.

Two — Ardeth Wieland and

Dennis Halverson

Dennis Halverson — are running unopposed for four-year seats on the board.

Wieland has been on the board for 25 years, while Halverson would be a freshman to the world of school politics.

The city of Charlevoix police chief ran during last year's election but fell just short in his bid for office.

That leaves the battle between Dwight "Ike" Boss and Michael MacMillan for a shortened two-year term as this year's only election drama.

The seat they're vying for originally belonged to Jerry Owens, who was elected in 1996. Owens resigned last year in the aftermath of the election and the controversial vote to buy the M-66 land. The board then appointed Pete Speiles to take his place for one year before an election would be held to finish the term. Speiles declined to run.

The same pair dueling for a one year seat during last year's election, won by Boss by a 875-641 margin.

Dwight Boss

Boss is a teacher in the Ellsworth school district and the city of Charlevoix's recreational director. MacMillan is a nurse anesthetist at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Both are Charlevoix residents and both highlighted three issues that should drive the board of education during the next year — a new superintendent search, balancing the budget and enacting a viable facility plan.

The most compelling difference between the candidates may be their direction towards a new facility plan.

Boss has long supported a new middle school as opposed to any other building and pinpoints two locations on the north side of town — across from Stroud Hall on Old Orchard Rd. and between U.S. 31 and Division St. across from the Community Reformed Church as the place to do it.

MacMillan, however, said his mind remains open in terms of both location and type of school that needs to be pursued. He said the board needs to present its vision of future facilities before trying to sell anything to the voters and that he's disappointed the board is no closer to a new facility now than it was one year ago.

"Everything needs to be looked at until we get the community behind it," he said. "As of now, no progress has been made as to what to do."

As for other issues, Boss called the hiring of a new superintendent, "the most important decision the board will make for the next ten years."

The board hopes to conduct final interviews and hire a new leader in July, but MacMillan said it's important not to rush a decision to fit a set timeline.

"We need to make sure we have a good match between candidate and community," he said. "The new superintendent needs to fit in and be a part of the community."

Both said ensuring the budget is balanced remains a priority and that student-teacher ratios should not be increased to save money. Boss did say, though, that it was not as high a priority at the middle and high school levels. It might be prudent not to replace teachers who are leaving the district through the early retirement incentive at those levels, he said.

Both were leery about adding anymore extra-curricular activities and sports teams.

Election day is Monday, June 8.

Don't forget to plant petunias

The Keep Charlevoix Beautiful Board invites you to come and plant with young and old at 5 p.m. on Thursday, May 28. The annual "Petunia Planting" will be from one end of town to the other and the annual "Petunia Picnic" will be at 6 p.m. in East Park.

The board has had great support this year for "goodies" at the picnic, and "goodies" on the tickets. Dale Boss "the operation petunia man" has been busy with the city people getting the ground ready. Jean Seymour has coordinated all the food, deliveries, cooking and clean-up with Patti Sitzema's help. Jean Spagnuolo and Joe Vogelheim have organized all the block captains to assist anyone coming to plant. We are grateful for the support of the block captains. The purpose of the board is to "Keep Charlevoix Beautiful with petunias." The group needs to raise between $9,000 and $12,000 annually for the flowers, weeding and truck maintenance. The group will have T-shirts, license plates, memberships and tickets on sale for $10 to Vegas Night on the Emerald Isle, July 11. We also have a growing list of benefactors contributing $100 and more to support the Petunia Project. The board continues to welcome new benefactors. Call Joanne Curtis, 547-5494, for more information. The Keep Charlevoix, Inc. mailing address is P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

What people are saying

"I don't care which rest stop it is, as long as it has a lot of toilets. I want to continue to get a lot of input from the public."

— Senator Walter North, at the Emerald Isle dedication, explaining how he chose the rest stop area to be named after him.

"This will be hard for Mary. She's not used to breaking a perfectly good bottle of wine."

— Unknown person, commenting on Mary Bert McDonough's task of breaking a bottle of champagne on the bow of the Emerald Isle ferry boat.

"If you wanted to hurt someone with a bomb, you'd elevate it, just like the Venetian fireworks were elevated on a trailer."

— Attorney John Tallman, who is representing Mark and Lisa Sokolowski in a law suit over the fireworks explosion. The suit claims the city acted without authority when they issued fireworks permits, by disregarding standard safety recommendations.

Irish eyes were smiling at the Emerald Isle dedication

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, May 27, 1998 — PAGE 3

By Laurie Lounsbury

Like St. Patrick's day, everyone on Beaver Island was Irish last Saturday, when the newest ferry boat, the Emerald Isle, was officially dedicated in the St. James Harbor on Beaver Island.

Politicians told bawdy Irish jokes to the huge crowd gathered at the boat dock, while the sun coaxed Irish freckles out of the throng of upturned faces.

The 450 people who rode the Emerald Isle from Charlevoix to St. James were in a rollicking mood after being entertained during the smooth passage by a 10-piece brass band.

Fiona Flood, vice consul of Ireland to the United States, was one of the key speakers at the ceremony. She may have expressed the most accurate sentiment of the day. With her lilting Irish accent, Flood told the crowd that in Ireland, there are no beavers, and hence, no word "beaver" in their vocabulary.

"In Gaelic, we have a word, 'blover,' which means full of life," Flood said. "Maybe the first Donnegals who settled here christened this place Biover Island, because it's so full of life."

The island was indeed full of life before, during and after the Emerald Isle dedication.

Following tradition, Mary Bert McDonough, the oldest island resident, had the honor of christening the ship. For senior island residents, it was a flash of déjà vu. Forty years ago, Mary Bert's mother was the oldest island resident, who christened the original Emerald Isle ferry boat.

The Emerald Isle is owned by the Beaver Island Transportation Authority and leased to the Beaver Island Boat Company. It took the combined efforts of both groups to make the Emerald Isle become a reality.

While many politicians spoke of "the luck of the Irish" when they discussed the long process that made it possible for the Emerald Isle to be built, Charlevoix city manager Mike Wiesner had a different viewpoint of it.

Clockwise, from top: Local musicians entertained the crowd while the Emerald Isle pulled up to the dock. Mary Bert McDonough successfully christened the Emerald Isle. Beaver Island Boat Company President Bill McDonough thanked supporters. Former captain Lawrence McDonough escorted Mary Bert to the ship.

Obituaries

Jackson Bruce Laucher

Jackson Bruce Laucher, 49, of Charlevoix, went to the Lord Friday, May 22, 1998, at his home in Charlevoix.

Memorial services will be at 4 p.m. Wednesday, May 27, at the Cross of Christ Lutheran Church in Petoskey. The Rev. William Heil will officiate.

Jack was born April 25, 1949, in Detroit, Mich. His parents, Charles and Betty Joanne Laucher adopted him in March of 1957. He grew up on the family farm in Waldo, Ohio and attended River Valley High School, where he graduated in 1967. In 1971, Jack obtained his B.S. degree in special education, and in 1977 earned an M.A. degree in learning disabilities from Bowling Green State University in Bowling Green, Ohio. A second M.E. degree in administration was awarded to him through Central Michigan University in 1995. Jack was a special education teacher with Char-Em Intermediate School District since 1987, working with students and teachers throughout northern Michigan. Jack held office in the Council For Exceptional Children and served on state committees to improve special education services. Jack served as Scoutmaster of Charlevoix's Troop 11 for several years.

Jack was married to Sandra Stefania Wyszynski on July 15, 1971. Two sons, Andrew Alan, born April 24, 1977 and Adam John, born Dec. 6, 1979, made the family whole. The Laucher family moved to Charlevoix in August, 1987 and have made a fine home in the area.

Jack loved life, his wife, Sandi, children, Andrew and Adam; friends, students and all the outdoors. He was an expert sailor and outdoorsman; he endeavored to share all he knew with others. Jack treated everyone with dignity, kindness and respect. He loved the Lord and let that love shine through to all whose lives he touched. That love will be with us forever.

Jack is survived by his wife, Sandi; two sons, Andrew and Adam, all of Charlevoix; his parents, Charles and Betty; one brother, Alan; one sister, Cheryl; two nieces, Whitney and Ravac, all of Waldo, Ohio. Dear friends and associates are spread all over the world.

In lieu of flowers, Jack requested that memorial contributions be made to Cross of Christ Lutheran Church in Petoskey or to the "Jack Laucher Outdoor Adventure Memorial Fund," care of Char-Em ISD in Charlevoix.

A memorial visitation was Tuesday, May 26 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Pastor Heil held a small prayer service near the end of visitation.

OF BLESSINGS

down and we long for a day when we will be truly free from that which pursues our destruction.

Many of us convince ourselves and others that we know exactly who we are. "I am a carpenter, a doctor, a _____ you fill in the blank. Our society tells us that with enough money, smarts and willpower, we can be anything that we make ourselves to be. Yet in all our struggles to determine who we are, many of us have the same burning question in our hearts that Jarod does: "Who am I anyway? Where did I come from? Why am I living this life?" We spend so much of our lives searching for our identity, knowing that deep down, nothing will be complete until we have the answer to who we are.

Well, here is a "Beacon" of hope for all of us who find ourselves searching with Jarod each week for that missing something, for identity and for freedom: Jesus says, "Seek and you shall find." Not only that, Jesus says that if you keep seeking you will find that he is the source of all these answers because he made you, Jesus knows who you were created to be. Though something evil like the Center has removed you from him, Jesus has defeated the evil that threatens to destroy you and gives true freedom to those who find him and embrace him as their leader. Jesus will not only set us free from the evil outside of us, but from the evil inside of us when we ask him to forgive us and lead our lives.

So keep seeking. Like Jarod you may wonder where to look. Those who have found Jesus will tell you to look for him in the Bible, in prayer to him and inside of people who have invited him into their lives. His promise is that, in finding him, you will find the truth about all that you seek.

None of us who I know have people with guns chasing us each day like Jarod. Yet many of us feel as though something in life is chasing us. We feel something out there would like to take hold of us and destroy us by removing our freedom, joy and power. So we search with Jarod for freedom. We run as hard as we can from what appears to be tying us

Charlevoix pool swim lane gets a new name

Victoria and Mark Greyerbiehl, owners of Ace Hardware, are the first to have a swimming lane at the Charlevoix Community Pool named in their honor. They bid $900 at the Friends of the Pool auction last summer to have a lane named after their business.

"When we moved up here, we wanted to get involved with the community," Mark said.

The Greyerbiehls moved to Charlevoix one year ago, when they bought the Bridge Street Ace Hardware business. Among the services they offer at the business is making plaques.

"We not only bid $900 for this, we made our own plaque," Mark said.

Another feature offered at the pool auction is having a chance to name a street or lake at the Charlevoix Country Club. Former bank president Francis Flanders chose to use his nickname in naming "Brownie Brook Lane." The Ramseys named a small lake after their late daughter, JonBenet, who was Little Miss Charlevoix.

Naming the remaining swim lanes will be up for auction this year at the Friends of the Pool dinner and auction Aug. 2. Also up for auction is a $25,000 chance to name the spa at the pool. Anxious bidders don't need to wait until the dinner/auction to bid. They may call the pool office at 547-0982 to bid on the spa or contribute auction items.

The dinner, which will be at the Charlevoix Country Club, is $30 per person. Seating is limited to 150. To make reservations, call Mahogany's Fine Dining at 547-3555.

School decides how to spend Durant settlement money

By Jamie MacMillan

Despite delaying any action, the Charlevoix Board of Education maintained its position that refunded money from the Durant settlement will go toward upgrading technology in the K-12 district.

During its regular session last week, the board was prepared to approve the use of its $168,000 Durant check for technology, triggering the start of an outlined plan to purchase 116 computers, upgrade 35 Pentiums and standardize software programs throughout the district.

Of the new hardware, an early breakdown had 80 of the computers going to teachers so each would have a machine on their desk; 10 for the administration and 26 for the middle school computer lab.

Instead, the board tabled any action, deferring further discussion on the topic to a finance committee meeting to be scheduled before its next regular session.

"That's a pretty big check to just hand out and say 'go spend it,'" financial committee chairman Barney Way said.

The board's direction toward spending the money remains with technology, but may instead opt to spread out the spending instead of doing it in one lump shopping spree.

"This is not a decision to not spend it on technology," board president Allen Telgenhof said. "There is not a compelling proposal."

Telgenhof suggested it might be more prudent to phase the money in increments for technology improvements in case something else comes up that requires emergency spending.

Board member Dwight "Ike" Boss said any technology additions should focus on replacing those computers that need updating, but agreed with Telgenhof that the remainder be held at bay for emergency purposes.

He pointed out that the middle school roof is in bad shape and, lacking any new facilities, will need to be replaced. The extra cash from the settlement could make that chore easier to do.

The money came to the district via a court settlement in the long-standing Durant case between 84 school districts and the State of Michigan.

Schools were suing in an attempt to recover lost funds from spending on state-mandated programs such as special education, driver's education and food services. The state is required to fund programs it requires schools to offer, but the state was renegeing on its burden, the schools said.

This fall, a settlement was reached that would give every school district in the state a financial boost of about $160,000. Plaintiff schools in the original suit, like Charlevoix, would receive it in one lump sum while non-plaintiff schools would receive half of its share up front and then 10 percent of the remainder each year for the next decade.

There have been rumblings across the state that school districts will file another suit claiming the current settlement still leaves the schools short of money. Telgenhof said that currently the board's choosing is "not to get in it."

Humane society ready to break ground in Boyne City

By Jamie MacMillan

Despite removing themselves from the Boyne City planning commission's agenda last week, county humane society officials remain confident that ground breaking for their new location will occur in either late June or early July.

The society originally intended to have their site plan approved at last Monday's meeting, but pulled out because plans weren't fully developed, according to Todd Sorensen of the Boyne City Housing Commission. Sorensen is acting as volunteer project manager for the society.

Sorensen said they hired local architect Sam Wiseman only days before the meeting and, as a result, weren't ready to appear before city planners.

Sorensen expects to be on the agenda during the planners' next meeting at 5 p.m., Monday, June 15, which would pave the way for an early summer beginning of the project.

The Humane Society is in the process of relocating its facility from Charlevoix to Boyne City.

Currently lodged on Grant Street behind the county sheriff's department, the society will be moving to a three acre tract of land on the corner of Brockway and Beardsley roads in Boyne City. It will be just behind the county road commission building and will share the land parcel with the transit building.

County officials are eager to see the project begin because once the facility has moved, the county may begin its ambitious jail expansion project.

Humane society officials are working with a budget of between $250,000-$300,000 to more than triple the size of their current building.

The current facility is 1,100 square feet, and the new building could be as large as 5,000 square feet, said society president Helene Valad.

Included in a new facility will be separate areas for dogs, cats, animals to be adopted and animals with health problems. Now all animals are housed in the same general area.

Also expected in a new building will be a clinic, a classroom, two offices, one for the animal control office and one for the society's executive director, and an increase in dog runs from nine to 20, Valad said.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners gave $150,000 out of its general funds to jump start the project, and Valad said the society has nearly matched that figure in donations of money and materials.

Commissioners, though, expressed concern during its most recent session that the project may be going overboard with its extras.

Valad, though, said there are "no frills" in their vision for a new building, and a joint meeting last week between representatives from both sides has put everybody on the same page at least for now.

As commissioner Vic Patrick said, "We gave them $150,000 — anything over and above that is their business."

Everybody's doing it — designing their own web site

By Jamie MacMillan

"Hello. I'm 25 with blue eyes, dark hair and a shade above six feet tall. I work for a local restaurant and enjoy bluegrass music, baseball and dining on oysters and beer."

Sounds a little like a personal ad that can be found on the back pages of any newspaper.

These days, though, it's as likely to be the preamble to someone's personal web page on the Internet.

Businesses, political groups and entertainment industries have long used the Internet to promote their various products and information. So many sites dot the World Wide Web, that a recent study discovered even the most extensive search engines can unearth only 10 to 15 percent of total sites.

Crowding the scene the most are personal web sites, which a novice can construct in a matter of hours by purchasing a software program, following instructions of the numerous self-help programs already on the web or by consulting a local computer guru.

Simple intentions drive the desire to build a personal web site.

"It's an identity thing, people love having a presence that can be potentially viewed by millions," said Jonathan Winkjer, computer instructor at Northwest Academy.

Once the "How do you do" introductions are complete, most web pages are devoted to that person's particular interests, ranging from academic subjects to sports to pop culture icons.

Beyond simple personal ads, the web pages are designed mostly with those interests in mind, such as Sean Dutcher's page devoted to Viper sports cars.

Dutcher, an eighth grade student at Northwest Academy, only began designing his page two weeks ago, but already it is filled with pictures of new and classic Viper cars.

"Basically, any picture I want, I can put it on my page," he said. "My next page will be devoted to 'Vettes.'"

Dutcher became proficient at building pages through a class at school taught by Winkjer. An elective, the nine-week course is geared toward teaching students the basic nuts and bolts behind creating your own web page. After learning the baby steps, the remainder of time is spent in a computer lab, allowing students time to update and tinker with their pages.

"They love it and it really builds some self-esteem," Winkjer said. "It gets them thinking 'I'm just as good as Microsoft, they have a site and so do I.'"

Not all of the personal sites are basic.

T.J. Christiansen, a sophomore at Charlevoix High School, parlayed his interest in potato cannon launchers into a nationally acclaimed web site that has garnered over 100,000 hits (visits). T.J.'s site has been featured in Internet Underground magazine. He also has been contacted by Sports Illustrated as a possible subject for an article on hobbies.

His interest in the potato launchers came first, but when he discovered others that had similar tastes on the Internet, he decided to create his own page, chock full of the latest designs, techniques and hints to create the ultimate spud launcher. He constructed his site by following the steps in the program, Microsoft Publication 1997, purchased at a local computer store.

Christiansen said the attraction for him is a way to share and learn more about an obscure interest with people that he may not otherwise ever come in contact with.

He has become a bit of a cannon guru and at times receives 30 e-mails a day from people seeking his advice.

"It's kind of funny because not many people realize I'm 16," he said. "They think they're writing to a physics teacher, which makes it a little more fun."

Golf league being formed

Plans are being formulated to create a summer traveling golf league. Several area golf courses have expressed interest in fielding a team. Ron Branicki, general manager of the Charlevoix Country Club, and Dean Davenport, director of the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association, have agreed to serve as coordinators during the organizational period.

"At this point, each course would have a roster of players and when league play is scheduled, a limited number would then participate as a team," Davenport said.

Each course would host an 18 hole league event with visiting teams coming in for competition.

"If the response at the Charlevoix Country Club is any indication of the interest, we'll have several area courses joining us," Branicki said.

For more information, call Branicki at 547-9796 or Davenport at 547-6433.

Polly Kay is back in business

By Jamie MacMillan

Astute Charlevoix historians may do a double-take as they walk down Bridge Street toward the channel.

Polly Kay's, once a fashionable dress shop in the downtown area, has reincarnated itself as a deli and wine shop in the former storefront of Compulsive Cravings.

"They were successful before so we're not trying to reinvent the wheel, just expand it to make it better," owner John Haggard said of the stores which will maintain a similar look and feel as its predecessor.

Haggard and his brothers Bill and George purchased the stores in January and spruced up the interiors until they were ready to open earlier this month.

The stores' names are a tribute to the Haggards' mother's clothing business, which was an anchor in the downtown area for a half-century. Friends Polly Haggard and Kay Fitch began their business in 1926, opening stores in both Charlevoix and Coral Gables, Fla. As families began to grow, the ladies settled on just one store in Charlevoix.

It remained a beacon of fashion until 1976, when George Haggard and his wife moved the store to Moorestown, Tenn.

More than 20 years later, the name of Polly Kay is back, with Polly's Deli adjoining Kay's Wine Shop.

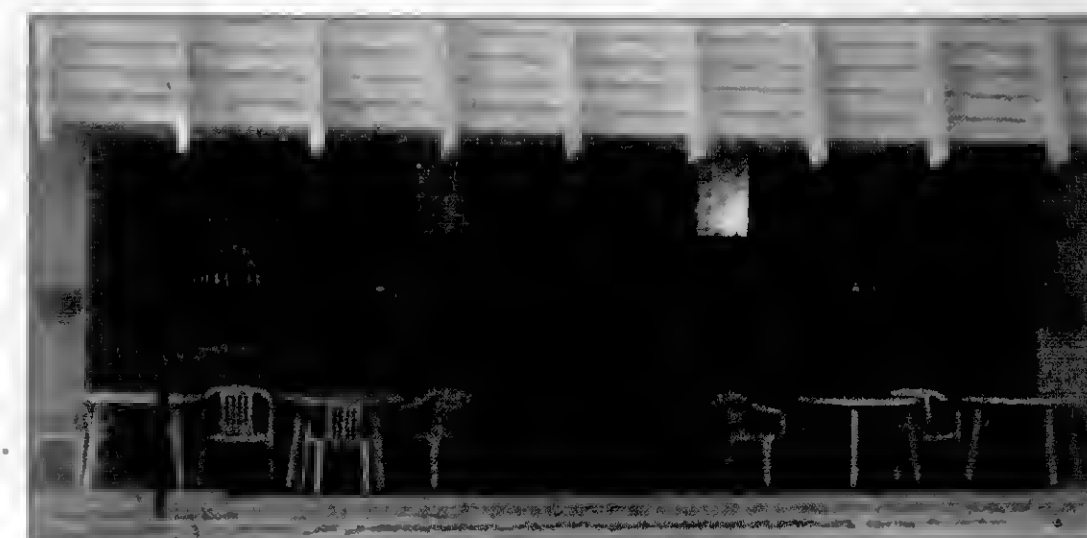

Much like its historical namesake, the current business will be rooted with friendship. Beyond the ownership by the brotherly trio, the day-to-day operations will be handled by Laurie Gilbert, who has enlisted friends Elise Fineout and Mary Eveleigh. Gilbert said Fineout will handle Polly's Deli while Eveleigh will handle Kay's Winery.

"With the three of us, it will be a nice group effort," Gilbert said. "It's a wonderful feeling — we really complement each other."

Business will remain much the same in the wine shop, although the liquor license transfer has yet to be made official. Both Gilbert and Haggard expect it to be worked out by the end of the month, if not sooner.

In the deli, a grill has been added to include Coney dogs, hamburgers and grilled reubens to the typical deli menu. Homemade soups simmer on a daily basis, and in mornings they will offer granola breakfasts and Gilbert's homemade power drinks.

Familiar names in a different business are featured at Polly's Deli and Kay's Wine and Gourmet stores on Bridge Street. The stores opened earlier this month.

Other menu items are expected to be added as everyone gets their feet wet, Gilbert said.

For now, it is expected that the stores will remain open throughout the year.

Currently both stores are open seven days a week, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., but for this weekend's Memorial Day holiday, they will stay open until 9 p.m. By mid-June, Gilbert said summer hours will be added.

"Deja vu all over again" for girls' soccer team

By Jamie MacMillan

Yogi Berra, the ancient sage of the ball fields, would have a simple analysis of last week's girls' soccer district tournament: "Deja-vu all over again."

For the second year in a row, Charlevoix's charge to the trophy was halted by Elk Rapids in a 2-1 gut-wrenching overtime thriller.

Last year it was minutes into sudden death, while this year it lasted through six kicks of a shoot-out.

"It was a knock down, drag-out game," co-coach Tom Conlan said. "Give credit to the girls — it was a great game and they played their hearts out."

Ending regulation play at a 1-1 score, the clubs battled through two, 15 minute sudden death periods without settling anything. Each team scored on two of five shots in the shoot-out, with Kate Conlan and Kate Romig connecting for Charlevoix.

Dipping further into the bench for round six gave the game to the Elks as they scored and Charlevoix could not answer.

The Rayders struck first blood midway through the first half when Taya Drost's head ball skipped past the defense and Juli Swenor crashed down the right side of the field to knock the ball into the net.

In the waning moments of the half, though, Ellen Bradfield, the Elks' top gun, shook free for a breakaway to tie the score with only 19 seconds left until intermission.

A scoreless second half set up the overtime heroics.

Charlevoix had advanced into the game with a 5-3 win over Harbor Springs. The Rayders were behind by one goal on two occasions before scoring the game's final three goals en route to the win.

Despite falling short of the title, four Rayders were elected to the all-district squad led by goalie Kristy Shindorf, who was Charlevoix's only unanimous selection to the team. Joining her was Conlan, Erika Kammernann and Lindsey Carland. Drost made the honorable mention team.

Kammernann led the Rayders in scoring this year with nine goals and six assists. Other team leaders included Drost with six goals and five assists, Brooke Block with four goals and five assists, Conlan with five goals and three assists and Kelly Dreyer with three goals and three assists.

Charlevoix ended its season with a 7-10-1 record.

Right: In an attempt to set up a scoring chance, senior forward Katy Conlan shields herself from a Harbor Springs defender as she tries to pressure into the middle of the field from the sideline. Conlan had two goals in the Rayders' 5-3 opening round district triumph.

Front page: Erica Kammernann watches as her penalty kick floats into the upper corner of the net. Kammernann's freebie knotted the score at 3-3, and was the first of three goals propelling Charlevoix to a 5-3 win.

Baseball, softball teams eye district tournament

By Jamie MacMillan

On the diamonds, Charlevoix geared up for the season's final week with a pair of double header sweeps against Central Lake.

The baseball club locked the door on any Central Lake offense and threw away the key in two shut-out wins, 1-0, 2-0.

T.J. Carey pitched a complete, three-hitter in game one, while Jeremy Himebauch allowed four hits in his five innings pitched in game two. Ryan Bier pitched an inning of relief in the nightcap, earning a save.

In both games, Charlevoix plated its only runs in the first inning.

Mike Evans doubled and scored in a ground out in the first game while consecutive RBI hits by Steve Speigl and Shay Hutchison did the damage in the second game.

The day's games against Central Lake were clean sweeps for the softball team as they tallied two wins, 3-2, 16-6.

In game one, Lyndsey Blechel plated Andrea Arnold with a single to score the winning run in the bottom of the sixth.

The late inning heroics awakened the offense as Charlevoix smacked 16 hits in the second game to cruise to an easy win.

Blechel and Mandi Barrett each had three hits and Rachel Thorp, Laurel English and Arnold hit two apiece.

Both squads will now eye the district tournament in East Jordan Saturday, May 30.

The softball team kicks off the day with its semifinal game with Boyne City at 10 a.m. An East Jordan-Mancelona match-up follows with the winners squaring off for the title at approximately 3 p.m.

In the baseball bracket, East Jordan and Mancelona will battle at 10 a.m., followed by the Rayders taking on Boyne City, which is expected to get under way by 12:30 p.m. Like the softball tournament, winners will play in the finals at approximately 3 p.m.

Lady Rayders are track conference champions

Girls bring home 29 medals

By Jamie MacMillan

Hauling in 29 medals, the Charlevoix girls' track and field team easily outdistanced the field in last week's Lake Michigan Conference Championships to capture their first league title since 1993.

The Rayders ended with 132.5 points with East Jordan, 102, and Kalkaska, 100, rounding out the top three.

Harbor Springs, Boyne City, Traverse City St. Francis and Elk Rapids finished fourth through seventh respectively.

But it was the Lady Rayders who turned this expected close meet into their own exhibition.

Their 29 medals were highlighted by five first places and represented more than 25 percent of all medals handed out during the girls' meet.

Winning individual conference titles were: Angie Potter, pole vault; Tricia Kelly, 100-yard dash; the 400 relay team of Kelly, Kari-ann Miller, Leslie Hoffman and AnneMarie Terryberry; the 800 relay team of Kelly, Jamie Gowell, Emily Martinus and Terryberry;

Leslie Hoffman hands off to AnneMarie Terryberry for the anchor leg of the 400 meter relay. The girls sprinted to first place in a time of 54.23 seconds and was one of five first place finishes that earned the girls their first team conference title since 1993.

DDA captures school repair millage money

By Jamie MacMillan

Stuck between projects, school officials are left scratching their heads as to why the City of Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority is capturing a portion of their tax dollars.

According to district business manager Judy Boss, the DDA will collect $16,610 this year from the school's sinking fund millage.

Voters passed the six-year, 1 mill request last June to raise money for building renovation projects at the elementary and high schools.

"When voters passed this, they didn't think they were giving money to the DDA," said Allen Telgenhof, board of education president. "They were giving it to the school."

After one year, the fund's balance sits at $9,370. The school collected $394,650 in revenue, but spent $385,280 to repair the high school roof and heating systems.

Over six years, the millage should bring in just over $2.5 million. Over that same period, though, the DDA's share will be $118,400, according to Boss.

The more, the easier

It was Bruce MacArthur, former Keep Charlevoix Beautiful president, who once said of the petunia planting volunteers, "The more, the merrier... and the more, the easier." These girls scouts from Troop 262 certainly made planting near the golf course easier for the regular crowd who plants on the north side of town. They are (from left) Jennifer Dawson, Shelby Goss and Sarah Shepard. More photos of Operation Petunia are on page 3. (Photo by Laurie Lounsbury)

Boss did note that the city does collect the school's summer taxes without a fee, a chore that could cost as much as $15,000.

School officials were concerned that legal advice given prior to setting the millage misinformed them that no other entity could capture the tax dollars, since the millage request was for capital improvements and not operating expenses.

Telgenhof noted the district could have set the millage request higher or attempted to negotiate with the DDA had they been aware of the reality.

"They can agree not to capture," board member Larry Levensgood said. "We should have at least had an opportunity to meet with them."

City officials contend that they cannot refund the money for two reasons - they would have to give back all money captured from other millages and they need the money.

"We have to treat every tax entity

Another airport fee is under city scrutiny

By Laurie Lounsbury

Yet another cost of doing business at the Charlevoix Airport came under city council's scrutiny at Monday's council meeting.

This time, the cost in question was tie-down fees for airplanes.

"We've received complaints about the tie-down fees from some of our regular users," said Loraine Luepnitz, airport manager.

"People with cottages who fly here frequently went from paying nothing to paying about $60 or so a month."

Luepnitz appeared before city council to propose a seasonal tie-down rate that would lower the cost for frequent users.

The newly instituted tie-down fees for airplanes range from being two to four times higher than any other northern Michigan airport's fees.

For example, Charlevoix's fee for a jet plane to tie down for a month is $120. Pellston's rate is $30 per month. Harbor Springs charges $125 a month for a jet plane, but offers a rate of $30 per month for any plane that ties down on sod.

Neighboring communities of Boyne City, Bellaire and East Jordan allow planes to tie down for free, according to city manager Mike Wiesner.

Luepnitz proposed that any frequent visitor could get a 50 percent discount on tie-down fees provided they buy a pass for a minimum of six months and pay for it in advance.

At the discounted rate, a twin engine plane could tie down for a monthly rate of $30 instead of $60, provided they pay the $180 fee in advance.

Traverse City offers a discounted fee for advance payment to any size plane of $15 per month for six months.

Pellston charges $30 a month for any size plane and doesn't require a minimum commitment or advance payment.

"This does alienate people," said councilman Bob Tinims. "You've stirred up a lot of angry people with excess airport expenses."

Mayor Josh Barnes, who was involved with the airport committee that set the new fees, had doubts

OPINIONS

Sounds of silence not so pretty in East Park

This may appear to be an editorial by me, but I'm merely the pen here. The words and sentiments were those expressed by many people last week in East Park during the Memorial Day ceremony.

At first glance, it appeared that people had lost their sense of decorum and manners.

Heads weren't bowed during the prayer. Voices weren't raised during the National Anthem. Hands weren't over hearts during the Pledge of Allegiance.

Closer inspection of these people revealed that they had their heads cocked to one side, a hand cupped behind an ear.

Then it was obvious.

They couldn't hear what was going on. They didn't bow their heads because they couldn't hear the prayer being given at the band shell podium.

People fidgeted during Taps because they couldn't hear the poignant sound of the bugles playing quietly.

The scenario repeated itself during the petunia picnic, when Keep Charlevoix Beautiful president Joanne Curtis tried to make a few announcements. It seemed as if no one had the decency to pay attention, but the truth was, no one could hear her.

The Downtown Development Authority has plans for many improvements to East Park. I hope their plans include a new sound system for the Clarence Odmark Pavilion. One of the great charms of Charlevoix is East Park and the band concerts and events held there.

Without a good sound system, listening to entertainment in the park is like listening to a great opera singer with a bad case of laryngitis.

While we're on the subject of the park, a reader called to complain about dogs doing their thing in East Park. After his call, I did notice dog droppings in the park, right where kids were rolling down the hills.

Since then, I talked to police chief Dennis Halverson, who informed me that the city has placed an additional disposable dog baggy dispenser in the park, near the waterfront, for the express purpose of cleaning up after dogs. Dog owners are welcome to help themselves to the bags. There is another dispenser of bags on the top of the hill, near the intersection of Clinton and Bridge streets. So, dog owners — please feel free to avail yourselves of these handy clean-up items.

With last week's warm weather, hordes of folks with little kids flocked to Dairy Queen for ice cream. A parent with a child in tow noticed that kids came dangerously close to spilling out onto Bridge Street while waiting for ice cream. Perhaps some sort of guard rail would be appropriate for that stretch of road. To date, no child has fallen off the curb there and been hit by a car — it would be nice to take a proactive position and put a rail there so the perfect safety record continues.

— We have a school election coming up soon. While I'm not going to favor one candidate over another, I'll just take this opportunity to throw my support behind a few concepts. Whoever wins and finds themselves on the school board, I hope they'll make the search for a new superintendent a thorough one. Ideally, I'd like to see them clone Chip Hansen, Superintendent of East Jordan Schools, and put him to work here. Hansen has done a superlative job of leading the East Jordan School District through many changes and improvements. At the very least, the board should make a list of Hansen's attributes and make them required qualifications for our next superintendent.

By Laurie Lounsbury

parents play a critical role in children's educational growth and creating a positive attitude toward reading.

Specifically, what does reading aloud do for preschoolers? It does a number of things. It exposes children to all the sounds of the English language, sounds that they will constantly use in their lives. It builds background knowledge, takes them to places they have never seen, to a language they have never heard, and to settings they have never been to. It associates reading with pleasure. It models reading and creates interest. And, it sends most of them off to kindergarten already knowing how to read. Finally, the quality time spent with their youngsters may be the most important feature.

There are thousands of great titles for parents to share with their children. Most bookstores have enormous sections for children's books. Some recommended titles that children love include classics like Charlotte's Web and Stuart Little. For those of you with younger children, Dr. Seuss's Cat in the Hat and The Lorax are wonderful. I can offer advice for parents though: don't even think of skipping a page. Recently, I was reading from a Dr. Seuss book with my four-year-old nephew, a book he was certainly familiar with. Two of the pages were stuck together when I turned them. However, I kept on reading. His little hand landed firmly in the middle of the page and he looked up at me. "Uncle Mike, you missed a page!" was his excited reply. I had committed a tragic error. However, it was a wonderful experience to see a child so consumed with a story.

Dr. Ruth Love, Superintendent of the Chicago Public Schools, wrote in 1981, "If we could get our parents to read to their preschool children 15 minutes a day, we could revolutionize the schools." I have worked with students with a variety of reading abilities. What I have found is that those students who were read to as children, in general, tend to be the most successful with reading, listening, speaking and writing. Similarly, those students who experience frustration and anxiety with reading did not, in general, have positive experiences with reading as children.

Parents work hard to give their children everything they can. Reading aloud with children is an inexpensive way to give them a head start in life. Hearing good stories fills the room with the author's words and provides an avenue for loving books. Those 15 minutes will help children more than just teaching them to read and communicate well. Those precious minutes build a priceless bond and show them that you care.

Letters to the editor

More flags should be displayed on Memorial Day

Editor:
What has happened to Memorial Day? There were only three flags displayed on homes on Petoskey Avenue.

Every home in Charlevoix should have a flag displayed in honor and remembrance of the men and women who served, fought, were wounded and gave their lives for their country that we might live in freedom.

The Fourth of July, Independence Day, is our next holiday. Let us show our love for our country, the United States of America, by flying the flag.

Superintendent job should go to a school principal

Editor:
Nothing changes. Our Charlevoix School Board is busily spending the taxpayers' money on head hunters to find another superintendent of schools. This is being done in face of the fact that we have three principals of schools, who each seem to me to be excellently qualified to be promoted from principal to superintendent.

Here are three men who know what is going on, past and present, proven administrators and have their heads screwed on straight.

Why in the name of common sense does the school board want to bring in someone from the outside who will have to spend extensive time trying to find out what the problems are, before he can contribute to a solution?

This current school board is treading down the same path as the previous board. If you don't know your history, you're condemned to repeat its mistakes.

Many times it is just as important to know what not to do as it is what to do.

Guest commentary

This guest commentary was written by Michael K. Thompson, a Charlevoix native who now teaches high school in the Frankfort School District. He is also a graduate student at Central Michigan University.

Reading aloud to preschool children is one of the most important things a parent can do for them.

As a teacher, I am worried about the literacy of our young people. Too many of the students going through our school systems don't read at grade level. Some carry a very negative attitude and frustration with reading. Schools and teachers work very hard at teaching kids how to read, but the most successful kids will be the ones who want to read.

Reading is very important to a young person's educational growth. The more students read, the better they get at it. The better they get at reading, the more they enjoy it. The more they enjoy it, the more they will read. It builds upon itself. With all the knowledge they gain from reading, the better, more informed decisions they will make.

So where does it all begin? Jim Trelease, author of The Read-Aloud Handbook, suggests that "reading aloud to children improves their reading, writing, speaking, listening - and best of all, their attitudes toward reading." (1979) And, since these skills are so essential to function in society,

Events in brief

School election is June 8

The annual school election will be from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday, June 8, at the elementary school gymnasium.

On the ballot will be a renewal request for 18 mills which will only be levied on non-homestead property. This is not a tax increase and is required by Proposal A. Revenue from these 18 mills accounts for over 40% of the entire school budget. Without it the school district would not be able to operate.

Also, on the ballot will be three board of education seats. Michael MacMillan is running against incumbent Ike Boss. Ardeth Wieland and Dennis Halverson are running unopposed.

Abstinence group hosts final planning meeting

The next meeting of the Abstinence Partnership of Northwest Michigan will be from 10 a.m. to 12 noon Monday, June 8 at the Charlevoix offices of the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency. This will be the planning final meeting of the coalition. Based on discussion at the meeting, staff will write a grant proposal to the Michigan Abstinence Partnership to fund the implementation project. Anyone interested in promoting abstinence from sexual activity, alcohol and drugs, tobacco, and other risky behaviors, for children ages nine to 14, is welcome to attend. ## A different view of familiar water

Two hundred sixth grade students from Boyne City, Boyne Falls and Charlevoix will never look at Lake Charlevoix the same way again. Thanks to the Lake Charlevoix Association, the Beaver Island Boat Company and the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, these students will have a deeper understanding of the lake, its water quality and their place in the ecosystem.

The sixth graders boarded the Beaver Islander for the Experience Lake Charlevoix field trip recently. Their trip began with a demonstration on the importance of life preservers, given by Steve Hansen, president of the Lake Charlevoix Association. Then they visited three separate activity stations on the boat to participate in water resource education activities. At the Secchi disk station, students measured water quality and learned about zebra mussels. They collected water samples and gauged pH levels at the second station. At the third station, they used a watershed model to explore non point source pollution and gain a better understanding of how our actions affect water quality.

BEACONS

Beacons of Blessing
By Joe Johnston
Associate pastor/Charlevoix Assembly of God

Years ago in a small Midwestern town, one man's job was to watch a railroad crossing. He would sit in his little hut alongside the tracks where a narrow winding road crossed. At night he was required to stand next to the track, on the road with his lantern glowing for all to see that a train was soon to come.

One particular night the train was coming down the tracks and, as usual, the man left the comfort of his shelter to stand next to the tracks with his lantern. In the distance he could see the dim headlights of an approaching car. He began to wave his lantern to let the driver of the car know about the oncoming locomotive. Somehow the driver of the car ignored the lantern and its bearer.

The lantern man waved the lantern more briskly to send out the warning signal but still the car came. The train was only seconds away from the crossing. The car was not even slowing down. The man frantically waved his lantern but still the car came at full speed. Finally, the man jumped out of the way as the car sped by and was hit by the train on the tracks. Everyone in the car was killed on impact.

At the investigation the grief stricken man explained to the authorities in charge how he tried to warn the oncoming vehicle but it would not stop. After careful examination the officer in charge said to the man at the crossing, "Sir, you waved your lantern but you forgot to light it."

Unfortunately, this will be the dilemma of many in our world. They are speeding toward certain destruction, yet the lantern bearers have not lit their lanterns. Jesus has called us to be lights to the world. It is our job (if we are disciples of Christ) to take the good news - the salvation message - to everyone we can. But it does little good to tell people about Jesus if the light within is not shining. Without the light of Christ we will have little impact. Is your light shining or is it hidden from those who need it most?

County considers trade agreements for trash

By Jamic MacMillan

With the future of the local landfill in limbo, county officials will soon negotiate disposal agreements with every county north of Clare that has a landfill.

The decision to begin talks came last week after an unanimous vote by the county's solid waste committee.

"The committee is not ready to hang its hat on one landfill to serve the county's needs," county planner Larry Sullivan said.

Waste Management's Cedar Ridge facility in Charlevoix County has only three years of capacity remaining and the company was denied an expansion request in April by the county's planning commission.

With the possibility of an appeal to the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality and the company's merger with U.S.A. Waste, the landfill's future remains murky, prompting committee members to want assurances that county residents will have multiple places to export trash.

Eight counties within that geographic scope have landfills, five of which Charlevoix has no current agreement with: Wexford, Leelanau, Montmorency, Clare and Mason.

The other three counties —

Presque Isle, Crawford and Manistee — already have agreements in place, but they would need to be reworked.

Current agreements with Presque Isle and Crawford counties allow for free flowing trade among the counties, while with Manistee, trash trading is permissible only under emergency situations, Sullivan said.

With space at a premium at the Cedar Ridge landfill, the committee expressed interest only in one-way agreements to allow for exportation, should Cedar Ridge cease to exist.

One-way agreements aren't tough to negotiate, as Charlevoix County's agreements with neighboring Antrim and Emmet counties attest. Wexford County may be a tough sell since they only allow neighboring Missaukee County to bring trash into its county-owned landfill.

Agreements with more counties are also expected to give the county some flexibility in terms of rates since it would involve landfills owned by different entities.

Most of the facilities will be owned by U.S.A. Waste, which has absorbed B.F.I., United, and Waste Management. The landfills in Wexford, Montmorency and Mason counties are municipally owned, while Allied Waste owns the landfill in Manistee County.

Whatever agreements are hashed out would be incorporated into the county's solid waste plan, which the committee is currently rewriting. The 14-member committee is trying to finalize its draft by the end of the year.

The committee also approved the inclusion of a comprehensive county recycling program into the plan.

No specific plans as far as what to do were worked out, but early indications show a basic program of setting drop-off points and contracting with a hauler to transport the recyclable material.

The committee's first step toward a recycling plan will be to conduct a county survey to gauge residents' thoughts on the issue, specifically on how the county should pay for a program.

The solid waste committee next meets at 7 p.m. Monday, June 22 in the lower level conference room in the county building.

Chamber sponsoring scholarship competition

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce will again sponsor the Miss Charlevoix Venetian Scholarship Competition during this year's 68th Annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival. This year's competition will award a scholarship of up to $1,500 for the winning candidate and up to $500 for the first runner-up.

Candidates must be between the ages of 16 and 22 as of the date of the competition and must have a primary residence in Charlevoix, or have graduated from the Charlevoix School District. Entry forms will list other qualifications or entry requirements.

Following the format established during last year's competition, candidates will participate in an interview with judges from outside the Charlevoix area, with the decision of the judges being based on the candidate's knowledge of Charlevoix, the Venetian Festival, poise, ability to express themselves and general presentation. The winning candidates will best represent the city and the people of Charlevoix.

Coronation will be at Charlevoix High School's Kipke Athletic Field in conjunction with the Venetian Festival Drum and Bugle Corps Competition, which begins at 7:15 p.m. Friday, July 24.

Applications are available at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce office. The Festival Committee has set an application deadline of 7 p.m. Monday, June 22. (The chamber office will be open until 7 p.m.) For more information, call the chamber office at 547-2101.

Big Rock Point is visited by nuclear pioneers

Two pioneers in the development of the nuclear Navy and advancement of commercial nuclear power in the United States recently visited the Charlevoix and Petoskey areas.

Eugene "Dennis" Wilkinson, retired U.S. Navy vice admiral, and Kenneth Carr, former chairman of the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), observed site restoration activities at Consumers Energy's Big Rock Point restoration project and met with the management team to discuss decommissioning progress at the plant.

Adms. Wilkinson and Carr both served on the MDM Services Corporation board of directors. MDM has a contract with Consumers Energy to provide workers in the nuclear fuel projects, radiation protection and environmental services, and engineering areas involved with the decommissioning of Big Rock Point.

During their visit, Wilkinson and Carr also toured the Bay Harbor Yacht Club and learned about the blossoming of a luxury resort area from a former cement plant site.

Wilkinson had a distinguished career in the United States Navy, achieving the rank of vice admiral. He was the initial commanding officer of the world's first nuclear powered surface ship, the U.S.S. Long Beach.

As the first commanding officer of the Nautilus, Wilkinson ordered all lines cast off and signaled the memorable and historic message, "Under way on nuclear power," on Jan. 17, 1955 as the submarine left its port in Groton, Conn. Over its 25-year run, the Nautilus achieved many historical accomplishments, including the execution of Operation Sunshine, the first crossing of the north pole by submarine beneath the Arctic icepack.

Admiral Wilkinson also served as commander of submarine forces, U.S. Atlantic Fleet and as deputy chief of Naval Operations for Submarine Warfare.

Wilkinson is currently the president emeritus of the Institute of Nuclear Power Operations (INPO) and is a member of the National Academy of Engineering.

Kenneth Carr was appointed by former President Reagan to the NRC in 1986. He advanced to the position of chairman in 1989 and served until 1991 when he retired. Prior to his service with the NRC, Carr was vice admiral in the United States Navy. His 40 years in the Navy included an assignment to the crew of the U.S.S. Nautilus where he served with Admiral

Wilkinson. Big Rock Point was the world's first high power-density boiling water reactor and a research site for the nuclear power. The plant shut down Aug. 29, 1997.

Baseball, softball, end season with more experience

By Jamie MacMillan

The Ramblers twice trumped the Rayders in Saturday's baseball and softball district tournament, as Boyne City bested Charlevoix in the opening round of both tournaments en route to district titles.

On the baseball diamond, the Ramblers took advantage of five Charlevoix errors to plate nine runs in the first two innings. They went on to a 15-4 win.

"Boyne hit the ball well, which is the name of the game come tournament time," Rayder coach Scott Kelly said. "Everyone for Charlevoix was disappointed."

Eight of the Ramblers' runs during the game were unearned as the Rayders' fielders let their pitchers down with mishaps all afternoon.

T.J. Carey started the game on the mound, but was relieved by Jeremy Himebauch in the second inning. Mike Evans pitched the last inning for the Rayders.

Chuck Stanek pitched a complete game earning the win for Boyne.

After earning three runs in the bottom of the first of game two, it appeared that Charlevoix was primed to match the Ramblers.

Shay Hutchison and Ryan Bier smacked consecutive RBI hits, and Bier later scored from third on a balk.

From that point on, the Rayders were shut down, scoring just one more run while striking out eight times.

Despite the dreary conclusion of the season, good things happened on the baseball diamond this spring. After a 1-7 start, the Rayders rallied to win 14 of its final 25 games to finish 15-17-1. A 7-5 league record placed them in a three-way tie for second with Boyne City and Traverse City St. Francis.

Steve Speigl, Carey and Evans each earned all-conference honors. Speigl, who was the team's MVP, batted .475, with four home runs and 31 RBI. Carey hit .432, hit four homers and was named the team's Most Improved Player. Evans hit .327 and scored 23 runs.

Hutchison and Matt Horon were given honorable mention recognition by the league's coaches. The pair finished with averages of .371 and .306 respectively.

In softball, Boyne City's Katie Dhaseler slugged a three-run home run in the top of the fourth to break a 3-3 tie as the Ramblers chugged to a 12-6 win.

"That shot took the wind out of our sails," coach Ron Cox said.

The Ramblers tacked on another run during that inning, one more in the fifth and four in the sixth to pad their lead, rendering Charlevoix's three-run rally in the top of the seventh meaningless.

Mandi Barrett drove in two of those runs on a double, and Rachel Thorp scored Barrett on a single.

After spotting Boyne the game's first three runs, the Rayders tied the score in the third when Lyndsey Blechel and Christine Sweeney each singled and scored on a series of stolen bases and wild pitches. Sweeney earlier scored in the second inning after a walk, stolen base and a fielder's choice play.

Blechel handled the mound duties for the game, allowing 10 hits and three walks while striking out four.

The softball team ended their season at 8-24. Season-ending statistics were not yet available but Blechel earned all-conference honors and Laurel English was awarded honorable mention status.

Cox expressed thanks to his assistant coach, Melissa Cox, and statistician Scott Blechel for their help throughout the season.

County buying aerial photographs

By Jamie MacMillan

Imagine arriving home from that once-in-a-lifetime trip to the Orient. One of the first things on your agenda now that you're back is to go to the local photo-mart, plop down $5 and wait for the rolls of film you've snapped to be developed.

When you think about it, that is an important $5 because if the photos are ruined, then your visual memories of the trip will be lost forever.

Charlevoix County officials are hoping for spectacular results in the world of photography. However, they're doling out much more than $5 and the snapshots aren't from a distant landscape, but from their own backyard.

The county will spend $16,791 for a series of aerial photographs which will cover every square mile of the county's boundary. The state's Department of Natural Resources will chip in $3,000 for the pictures.

Charlevoix will pay the money to the State of Michigan for the pictures, who, in turn, were given the photos by Michigan Consolidated Gas Company.

MichCon had the photos, technically referred to as orthophotography, snapped in an attempt to help pinpoint its oil lines and update their northern Michigan research to that of its downstate work.

Ayres, a Madison, Wis. company, flew over the area and took the pictures while Vargis, a Herndon, Va. based firm, formatted the photos for digital use and marketed them to the state.

Similar photos for 12 other area counties have been made available by MichCon, but only Charlevoix County has acted upon the availability.

The basic hope is to incorporate the photos into the county's computer Geographic Information System, GIS.

The GIS is a computer-mapping device that provides users with a range of information on every piece of land in the county. Located on the second floor of the county building just outside the planning department, the device is encouraged for public use. Development is on-going as more information on land is collected and entered into the computer.

County planner Larry Sullivan said that since the photos are digital, they can be easily used on the GIS and then overlay other portions of information on top of it as the user wishes, such as soil charts.

The photos currently used for the GIS were snapped in 1993 and the new orthophotos will provide greater accuracy, Sullivan said.

er turbulence-related flight adjustments, the current photos can be inaccurate by as much as 40 feet, Sullivan said. While it doesn't sound like much, it can wreak havoc while researching many of county's smaller pieces of land.

With more and more land parcels being split, Sullivan said more precise photography is a good investment. These photos will only be inaccurate by 10 feet, if inaccurate at all.

Money for the photos will come out of the mapping department budget, according to county clerk Jane Brannon. The county expects to receive the photos in September.

Charlevoix gets new telephone prefix number: 237

Computers, faxes drive up phone line use

By Laurie Lounsbury

It wasn't that long ago that making a phone call in Charlevoix was akin to making a phone call in Mayberry, RFD. All that was missing was a nosy telephone switchboard operator named Sarah.

All we had to do was pick up the phone and dial five digits. The telephone prefix was 547, but there was no need to use all those pesky numbers for a local call. Simply dialing the last digit of the prefix — 7 — and the four-digit phone number sufficed.

But times changed and Charlevoix got more complex, along with a lot of other small towns. It seemed like we hit the big time when we had to dial all seven digits to make a local phone call.

We just got even bigger. We now have a new local prefix: 237.

With 3,200 residents in Charlevoix and a possible 10,000 telephone numbers available with the 547 prefix, it might appear there is no urgent need for another prefix.

"People start adding fax lines, computer lines, and pretty soon they've used up all the available prefix numbers," said a representative of Ameritech.

While the addition of cell phones in the area doesn't affect local prefixes, it does impact the area codes. Large cities are already forced to add new area codes to their areas. Locally, cell phones and pagers might soon create a need for a new area code, in addition to the existing 616 area code.

Charlevoix garden club members attend state convention

Fifteen members of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club attended the 67th annual Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan State Convention at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island.

Charlevoix Garden Club president Marge McGoff received a citation award for her floral designs and recognition for all the work she does. A certificate of merit was awarded to the garden club for garden therapy at the Bergmann Center. The garden club helped form the Bergmann Center Garden Bowl.

More than 300 members of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan attended the event, with representation from most of the 200 clubs.

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club was established in 1939 and presently has 50 members. Those interested in learning more about gardening or joining the club should call Joan Knecht at 547-5072.

Three young women earn valedictorian, salutatorian spots

By Jamie MacMillan

From possible careers of nursing and education to the ultimate endurance test, these future endeavors are on the minds of Charlevoix High School's top three students on the eve of graduation.

Kari Jo Boss and Candice Marie Vandergriff soared through their high school studies with a 4.00 grade point average and have been named the class of 1998's co-valedictorians. Classmate Patricia Ann Kelly, with a 3.988 GPA, has been named class salutatorian.

Boss is the daughter of Bud and Judy Boss. Vandergriff is the daughter of Kraag and Cyndie Lieberman and Kelly is the daughter of Richard and Ann Kelly.

All three said not procrastinating and the ability to stay on top of assignments have been critical elements of their academic success.

Each girl in this trio has had success in non-academic pursuits at the same level of their sterling class work.

Boss has been a four year member of the performing arts troupe and has acted in a handful of award-winning plays, ensembles and solo outfits. She also was student council president this past year and served as class vice president and secretary/treasurer in previous years. She's a member of the National Honors Society, Spanish Club, and was the subject of TV 9+10's "Best of the Class" feature.

Vandergriff has been a state qualifier in both cross country and track and field as well as qualifying for the national cross country skiing finals on two occasions. She too is a member of both the Spanish Club and National Honors Society, serving as that group's secretary this year. Vandergriff is a winner of the excellence in Spanish awards as well as the Benona J. Kohler Historical Society and Calvin College Dean scholarships.

Kelly has been a conference champion sprinter and qualified for this weekend's state finals for the first time. She was this year's National Honor Society's president and as a French Club member served as the group's vice-president in 1996-97.

Extra-curricular activities, they said, helped to organize their time in addition to giving them an extra boost in energy to focus on studies.

"It helps when you have something besides schoolwork to do," Vandergriff said. "I feel good when I get a lot done."

With the exception of one year, all three have been in Charlevoix schools since kindergarten and they highlighted the third grade Beaver Island trip, lip synch contests, and, in particular, the teachers they've had as memorable.

"It's like they're friends, they're so willing to take extra time with us," Kelly said of her former mentors.

Added Boss, "They're not afraid to be hard on us either, even though we may complain about it."

Both Boss and Vandergriff noted that they were thankful their chemistry teachers went easy on them during a class, where, as lab partners, they had their hands in a handful of "oops" during the semester.

"We did break a few things like glasses, test tubes and beakers, and there were some explosions," Boss recalled with a laugh.

Next weekend, the trio will graduate with their classmates and eye the next level of their life.

Kelly will attend the University of Michigan with study interests of English and math. She wants to indulge in new interests and may pursue a career in nursing. Boss will be a freshman at Hope College next fall and is considering entering the elementary education field. Vandergriff will be at Calvin College, and hopes to study business or law and land a spot on the college's cross country and track and field teams. She said her long term goal is to run in the Boston Marathon.

While admitting trepidation to leave family, friends and community behind, the trio can't wait for life's next challenges.

"I'm excited to move on," Boss said. "We'll be seeing new things and meeting new people."

Kevin Allen

Northwest Academy will host its second annual commencement exercises at 1 p.m. Saturday, June 6.

Graduating from high school this year is Kevin Allen, the lone representative of Northwest Academy's class of 1998.

Kevin is a resident of East Jordan. His parents are Larry Allen of East Jordan and Karen Blanchard of Charlevoix.

He attended East Jordan public schools until the beginning of his junior year, when he transferred to Northwest Academy.

Kevin began taking college preparatory classes in 10th grade. He has been a successful student at NWA, maintaining a B-plus average. He plans to attend college but is undecided at this time where he will attend.

Joining Kevin for commencement will be the eighth grade class.

Rev. Bruce Hamilton will give the invocation, and guest speaker will be Ken Bartley, science and math teacher.

The school's bands will perform during the ceremony.

Stover Road's future is a big dead end

By Laurie Loonsbury

Trying to untangle cooked spaghetti noodles is probably an easier task than untangling the traffic snarl at the intersection of Stover Road and M-66.

Consider the numbers.

Every hour, 48 westbound cars turn south onto M-66 from Marion Center Road. Another 38 cars per hour turn left onto M-66, while eight cars per hour continue straight through the intersection onto Stover Road. About 26 cars per hour try to avoid the jammed intersection by cutting through a private driveway that connects Marion Center Road to U.S. 31, South.

"Without a doubt, this is the most complained about intersection in the city," said police chief Dennis Halverson.

A road study done in 1994 counted 3,500 cars a day traveling into Charlevoix from Marion Center Road.

"Marion Center Road is the busiest non-highway road in Michigan," city manager Mike Wiesner said.

After a joint meeting, city and state officials have a firm grasp of the problem and are working together for a viable solution.

The city of Charlevoix is planning to acquire a piece of land between Stover Road and U.S. 31, with the intention of rerouting Marion Center Road directly onto U.S. 31.

The plan would take Marion Center Road to the last home on the road west of M-66. From there, it would veer north and intersect with U.S. 31 about one-half mile south of the M-66 intersection. The 1,100 feet of Stover Road that runs from M-66 to Marion Center Road would be abandoned. Also pegged for abandonment is the 800 feet of Stover Road that runs from Marion Center Road to U.S. 31, where it intersects with the highway at a very severe angle.

The city paid $5,000 for a 90-day option to buy the parcel of land, valued at $310,000 by the city's appraiser and $340,000 by the landowner's appraiser.

The option gives city officials 90 days to decide if they want to enter a standard purchase agreement for the land. A purchase price of $330,000 was agreed upon by the city and the landowner, Dawson Way, representing the Joan Way Trust.

"We didn't quite meet in the middle, but it seemed fair," Wiesner said of the price.

If Marion Center Road gets rerouted as planned, it would also

School election results

In the only contested seat on the school board, challenger Mike MacMillan beat incumbent Ike Boss by a vote of 464 to 249. MacMillan will serve for two years, completing a four-year term left open when Jerry Owens resigned from the board.

Boss cited low voter turnout as a reason for his loss, combined with his desire to cut costs.

"We can't continue to spend forever, but no one is willing to cut anything," Boss said.

"I spent a lot of time working for the board and I gave it my all. I'm not ashamed of anything I did."

Dennis Halverson, who ran unopposed for a four-year term, earned a seat on the board with 551 votes.

Ardeth Wieland, who also ran unopposed for a four-year term, received 470 votes to recapture her seat.

In the millage renewal election, voters approved a request for 18 mills by a vote of 564 in favor and 160 opposed, to be levied against non-homestead property and commercial property.

About 725 voters went to the polls Monday, June 8, to cast their ballots.

Creating a new road

mean a new entrance to the Charlevoix City Airport. Marion Center Road would continue straight across U.S. 31 and enter the airport south of the existing entrance. The old airport entrance would then be closed. This would alleviate another existing traffic problem. Harbor Industries shares the entrance to the airport with the city. When they have shift changes, traffic gets backed up at the entrance as cars try to turn onto U.S. 31.

"Harbor Industries is delighted with this plan," Wiesner said.

Both city and state officials agreed that rerouting Marion Center Road was just one part of the detangling process. A center turn lane will be added on M-66, stretching from the intersection of U.S. 31 to a point just past the electrical substation. The turn lane on U.S. 31 will extend from the M-66 intersection south to a point 250 feet beyond the new Marion Center Road intersection.

The center turn lane on M-66 will not continue past Kmart Plaza at this point.

"These are accident correction monies," Wiesner said of the state money being spent on the project. "They've got to identify an existing problem, then correct it. They can't anticipate it."

Since the main entrance to the city cemetery is currently accessed on the portion of Stover Road that would be abandoned, a new entrance would be created on M-66. The cemetery road that leads to Stover Road would also be closed, giving the city 160 more burial

Marion Center Road would be rerouted to U.S. 31 at this point, where a residence sits on the right.

How the rerouting will work

Cost: The City of Charlevoix would spend $330,000 for a nearly two-acre piece of land between Stover Road and U.S. 31.

The city would also spend $75,000-$100,000 to build the new section of Marion Center Road.

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) would spend about $300,000 to build curb returns, center turn lanes on U.S. 31 and M-66, and to straighten out the existing Stover Road intersection on the eastern side of M-66 so that the two roads intersect at a right angle.

Resources for money: MDOT is using state-budgeted safety money to build the improvements, since it has been determined through studies that the changes will reduce the number of accidents in the area.

Charlevoix will pay for their share by taking $100,000 from the general fund, $100,000 from the employee fringe benefit fund, and $150,000 from the sewer public improvement fund. The sewer fund, currently holding $196,875, is earmarked for future capital improvements. No such improvements are currently proposed.

The fringe benefit fund, with a cash balance of $286,174, would not be impacted by a one-time pay-out, according to Wiesner. The fund was built up to potentially provide a self-funding mechanism for employees' health insurance.

The general fund would be left with a balance of $288,878 if $100,000 were taken from it, which is above the required amount for cash flow in the fund.

When Stover Road is abandoned, the city would sell their portion of the right of way to property owners adjacent to the abandoned road. After the new Marion Center Road is built, the city would also sell the remaining property as two separate lots on either side of the new road. With this money, they would pay back the sewer fund and fringe benefit fund.

Dividing the work: The city will build the new leg of Marion Center Road. The state will build new curb returns and center turn lanes on U.S. 31 and M-66.

Where: The new Marion Center Road will begin at the western edge of the first residential home on Marion Center Road. It will build northeast across the property where the Wynkoop body shop sits, just south of Buday's Sound Appliances, and intersect U.S. 31 at the airport, south of the existing airport entrance. The Wynkoop body shop building will have to be demolished.

By Laurie Lounsbury

sites.

When a road is abandoned, as two legs of Stover Road would be, typically the road is split down the middle and the two halves become the property of the adjacent property owners. In this case, the city would become owners of the half of Stover Road that is adjacent to the cemetery.

Wiesner reported that the city has no desire to own their portion of the road, and would sell the right of way to property owners on the other side of the road. The city would also sell the remaining property they're buying after building the new Marion Center Road.

"By selling the right of ways, we expect to get back about $200,000," Wiesner said.

The soonest the project could begin is the fall of 1999.

Hayes Township feels Big Rock Point tax loss

By Jamie MacMillan

Hayes Township residents got their first peek at the township's 1998-99 budget, and it's one with decreased revenue, but increased spending.

"The most dramatic change is the taxes," supervisor Tim Boyko said.

Tax revenue for next year will decline on two fronts due to the closing of the Big Rock Power Plant and the subsequent property value declines.

Income tax from property values is expected to go down 9 percent, from $85,000 this past year to $76,843 while the revenue stream from the township's road millage will decrease a similar percentage from $95,800 to $87,077.

Overall, the township is expecting to manage with $303,720 in revenue, down from over $320,280 last year.

Despite the decrease, township officials have budgeted expenditures in excess of $375,000, an increase of 55 percent from 1997-98, which saw the township spend $370,000.

The township has close to $272,000 in its general fund to help offset any difference between revenues and spending. If the township handles business this year as last year, the money won't be needed. The township had budgeted over $600,000 in spending for 1997-98, but only spent $370,000.

The most noticeable difference in spending from the two years is $70,000 set aside to resal 11 miles of township roads.

"We spent virtually zero last year on roads," Boyko said.

After spending $250,000 in 1996-97 to repave Old U.S. 31 from between Murray and Burgess roads, the township spent only $5,500 last year on minor repairs.

Boyko said the township hopes to

"It's not a saintly task — I'm not bringing brownies to the choir. My job is to place value if it's there."

— Paul Hoadley, Hayes Township assessor, discussing his job.

finish the remainder of Old U.S. 31 during its next fiscal year.

This year, the roads that have been targeted for resal work are portions of Townline, Burgess, Boyne City and See roads.

After budget discussion subsided, focus turned to a citizen complaint about the township's assessor, Paul Hoadley.

Gordon Burnett presented to the board a petition of people's names who were dissatisfied with the manner in which Hoadley does his job.

While Burnett didn't mention any specifics in regard to improper assessing, he said many felt that Hoadley trespassed in order to fulfill his duties. Burnett also noted citizens had problems with the Board of Review and that they didn't feel they were being listened to and weren't part of the process.

"We have the right to express our feelings, this is a relief valve built into the system," Burnett said.

As for Hoadley, he explained that he indeed does walk around property if nobody is home and will measure dimensions if new construction has been added. He leaves a note on the door after he leaves, he said.

While admitting it would be a nightmare to accomplish, Hoadley said he was open to any means of coordinating his activities to ensure owners' presence when he does his work.

"It's not a saintly task — I'm not bringing brownies to the choir," Hoadley said. "My job is to place value if it's there."

Township officials weren't keen on removing Hoadley from his $11,000 a year position.

"I haven't heard anything that would change with a different assessor," township treasurer Robin Kraft said. "There are rules to follow and he has to do what he has to do."

She also noted that she has never heard anyone say they were ever happy with any property assessor.

Boyko did tell the audience that, as secretary of the Board of Review, he would work to make it a more empathetic board.

Rainbow Shoppe celebrates successful 15 years

It seems like yesterday that the Rainbow Shoppe opened its doors for business in 1983.

The business was located in a small building on Antrim Street, which now houses Gary Balch's barber shop and Howard's Optical shop.

Sponsored by 10 local churches and managed by the late Joe Spurgeon, the business began to flourish. After two years on Antrim Street, the business moved to a large building on Van Pelt Place in the downtown area, where it is currently located.

To show their appreciation for 15 years in business, the Rainbow Shoppe board of directors is hosting a celebration party from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday, June 12 at the store. There will be prizes and refreshments.

The policy of the Rainbow Shoppe has been to reach out to nonprofit organizations. Their first contribution was church bibles, given to the local jail for the inmates. Since then, thousands of dollars have been extended to many nonprofit enterprises. By their 12th year in business, they had donated over $250,000 to organizations throughout the area.

Some of the recipients have been and continue to be: Charlevoix Area Hospital, Teen Club, Senior Center, Serenity House, Ministerial Association and the Community Food Pantry. In Petoskey, the Rainbow Shoppe has benefited the Crisis Pregnancy Center, Habitat for Humanity, Nehemiah House, Northern Michigan Chaplaincy and many others.

Without the support of the people who have donated or purchased the merchandise, as well as the loyal volunteers and dedicated employees, the success of the Rainbow Shoppe could not have been achieved. The appreciation party

June 12 is the board's way of thanking all those who have helped.

Little oil painting arouses local curiosity

How in the world did a semi-primitive oil painting of Charlevoix Old River, signed by the artist E. Metcalf, end up in Concord, Mass.? With the help of our readers, this is a puzzle we'd like to untangle!

On the back of the canvas painting, written in a fine hand, are the following words: "Old River, Charlevoix, Mich. A Merry Christmas to you, my dear sweetheart Carrie, from Ena, 1913."

Who was Ena? And who was his sweetheart, Carrie? What became of their relationship? The present owner of the painting, Amanda Donalds, would love to learn more about the puzzling history of this very special Christmas present. We are depending on the Charlevoix network to help us solve this mystery.

Amanda and John Donald, avid sailors, first came north to Charlevoix on their beautiful sailboat, Kam-pai. The couple, originally based in Midland, moved to Massachusetts in 1985, where John assumed the position of president of a genetic engineering firm. It was in Concord that Amanda first became acquainted with the owner of the Frederic Gallery, Peregrin Schwarzer. Aware of Amanda's summer place in Charlevoix, he offered her the small framed oil painting in 1994, which he had purchased at an estate sale. Donalds now have it prominently displayed in their lovely condo at the Belvedere Terrace.

These days, the Donalds divide their leisure time between Palm City, Fla., and Charlevoix. While we were seated together in their comfortable Charlevoix condo, overlooking the brilliant deep blue, sun-speckled lake, Amanda sighed, "This is home, this is my love."

And it is because of this affection for our area that the Old River painting is so treasured by the Donalds.

Therefore, if any of our readers have information regarding the history of this local landscape, or of Ena Metcalf or Carrie, please contact Edith Gilbert. I promise to keep you informed!

Letters to the editor

Former history teacher dismayed at kids' lack of knowledge

Editor:
On Memorial Day, my son Joel and I visited the cemetery, where we had asked Greenleaf Floral to decorate the McMillan lot. We were the only ones there, but as we left, we heard the band playing, and, following the sound, we went down State Street as the city police directed us. After the Memorial Day ceremonies, we stopped to put gas in the car. The fee at the pump was $17.76, which Joel went inside to pay. By way of making conversation he said to the girls at the cash register, "1776! Does that number have any significance for you?" Looking at him in amazement, one said, "No. Why should it?" He replied, giving her a hint, "It's Memorial Day." To which she answered, "Well, I was born in 1975."

When Joel reported this to me I was dismayed, because, being a history teacher, it seemed impossible to me. However, we tried it again. We stopped at a fast food restaurant and while we waited for our order, Joel said to the boy helping us,

"You look like a bright young man. Are you a good student?" The boy answered yes. Joel asked, "What grade are you in?" The willing attendant replied, "Eighth," and we put the question to him, "Does the date 1776 mean anything to you?" The answer came, "Nope. Should it?" We accepted our food, paid our money and drove away.

There is a reply to "Should it?" How sad and how tragic that a boy through junior high, and a girl through senior high, have neither the interest nor the knowledge of the beginnings of their country; of the hardships and sacrifices their ancestors endured, so that their children and their children's children could peacefully celebrate this Memorial Day and honor those men and women. To a family that respects and reveres this land and its government, and who gave a son to protect it, that is unacceptable.

I am reminded of that as I write a check today for $18.65. Surely every black and white person in our country should recognize and respect 1865.

Dear Editor,
I would like to thank the kind citizens of Charlevoix for the successful and enjoyable Red Cross Bloodmobile on May 28. I congratulate all of the donors and wish to express my sincere appreciation to the volunteers. Each one made a difference!
Many businesses rallied their support for the blood drive by displaying posters and distributing flyers.

To The Charlevoix High School Class of 1998
The "Big Boss" and I are grateful
That you've asked us to continue a tradition
In bringing poetic blessings
To this your high school graduation
Over "huevos rancheros" and Hamlet,
Some of this class has shared with me
Memories they consider rather precious
Some your folks may view as a curiosity.
We'll never tell who it was
That set seventh grade Home Ec aglow
Or how in eighth grade a certain window was broken
On a day that was frostier than you know
Was it her spiky red hair
That found Danica dating Blair?
Or was it the Tabasco sauce that had Rusty eating anything
With never a thought or care?
Beaver Island's swings will never be the same
Since Candice got stuck in them
And Andrew wants all to know
He has his colorful hat with him.
There's Paco Halverson whose secret
May have been the Boyne City Girls' Ski Team
And from what we heard about Angels' shifting
Her transmission tried to scream.
Now before we go much further
We must be fair to your teachers
Look kindly upon each one of them
Sitting around you in the bleachers.
Mrs. Schaperkötter, they've christened you

"The Living Barbie Doll"
Senior Scholten, when you were in Spain,
Did you see any Romans at all?
I'm curious to check out the color
Of Mr. Harwood's shirt
From what we're told it probably would go nicely
With John Heise's famous red skirt
Then Mrs. Seaman will forever be remembered
For using a VCR movie screen
Don't forget that, Tim Tebeau
When you hit the English teaching scene.
Ben Mathers' wedding is Just three short weeks away
But Rhonda and T.J. - if you want to
We can take care of yours today
Annie had her Cubanos and Jon his French hatchet
To the young lady who lost her bumper
Nick says be sure you have a ratchet.
How did all the chairs
Get out there in the hallways?
Does Mr. Grundman know who the Mob Squad is?
Or shall we leave him guessing always?
Was Lyndsay really a morning person?
Who will forget Katie's laugh?
Will you go out with me - circle yes or no
Chart the results on a B.A.T. graph.
Congratulations Valedictorians
Candice and Kari
And Trish as Salutatorian

Charlevoix Area Church Services

They did us proud

By Laurie Lounsbury

Two graduation ceremonies in Charlevoix this past weekend shared a common element — both were dignified tributes to the graduating seniors.

What differed was that Charlevoix High School hosted their 110th commencement ceremony for 97 graduating seniors.

Northwest Academy, Charlevoix's charter school, hosted its second annual commencement ceremony for one graduating senior and 16 graduating eighth grade students.

In the informal open room at the charter school, senior Kevin Allen received his diploma, along with a personalized commencement speech from his teacher, Ken Bartley.

"Commencement means beginning," Bartley told Allen. "Your education, Kevin, starts now."

Allen responded with a quick speech of his own.

"Everyone has asked me about my future plans," Allen said. "My future plan is to make money. Now that I have all this free time, it should be a lot easier to do that."

Clockwise, from top:

Rev. Bruce Hamilton entertains graduates at Northwest Academy, as he also did at Charlevoix High School, with his poetic tributes. His senior poems are becoming a legend in Charlevoix school halls. Jennifer Ricks receives a hug from principal Gary Grundman just after receiving her diploma. Northwest Academy graduate Kevin Allen receives his diploma and a few words of wisdom from his teacher, Ken Bartley.

Kari Jo Boss's mortar board not only proclaims her college of choice, it expresses a sentiment shared by every graduate and parent at the commencement ceremony.

Hamilton's tribute to the senior class

Is that a food or is it a store?
There's so much more ground to be covered
But I'm nearly out of time
And there are one to two more important things
I need to slip into this rhyme
You all speak of shooting for the moon
And even if you miss you'll end up in the stars
You-know-who add I hope you realize
Just how really right you are!
Keep your dreams ever before you
As you press on toward your goal
And if you ever need any encouragement
It's as close as your own soul
For My Big Boss really loves you
And a lot of us here do too
Blessings and Peace to the Class of '98

Local electric company is about to merge

By Jamie MacMillan

In an attempt to bolster themselves against a deregulated industry, three northern Michigan electrical cooperatives are prepared to merge into one when the calendar turns to 1999.

Top O' Michigan, an electrical utility based in Boyne City that serves 9,600 clients in Charlevoix County, and Great Lakes Energy and Western Michigan Electric will combine forces to better market themselves in the competition driven future, company officials said.

"We fully expect open competition within the next five years in Michigan," said Dave Guzniczak, communications director for Top O' Michigan. "We need to be prepared to compete for our own customers as well as for new customers if we want to continue to grow."

Top O' Michigan began diversifying its product line last spring to include propane, a heating and cooling division and Internet services as an initial step toward a more appealing product.

Guzniczak said the three entities came together because they share a similar philosophy about diversified products, and, in the case of Great Lakes, have experience with mergers. Great Lakes was born after a merger between co-ops O & A Electric and Oceana Electric in 1996.

Top O' Michigan serves 52,000 clients throughout a 12-county region in northwest lower Michigan, but 85 percent of their business is done in Antrim, Charlevoix, Kalkaska, Otsego, Emmet and Crawford counties. The co-op also serves Grand Traverse, Cheboygan, Montmorency, Missaukee, Oscoda and Wexford counties, but, in each case, serves less than 800 clients in those counties.

Great Lakes services more than 41,000 clients in west Michigan while Western Michigan serves about 13,000 customers in the Mason and Lake county areas.

The merger won't be official unless approval is granted by each company's customer-owners. An election Saturday, Aug. 8 during the companies' separate annual meetings will determine if the merger will be completed.

Without a merger, company officials fear that in time they may be squeezed out of the utility industry.

"There will always be a company to deliver electricity into homes, we want to make sure that it is us," Guzniczak said. "If we do nothing, our highest fear is that we would lose the local touch."

For the moment, no rate increase is projected as a result of the merger. Should the companies combine, a rate study would be done during the first year, and any rate hikes wouldn't materialize until at least that is completed and analyzed, Guzniczak said.

Top O' Michigan has not raised their rates since 1992, when they issued a 4.92 percent increase, Guzniczak said. Right now an average monthly bill for a residential

The Top O' Michigan building, shown here in Boyne City, will soon become part of a bigger utility company if a proposed merger is approved by customer-owners. (Photo by Jamie MacMillan)

Top O' Michigan customer is $61.66.

If merged, the company would be named the Great Lakes Energy Cooperative, and would have joint headquarters in Boyne City and Newaygo.

Regional bus system is slow to get rolling

By Jamie MacMillan

"Slow, but positive," is how transit officials said their regional bus system is progressing after 10 weeks of operation.

According to Joe DeKoning, chairman of the Northwest Regional Transportation Committee, ridership on the busses is one-quarter of the way to estimated monthly projections, while use of the Health Rides are closer to one-half of anticipated riders.

Beginning in late March, the Regional Ride was created in an attempt to connect six northern Michigan counties - Charlevoix, Antrim, Kalkaska, Grand Traverse, Leelanau and Benzie - through a regional transit system.

Officials projected a yearly use of 16,000 customers and so far between 300-400 people have stepped onto their buses.

The Health Ride, a more specific system which picks up clients at home and transports them to medical appointments, has had over 400 riders since February, DeKoning said. It is hoped that 11,000 riders take advantage of the Health Ride yearly.

While noting that business needs to pick up to match their estimates, DeKoning cautioned that it's too early to judge the acceptance of the system.

Like every other northern Michigan business, a summer boom is expected.

To help spur that boom, officials announced last week that the northern route along U.S. 31 will be rerouted to the Glen's Market. The bus will then go north along M-66, pick up riders at the Glen's in Charlevoix before heading south down U.S. 31. The route will stop in Eastport, Elk Rapids and Acme before pulling into Traverse City at the Bay Area Transit Authority (BATA). Previously the route went from Boyne City to Charlevoix via the Boyne City-Charlevoix road, north downtown Charlevoix. "We want to avoid the tie-ups at the bridge in Charlevoix during the summertime," Charlevoix County transit director Arthur Saworski said. "We were getting minimal response from the north side of Lake Charlevoix."

Regional buses are currently running with fewer riders than anticipated, but officials are hoping the multi-county bus runs will become more popular during the summer. (Photo by Jamie MacMillan)

The system has two other routes: a U.S. 31 South route that travels from Frankfort to Traverse City with 14 stops in between, and a second route that starts in Boyne City that goes to Boyne Falls, heads south down U.S. 131 and turns west down M-72 at Kalkaska before settling into Traverse City.

One bus handles each route, and the two routes starting in Boyne City make three round-trips a day, while the U.S. 31 south route makes two round-trips. DeKoning noted a third trip could be added to the southern route.

The buses do not run on weekends. Three full-time drivers were hired to drive the buses, with a starting wage of $8.55 an hour, Saworski said. The remainder of the driving staff will be filled out by drivers already employed by the counties' transit authorities.

The system is working with a $308,000 budget. Saworski said 18.5 percent of that has been spent, while revenues from fares has collected 17.9 percent of the expected budget.

Final plans were recently formulated for a summer travel golf league among four northern Michigan golf courses. Representatives from the Charlevoix Country Club, Dunmaglas, Antrim Dells and Agaming courses met recently and decided that each course will compete with six, two-man teams with the lowest handicapped golfers playing as team #1, the next two lowest as team #2, etc.

SPORTS

Soccer team names most valuable players

Sophomore forward Erika Kammermann was named Most Valuable Player for the 1998 season during an awards picnic last week honoring the Charlevoix Rayders girls' soccer team.

Kammermann led the team in scoring, knocking in nine goals while setting up six others with assists.

Nineteen girls were given varsity letters including seniors Sarah Schofield and Katy Conlan, both of whom became the first four-year letter winners in the program's history.

Senior Lisa Skippergosh won the Most Improved Player award and Lindsey Carland, Carrie Beemon and Brooke Block won coaches awards for their leadership abilities.

Goalie Kristy Shindorf won the Luther Award.

Travel golf league formed

Final plans were recently formulated for a summer travel golf league among four northern Michigan golf courses. Representatives from the Charlevoix Country Club, Dunmaglas, Antrim Dells and Agaming courses met recently and decided that each course will compete with six, two-man teams with the lowest handicapped golfers playing as team #1, the next two lowest as team #2, etc.

Each course will host league play twice during the double round robin season. The organizers decided that the play will be similar to that of the Ryder Cup, so scheduled events will follow best ball, alternate shot and formats.

Each team will have a team captain as well as a team representative on the Rules and Appeals Committee.

The first match is scheduled for June 19 and will be hosted by Antrim Dells with a 2:30 p.m. tee-off time.

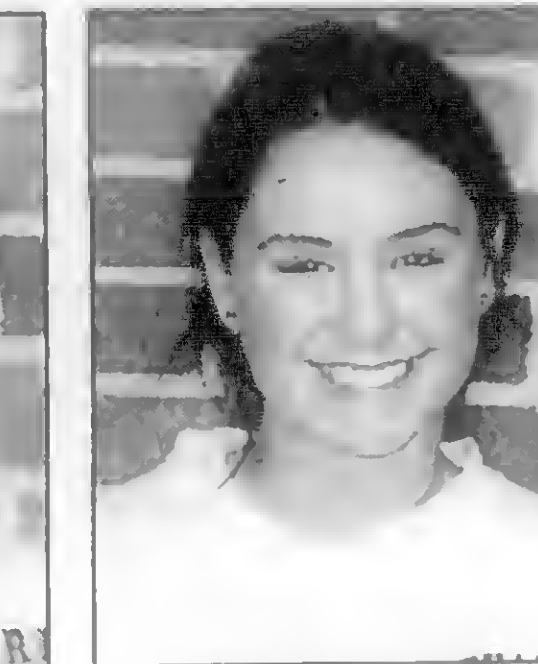

There is a final organizational luncheon meeting at the Charlevoix Country Club for team managers and playing captains at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 16. For more information, call Ron Branicki at 547-9796 or Dean Davenport at 547-6433.

Track team finishes impressively at state meet

By Jamie MacMillan

Despite not collecting any medals, one school record and three other season-low times were registered by Charlevoix relay teams at the state track and field finals Saturday afternoon in Grand Rapids.

The 400 relay of Amanda Eaton, Karianne Miller, AnneMarie Terryberry and Tricia Kelly crossed the finish line in 52.68 seconds, breaking the school record of 52.89. The 400 relay had been one of the team's top events, as Saturday's record was the fourth time a combination from this year's squad set a new record.

Despite the record, the quartet fell just shy of medal contention with an 11th place finish. The top eight in each event won a medal.

A similar fate befell the other Rayder relay runners as each improved upon previous bests, but couldn't land a medal.

The 800 relay of Eaton, Terryberry, Kelly and Jamie Gowell finished in 1-minute, 50.8 seconds; the 1,600 relay of Eaton, Gowell, Terryberry and Tricia Hodge ran a 4:18; and the 3,200 relay of Laura Schairbaum, Candice Vandergriff, Liza Gorkiewicz and Hodge finished in 10:09.

"We ran quite well," coach Ken Plude said. "We wanted to get some hardware, but we finished just out of the medal hunt."

Angie Potter and Kelly competed in the pole vault and 100-yard dash respectively, but neither advanced into the finals.

The state meet put the finishing touches on a stirring season that saw the girls run away with the conference title, the first title since 1993, and qualify the most individuals — 10 — for the state finals in recent history.

"We had a great season, and had a lot of fun," Plude said. "I had a great group this year, they worked hard all season."

SCRAPBOOK

It won't be the first time that roads have been moved

By Marilyn Boss

With the changes planned for the new intersection of Marion Center Road and U.S. 31 South, I decided to reminisce about the way we used to travel in and out of Charlevoix. The late Henry Stephan owned a White Rose gas station on the corner of Barnard Road and U.S. 31 South. He told how, in 1932, when the depression was at its worst, he had a good job building the long cement curve in the highway that now comes into town, past the airport. He made enough money to buy a brand new, big, black Buick 4-door sedan. You would see him every Saturday night, parked in front of Mont's Cafe on Bridge Street. He would leave both doors open. His father-in-law, George Washington Dennis, would sit in the back seat with his daughter, Marilda, who was Henry's wife. With the doors open, they would converse with Charlevoix people walking down Bridge Street.

Until this time, U.S. 31 came down the old Norwood Road, which crossed the property where the airport runways are today. Mr. Hansen had a gas station across from the Senior Center, which was on the main road. At the corner of Sheridan and Antrim streets, where Don and Joyce Brown now live, was another gas station. The highway then turned right and went down Antrim Street, and the boulevard lights that are there today are from that era. This was in the teens and 1920's.

State Street ran from the Congregational Church to the main gate at the cemetery, a straight shot. This was a distance of exactly one mile. The big curve cut State Street in two. In the early sixties, M-66 was rerouted, beginning with the Water's Edge Driveway on Ferry Avenue, continuing straight ahead, across Matthew's potato field, and ended where it is today, at the present stop light. At that time, the south portion of State Street was abandoned because there were too many intersections.

M-66 used to go past DME (formerly American Mold) to Nanny's corner. It continued up the hill on Stover Road, turned north on May Street and then west on Garfield, ending at St. Mary's corner. With all the development on the new M-66, and the amount of traffic on the Marion Center Road, it is now very dangerous for vehicles to get on or off that four-way intersection. Marion Center Road has the greatest amount of traffic of any county road in Charlevoix County, according to traffic surveys. It is like pouring traffic into a funnel with no way to empty it. Cars, trucks and buses of every description are cutting through the driveway on the north end of the old Village Car Care building, to keep from going through the hazardous intersection.

The new entrance to Brookside Cemetery will be M-66 opposite the "Welcome to Charlevoix" sign. With all the changes for the better, let's hope the new mayor-elect, Butch Russell, will be able to save the beautiful stone pillars which are at the entrance to the cemetery. His grandfather, Milt Russell, did the masonry work on them.

He was one of the finest stone masons that this area has ever had, and with the equipment that is available today, it should be feasible to move them to the new gate location, rather than leave them in someone's back yard.

This entrance to the cemetery will be closed if the new Marion Center Road project becomes a reality. Marilyn Boss suggests that the stone gates be preserved and moved to the new entrance on M-66, in an effort to maintain the heritage of the cemetery. (Photo courtesy of Marilyn Boss)

School will be over $400,000 in debt for 1998-99 school year

By Jamie MacMillan

The Charlevoix Board of Education gave its approval Monday night to a budget for the 1998-99 school year that is over $400,000 in the red.

School officials expect to spend $10,125,910 while bringing in revenue of only $9,704,580.

As a result of the $421,330 over spending, the district's fund balance is expected to dip below the $2 million mark when July 1999 rolls around.

Currently at over $2.2 million, it is projected the school fund will be down to $1,864,129 by next summer.

Income revenue is expected to decline by nearly $500,000 due to the closing of the Big Rock Point Nuclear Power Plant. Property values have declined, but more relevant to the school's tax revenue, student enrollment will also dip due to the plant's closing.

School districts receive a per student stipend from the state, this year expected to be $6,849 per student. Enrollment estimates for Charlevoix show a decline of 29 students from last year to 1,321 throughout the K-12 district.

Also cramping revenues is that the state is freezing the per student stipend for this year. Typically the allowance increases two percent every year, but because of the multi-billion dollar Durant settlement, state officials have told districts not to expect any increase this year.

The Durant case, a long-standing special education lawsuit, awarded Charlevoix $168,140 last year. That money was a one-time payment, and is another revenue difference between the last two years.

The district has yet to spend its Durant money, so it could be rolled over to the 1998-99 budget, Judy Boss, district business manager, said.

The most notable difference on the spending side of the ledger is a 35 percent increase in outgoing cash, from $296,300 to $400,300 due to payouts for the early retirement program enacted in May 1997.

Both Boss and board president Allen Telgenhof noted that the school hopes to recoup some of that money in the long run.

In other news, the board approved the hiring of Julie Bernhardt as part time kindergarten teacher.

Amid an overall decline of students, the kindergarten class is increasing to as many as 120 students next year, forcing the district to hire another faculty member.

Bernhardt, a Harbor Springs native, is a graduate of Central Michigan University and has experience student teaching in the area, including various stints at Charlevoix Elementary School.

A hiring committee interviewed eight candidates and brought three back for a second interview before settling on Bernhardt.

The board next meets at 7 p.m. Monday, July 13 in the high school study hall.

Host family needed

A host family in this area is needed for a 16-year-old girl from Germany for the upcoming high school year. She can share a room, has been well screened for flexibility in adjusting to a busy working household, and has her own spending money and medical insurance. Rural and city families as well as couples with grown children are encouraged to volunteer. The host family provides room, board and a once in a lifetime opportunity for a foreign teen to attend an American high school.

The sponsoring program is the nonprofit Council for Educational Travel USA, which each year matches high school exchange students with hosts for a year of cultural and academic enrichment. According to the program coordinators, Richard and Sharon Andrew of Indian River, there is also a boy from Mainland China who speaks excellent English and is looking forward to living with a family that shares his interests in reading and attending sporting events.

For more information, call Richard or Sharon Andrew at (616) 548-5594 or toll free at (888) 238-8723.

From petunia-lined streets...

This is the second story in a series that looks at Charlevoix High School graduates who have left Charlevoix to make their mark on the world.

By Jamie MacMillan

Most people have modest goals coming out of college, like landing a good job, starting a family or losing all those pounds gained from the social aspects of campus life.

Others, like Charlevoix resident Rebecca Chamberlain, are looking beyond the scope of everyday life.

Chamberlain, a 1995 Charlevoix High School graduate, has set her sights on solving one of history's more contentious disputes — the war in the Balkans.

The latest incarnation of the war, which dates back to before the New World was discovered, deals with a mishmash of states created from the former Yugoslavia.

Chamberlain has had an educational interest in the area since high school, when reports on the nightly news during dinner time transfixed her.

Leaving Charlevoix for Wheaton College, a school of 1,400 students in upstate Massachusetts, she took a class in eastern European politics. That rekindled her interest in the area and her desire to devote her life to finding a solution.

She decided to major in international relations with a focus on Yugoslavian politics, while minoring in political science. Last summer she interned in Washington D.C. at the Network of East-West Women, which linked connections between women in the U.S. and their counterparts in eastern Europe. This past semester she conducted an independent study on Bosnia/Yugoslavian policy and presented a separate project at the Davis Center for the Russian Studies 50th anniversary banquet.

There she mingled with ambassadors from the Balkan region and shared a dinner table with Bill Richardson, United States Ambassador to the United Nations.

"They were never meant to live together," Chamberlain said, discussing the many different ethnic groups living as neighbors in the Balkans. "They would rather hate than forgive. They're holding on to age-old hatreds."

Interestingly, Chamberlain would like to incorporate two aspects of life learned in Charlevoix into any possible peace scenario in the

Cost puts a kink in new road proposal

By Laurie Lounsbury

With some doubts expressed by councilmen, the city council voted to hold a public hearing about the proposed new Marion Center Road project.

The council has until Aug. 4 to make a commitment on the project, when their option to buy the land will expire.

"I'm not in favor of it, when I think a traffic signal at M-66 and Stover Road would handle it (the traffic problem) quite nicely," said councilman Bob Timms. "And it could handle it at about 2 percent of the cost."

Mayor Josh Barnes disagreed with Timms, saying that the state road experts considered a traffic signal and ruled it out as a viable solution.

The proposal to reroute Marion Center Road onto U.S. 31 south of the city would cost the city $330,000 to buy the land and an additional $75-$100,000 to build the road.

Council members reported that constituents are divided on the issue, with some balking at the cost and others saying it's a good idea. Objections also include the possibility that traffic in and out of the cemetery on M-66 and traffic coming out of the Citizens Bank branch on M-66 will create new traffic problems where currently there are few or none.

Shirley Roloff, who owns property between U.S. 31 and Stover Road, said drifting snow will also be a problem.

With the exception of Timms, council voted to hold a public hearing July 20 to pursue the matter. Land owners in the area are encouraged to talk to city staff and city manager Mike Wiesner before the hearing to address potential problems.

In other business, the council heard a presentation from Dave Garner of Lasertainment, a laser show company based in Minneapolis that was hired to perform a laser show during the Venetian Festival.

Using lake water, the group will pump water into the air to create a large water screen and project graphics and animations onto the screen. The show will be choreographed to music.

Since the screen is a wall of water, Garner made it clear that the laser show will be best viewed from East Park.

"Everyone will be able to see the atmospheric lasers, but best viewing for the water screen will be in East Park," said John Taylor, festival chairman. The atmospheric lasers are similar to laser search lights, Taylor said.

"It's a very dynamic show, unique for a one-night situation," Garner said. "It will be similar to what you'd see in a theme park."

Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce President Jacqueline Merta said Lasertainment did a similar show in Holland, Mich., for a crowd of 30,000 to 40,000 attending the Tulip Festival.

Balkans - a sense of community and faith.

"I noticed it during the petunia planting," she said of town spirit. "It's wonderful and amazing how the whole community comes out to share and get to know each other. It's what life is about."

In the Balkans, a sense of community is lacking. There is no interaction between cultures and nobody is encouraged to step beyond simple ethnic boundaries and develop a sense of community, Chamberlain said.

Strong religious faith, she said, would also go a long way in solving the centuries old struggle. Chamberlain noted that three strong religious influences exist in the Balkans: Orthodox Christian, Catholicism and Muslim- but they work to inspire conflict rather than promote peace and harmony.

Chamberlain, a Protestant, found her faith in the preachings of Pastor Harold Kruse at the Ironton Congregational Church. Prayer and the teachings of the Bible has had a strong influence on Chamberlain, who quite often attended services while her family stayed home.

Her faith has helped Chamberlain grow into who she is. She said it could do wonders in Bosnia, simply based on the fact that something bigger is out there that dwarfs the pain and hardship the people are experiencing.

Educationally, Chamberlain noted that she gets much better grades now than she did while walking through the halls of the Charlevoix school district.

At times she said she could slide through classes and lacked inspiration during spells. In college, though, her interest peaked because more was required from her, not so much from a workload standpoint, but, rather, her ability to think.

She said Charlevoix's academic curriculum could be vastly improved just by incorporating more critical thinking in lesson plans. Teaching how to question and ask why things are the way they are is the first step toward showing off the fun side of learning, she said.

"At times there weren't enough opportunities to challenge students," she said, noting the lack of Advanced Placement courses.

After three years of undergraduate study, Chamberlain is in the top 10 of her class and carries a grade point average of 3.86. Today

Chamberlain chuckles at her academic success because during high school, students were often told their chances of improved grades in college were slim.

Chamberlain ran track and cross-country in high school and has continued those pursuits in college on the outdoor and indoor track teams. She holds six school records at Wheaton in distant events ranging from 1,500 meters to 5,000. A foot injury kept her out of action this past season, but when healthy, she typically embarks on eight-mile jogs for training.

"It has helped my drive, determination, and work ethic," she said of running. "It certainly has spilled over into my academics."

Chamberlain said the performing arts classes she took as a high school underclassman helped develop her confidence speaking and expressing thoughts in front of people. Teachers like Gordon Robinson, Jim Kanine and Ken Plude pushed her to reach her potential then and even now as she regularly keeps in contact with them.

Chamberlain noted that she didn't develop a sense of identity until she reached college. Life in a small, resort town can be a bit suffocating and one-dimensional, and Chamberlain said in Charlevoix a lot of pressure exists to dress the right way and be seen with the right people.

"In Charlevoix a lot of the townspeople spend so much time trying to keep up with the summer resort people," she said. "They feel inadequate unless they have a nice car or boat. It feeds into the kids that they have to be a certain way."

tainment) outstanding recommendations," Merta said.

The actual screen of water will be about 60 feet in height and 120 feet in diameter. The projection area on the screen will be about 40 feet wide by 40 feet in height.

The company will build scaffolding to lift the water nozzle at least 10 feet off the lake surface, increasing the height of the screen for viewers in the park. The screen will be 250-300 feet away from the East Park shoreline.

Audience members were concerned about moored boats in Round Lake blocking the view from the park. Audience member Harper Camp asked if the people lined along Belvedere Avenue and Dixon Avenue would be able to see any of the show.

Garner said, acknowledging that the side view is not the best.

"Lasertainment is really committed to having as many people as possible view the show," Taylor said. "The bottom line is, we have a lot of logistical things to solve." Garner said his company has a $2 million liability insurance policy, which will include the city of Charlevoix and the chamber of commerce.

"I'm comfortable with that," said city attorney Jim Young. "It's hard for me to imagine there would be a problem with projected light."

Life after high school is varied for grads

By Jamie MacMillan

Sunday afternoon, 97 Charlevoix High School seniors penned the final chapter of their high school years at the school's annual commencement ceremony.

"It's kind of a sad time," graduate Ryan Murdick said. "When you shake hands and say 'in case I don't see you again,' you wonder if it'll be the 10 year reunion when you see everyone again."

With high school careers behind them, many are out to prove that the song verse is true that every new beginning starts with some other beginning's end.

According to surveys that 85 of the seniors filled out, 58 plan to enter college next year, either at a four-year institution or at a community college.

"We push them to understand that they need some kind of training beyond this," high school counselor Toni Felter said. "Unless you want a bottom job, you need to go out and make yourself more marketable."

As for Murdick's concern of everyone going their separate ways, 10 schools throughout the state will have more than one Rayder 1998 graduate enrolled in next fall's freshmen class.

Grand Valley State and Lake Superior State top the list of four-year schools attracting Charlevoix graduates, with six apiece, while the University of Michigan will have five.

However, the most popular school among the departing seniors is North Central Michigan Community College in Petoskey. Nine from the class of 1998 will be in next year's freshmen class.

"I just want to keep my foot in the door," Angela Stockman said.

Stockman admitted that she would like to take some time to recharge before venturing to a larger, out of town four-year school. Taking classes at NCMC will keep her mind on education, she said, and she might transfer out as soon as January. Others are planning to go the full route at NCMC and graduate in two years with an associate's degree before eyeing a larger school.

"I want to stay out of student debt — that doesn't appeal to me at all," Tim Tebeau said. Tebeau plans to attend Michigan to major in English after earning his associate's degree. He said core requirements can be done at NCMC, so why not save some money.

According to Felter, Tebeau represents a growing trend at Charlevoix of students attending "Twenty students are not planning on attending college, while another four are still undecided about next year's immediate future. Shunning college, though, doesn't mean they lack direction."

Murdick, for example, will enter a golf professional training program next fall in Arizona. The three-year program is a series of classroom instruction with a focus on business and golf skills. Murdick said a career as a golf pro is the goal, and said going on tour could be a possibility in the long run with some improvement and luck.

"I've been around golf pros all my life, and always looked up to them," said Murdick, who was a member of the Rayder golf team which qualified for the state finals in 1997. "I couldn't think of a better job in life than being a golf pro."

For Ben Mathers, Sunday's ceremony was just a precursor to other summer ceremonies as he will marry his fiancée Melissa later this month.

"It'll be about the same, but more joyous, because this is the woman I want to spend the rest of my life with," Mathers said, comparing the two June soirees.

For Mathers, life after high school means working to help pay for the new house the couple purchased in the East Jordan area. He plans on working for the East Jordan Iron Works, and, in time, may take advantage of benefit packages the foundry offers to attend college classes. For now, he's ready to join the work force.

"School has led me up to this, but it's time for me to go out and make some money."

NCMC during high school to earn college credits. Tebeau will enter college next fall with 15 credit hours under his belt after taking a variety of English Composition courses at the college throughout the past year.

"With a whole semester done, that's half a year I don't have to take in the long run," he said.

OPINIONS

In love and war, no one wants to be forced to submit

Laurie Lounsbury

Like everyone else in the United States, I recently heard that the male leaders of the Southern Baptist Church have come forth with a shiny new edict — "Wives should graciously submit to the servant leadership of their husbands."

Whoa, there, southern big boys. I believe you're fixin' to piss me off. Naturally, I was immediately offended by this statement.

It is the word 'submit' that really riles me, along with most women. I looked 'submit' up in the dictionary and this is what I learned.

"Submit: From the Latin, submittere, to lower."

Ouch. We're off to a bad start.

To lower? I've heard of lowering the boom, lowering taxes (as a concept, not something that really happens), lowering your standards after a string of dateless months — or years — but lowering a person?

Lowering your wife? Moving right along with Webster's definition of 'submit,' it said, "To yield to governance or authority. To surrender. To permit oneself to be subjected to something."

Them's fightin' words. Literally.

To yield to governance, to surrender, are phrases that apply to war times. The vanquished must submit, or surrender, to the victor.

Do we want war phrases associated with marriage?

Every successful marriage I've encountered is based on mutual respect and equality within the partnership. Conversely, almost every case of divorce I've known has revolved around inequality. Power struggles. Forced submission.

Now, these Southern Baptists are supposed to be promoting harmonious marriages and strong family values. They are serious religious folks, adhering to the good word of the Bible.

In fact, the Reverend Albert J. Mohler Jr. of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary is extremely fond of quoting the apostle Paul in the Ephesians chapter of the Bible. Remember, Paul was a mere mortal, offering his opinion of how women should behave toward men.

Paul was never married. What did he know about a good marriage?

Paul also said slaves should submit to their masters. No American would tolerate slavery anymore — why should women tolerate slave-like submission?

"We are responding to a real crisis in the culture of the American family," said Reverend Jerry Falwell. "It's the Christian model. It's 2,000 years old."

The concept is 2,000 years old. It's written in a 2,000 year-old book. Does the word 'antiquated' mean anything here?

I'm a little rusty on my Bible stories, but I remember a story about Jesus when he went to visit his pals Mary and Martha. Jesus sat down on whatever they used for couches back then, and Mary promptly sat on the floor at his feet, where she proceeded to bathe his tired toes.

Loosely translated, Jesus said to her, "Hey, Mary, you don't have to wash my tired dogs. Come on up here, have a seat next to me and let's shoot the breeze for a while."

To my recollection, Jesus treated Mary like an equal.

Okay, that was really loosely translated, but that is my interpretation of the story. And that's the problem. Everyone has their own way of interpreting the Bible. While everyone is free to interpret the Bible as they choose, they should not force their interpretation on others.

My husband asked me why this issue was a big deal to me.

"Who cares if the Southern Baptists want their wives to submit to them?" he asked me. "It doesn't have anything to do with us."

I disagree.

If the Southern Baptists are successful in enforcing this wifely submission thing, then a whole bunch of other conservative religious groups will jump on the bandwagon and incorporate similar policies in their churches. As the numbers grow, the voices will get louder and more forceful.

Soon, a little bunch of minority wives will be desperately defending their right to NOT submit to their husbands.

Even if the edict remains within the boundaries of Southern Baptism, it has an insidious ripple effect on the rest of the population.

At a recent social gathering, I noticed husbands kidding their wives about submitting to their requests.

It started as a little joke here and there.

"You mean you're not going to submit to my request for you to jump up and get the potato salad?" one husband asked.

After a while, that submission is-sure popped into the conversation more and more often. Even though we assumed the men were just kidding, it started to fray the edges of our equality. We started to feel just a teensy bit guilty for not submitting.

That is definitely not a good thing.

TV lawyer Greta Von Something-or-other staunchly defended the Southern Baptists' right to make up their own religious rules. If she is right, and religious groups are free to do their own thing in America, then why did we try to meddle with Jimmy Jones, Heaven's Gate and David Koresh?

Why should we tolerate one religious group that requires women to submit to their husbands, then frown on another religious group that requires its followers to commit suicide or polygamy?

It's a fuzzy, thin line, that separation between church and state. But I'd like to think constitutional rights take precedence over the religious right.

BEACONS

Beacons of Blessing
By Joe Johnston
Charlevoix Assembly of God

When I was a kid I used to complain to myself about the lack of participation of my dad in my life. I grew up in a middle class Christian home with high morals and values, but there always seemed to be something missing. My parents were still married, and apart from an occasional spat they seemed relatively happy. They both had good jobs and my brother and sister and I were well fed. The complaints I lodged were not those of a lack of substance but attentiveness.

I enjoy sports as does my dad. However, when I was involved in a team or game activity, often my father was too busy to attend them. Now, let me say that he did attend over half of the games, but I felt like he should attend all or nearly all of them. For me, the presence of my father at my important events was crucial.

I have worked with young people and sports for 10 years. I realize now I never had it so good. Many of (my) students are from broken homes or homes nearly broken. The family structure seems to be in disarray. Quite honestly, it appears as if many of the fathers have been abducted from the planet. Actually, they are still here, but not involved. Many schools report they have nearly a whopping 10% of parental support at the middle school and high school level.

Have we become so engrossed with the race to keep up with the Joneses that we have neglected our own offspring? I have not been blessed with children of my own yet, but I see signs of a life filled with clutter or "other important things."

Scripture records that when a society is in need of salvation one of the first things that must happen is the hearts of the fathers must be turned back to their children. (Luke 1:17).

A recent survey tells us that the average father spends 35 seconds in meaningful interaction with their child each day. Dad, I challenge you to do better than this. Your kids need you.

Natural area continues to gain local support

At the very northeastern tip of Antrim County's Chain of Lakes is a special strip of river corridor nestled between St. Clair and Six Mile lakes. A handful of individuals who call themselves the St. Clair Lake-Six Mile Lake Natural Area (SCL/SML) Committee have been working tirelessly to protect this river stretch that constitutes the top of the necklace known as the Chain of Lakes.

Just this past April, a major milestone was accomplished when the Grand Traverse Regional Land Conservancy (GTRLC) obtained purchase options to secure and protect the last two privately-owned parcels along one-and-one-quarter mile of river frontage.

Last month, most of the funding needed to complete the purchases was raised by members of the Malpass family of East Jordan. Their gifts were given through the Charlevoix Regional Community Foundation.

The Malpass family has strong family ties to the northern Chain of Lakes, but they are especially interested in seeing the natural area protected so that it can be used by local school groups for environmental education. The natural area is strategically located between several school districts, including Charlevoix, East Jordan, Ellsworth, Central Lake, and Boyne City schools.

The natural preserve committee has been working with both the Grand Traverse Regional Land Conservancy (based in Traverse City) and the Little Traverse Conservancy (based in Harbor Springs) to expand protection of the beautiful river piece by piece. Nearly 190 acres with over 8,700 feet of shoreline have been permanently protected for the natural area.

"This has been a project that has required much patience, but that patience has certainly paid off," explained Ty Ratliff, GTRLC Land Protection Specialist. Ratliff has been handling the legal negotiations between the landowners for purchasing the land. "These two most recent parcels are both shoreline properties - located on each side of the existing F. Bruce Malpass Preserve - with sensitive river wetlands."

"In the entire one-and-one-quarter mile stretch of land that is now natural area, the only 'human-made' structure is a dock," said Joanne Beemon, Chair of the SCL/SML Committee.

The landowners who are selling their properties for these latest additions to the natural area are Jim Ernst and Chuck and Dawn Ward. "I wanted my property to be like a legacy to my son, so he would always have a place where wildlife would flourish. So it meant a lot to me to have it left natural," explained Ernst.

Two anonymous donors established the campaign through the Regional Land Conservancy, which has been working to protect land in the Chain since 1991.

If you would like to help protect this wonderful natural resource, the Chain of Lakes Challenge Cam-

Chamber to host 68th annual Venetian Queen contest

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce will again sponsor the Miss Charlevoix Venetian Scholarship Competition during the 68th Annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival. This year's competition will award a scholarship of up to $1,500 for the winning candidate and up to $500 for the first runner-up. Candidates must be between the ages of 16 and 22 as of the date of the competition and must have a primary residence in Charlevoix, or have graduated from the Charlevoix School District. Entry forms will list other qualifications or entry requirements.

Following the format established during last year's competition, candidates will participate in an interview with judges from outside the Charlevoix area, with the decision of the judges being based on the candidate's knowledge of Charlevoix, the Venetian Festival, poise, ability to express themselves and general presentation. The winning candidates will best represent the city and the people of Charlevoix.

Coronation will be at Charlevoix

High School's Kipke Athletic Field in conjunction with the Venetian Festival Drum and Bugle Corps Competition Friday, July 24, which begins at 7:15 p.m. Applications are available at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce office.

State track meet appeals to athletes of all ages

By Jamie MacMillan

World record holders, state champions and competitors ranging in age from 10 to 90 years old gathered at Charlevoix's Kipke Field Saturday for the U.S.A. Track and Field Michigan Open and Masters State Championships.

According to meet director Mary Plude, the meet drew its biggest crowd ever with 87 athletes competing, a 45 percent increase from last year's field of 59.

The event, in Charlevoix for the second straight year, has nearly tripled from 30 since moving to the event north.

The move from downstate locales to Charlevoix in 1997 raised a few skeptical eyebrows from state athletic officials who thought the town was both too small and remote to attract state wide competitors. Instead, the charm that is northern Michigan is proving to be a greater attraction than anything else, Plude said.

"It's been really great. Those who came last year brought someone else with them this year and made a weekend out of it," Plude said. "It's amazing, the network out there, because most of the publicity for the meet is word of mouth."

Saturday began on an auspicious note with morning rain showers causing a delay in the beginning of the field events. The race-walk and 5,000 kilometer runs began in the drizzle, and by noon, the sun appeared from behind the clouds, radiating heat on the athletes.

"It turned out perfect," Plude said of the weather. "The older athletes need the warmth to help stay loose."

Athletes in both the men's and women's meets competed in age groups ranging from 29 and under (Open) and on up in five year increments.

The youngest athlete in the field was Ryan Brown, 10, of Onkema, who competed in the 1,500, 200 and pole vault. The oldest in the field was Charlevoix's 90-year-old Stewart Boal who ran the 100 meter dash.

Clearly the highlight of the meet was Boal. Most other events stopped as athletes from those events lined the infield to watch Boal, cane and all, make his trek down the straightaway.

Other notable entrants in the meet

Charlevoix's Stewart Boal coasts to the finish line in his 100-meter dash heat. At 90 years young, Boal was the oldest athlete in the 87-member field that converged on Charlevoix's Kipke Field on Saturday.

were National Master's Pentathlon Champion Chuck Socher and Earl Fee, owner of 17 world records. The pair both competed in the 65-69 division and proved inspiring to one of the younger competitors in the field.

"I really liked it, it was interesting watching the older age groups," Allana Mestelle, who competed in the event for the first time, said.

Mestelle, 17, ventured north from White Pigeon, near the Indiana-Michigan border, for the meet. The recent high school graduate is a three-time class C state champion with titles in the 100 and 200 in 1997 and 100 in 1998.

Mestelle, who won the Open 100 event, said she spent time in between events hitting her elders up for advice, and was particularly moved by one competitor who ran side by side with Jesse Owens in the 1936 U.S. Olympic Trials, but did not travel to the Olympics because he didn't have the cash to do so.

"It was overwhelming," she said. "It helped me realize what I can accomplish if I try hard and keep my spirits up."

Among the throng of athletes was a nice-sized contingent from Charlevoix, led by high school track and field coach Ken Plude. In the 35-39-year-old division Plude competed in six different events, earning five first places and one second place.

"It was fun going all day," he said of the constant action. "Sitting around is no fun."

Other Charlevoix residents in action included Chris LeBut (Open), 300 hurdles, first, shot put, first; Cindy Leiberman (women's 35-39) 200, first, 1,500, first; Laurie Keller

(women's 50-54) 5,000, first; Marilyn Morehead (women's 55-59) 800, first; Kraag Leiberman (men's 45-49) 200, third; and Paul

Soccer team takes on state's best teams

Charlevoix's U-14 girls' soccer team competed in the Petoskey Soccer Invitational over the weekend, compiling an 0-2-1 record in round robin play.

The ladies played Petoskey to a 1-1 deadlock, but dropped a pair of games to two different southern Michigan select teams, 1-0 and 2-0.

The squad, coached by Carol Madison, was playing in the prestigious 180-team tournament after the completion of local league play that saw the club earn the league championship.

In the double elimination format, the team came from the loser's bracket to win four in a row to take the title. In the finals, they bested Tawas in a shootout. The tournament win came on the heels of a 5-1-2 regular season.

Jennifer Rowe was the team's goal keeper and leading goal scorer.

"The Way it Was," a new Courier Scrapbook feature

Editor's note: Cynthia Postmus, working with the Charlevoix Public Library, has graciously agreed to provide the Courier with a new Scrapbook feature, "The Way it Was." This new column will feature news clips from old issues of the Charlevoix Courier and the Charlevoix Sentinel, the Courier's predecessor. With this first feature, it's interesting to note that topical issues 50 and 100 years ago are much the same today. We will reprint stories from old papers in their entirety, exactly as they were written (including typographical errors and spelling errors).

Charlevoix Sentinel, June 15, 1898 — "The High School Commencement."

Although a violent thunder storm came up Friday evening, the M.E. church was fairly well filled to give the class of '98 a "send off."

Six girls graduates, in spotless white, and one boy graduate in equally spotless black, occupied the altar platform, and were, of course, the tradition "cynosure of all eyes."

The musical numbers were all well rendered. The chief number of the program was the address by Principal Ferris, of the Big Rapids Normal School, on "How to Make the World Better." He spoke for more than an hour and a half, and a Charlevoix audience was never better entertained or more highly edified. The talk was an eminently practical one and abounded in plain truth, forcibly spoken.

The banquet at the Hotel Bartlett

Saturday night, was an elaborate and ably conducted affair. The decorations were beautiful, and the menu and service a credit to that popular hotel. About 85 covers were laid.

It was a "feast of reason," as well as of edibles, and the evening was a most enjoyable one.

The class of '98 step out into the world from its school days with many friends to wish them health and success, and the class of '99 will now claim our attention.

Charlevoix Courier, June 9, 1948 — "Citizen Protests Parking Meters"

Protesting both the parking meters and the way the law is enforced, Jess George Monday night asked the City Council what is done with the money collected.

It goes to the police fund, he was told. He stated that such funds are supposed to provide additional parking space and charged that the city was doing nothing to provide such space.

He asked why the meters were put out May this year instead of June as last year. City Supt. A.G. Leitch said that business places along the street had asked for them to break up the all-day down town parking by some city residents.

Safe boating is an important part of an enjoyable summer

People think their boat or personal water craft is a big toy. But that toy can hurt you if not used with safety in mind, said Sheriff Lasater.

The most important thing you can do, according to the sheriff's department officials, is to have the proper safety equipment aboard your vessel. This includes Coast Guard approved life jackets (also known as personal flotation devices, or PFD's), ventilation equipment, and a backfire flame arrester for inboard motors, a Coast Guard approved fire extinguisher, a sound producing device in case you're stranded or in need of emergency help, navigation lights (required on vessels over 16 ft.), visual distress signals (flares), an anchor with extra line, an oar or paddle, and a manual bailer or pump.

Never go boating without telling someone where you are headed, and how long you anticipate you'll be gone. And don't drink and drive while boating — remember — drunk boating laws are just as stringent as drunk driving laws.

Many of these tips can be learned by taking a safe boating course. Take advantage of one and make your boating experience a fun one.

Boating safety classes offered

A June boating safety class will be offered from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, June 20 at Boyne City Hall in the senior center.

In July and August, classes will be offered from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, July 11 at the Walloon Lake Country Club, Grandma House, and again from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 8 at the same location.

All classes are open to any person 12 years old and older as well as adults. Class members must bring their social security numbers and a lunch.

Upon completion of the class, members will receive a Boating Safety Certificate, which is required for juveniles between the ages of 12 and 16 to operate a vessel.

Old ship gets another chance to ply the Great Lakes

By Laurie Lounsbury

She came into this world in 1905, a sprawling, 125-foot United States Coast Guard lighthouse tender.

Nearly a century later, the aging ship is getting another chance at life on the Great Lakes.

Known as the Aspen, the ship was more familiar with the bottom of Lake Charlevoix's South Arm than the top of the waves. She'll ride high again as an environmental education and research vessel if all goes according to plan.

The Aspen served from 1905 to 1948 as a Great Lakes light tender from her home port in Detour.

After retirement, the Aspen was moored in Detour until the late Maury Taylor bought the ship a couple of decades ago.

With the help of Taylor's friend, Art Reibel, the Aspen was towed with Reibel's tug, the North Shore, to Charlevoix's South Arm.

Taylor embarked on a massive restoration project. He removed the wooden structures on the ship and replaced them with three steel decks.

From there, progress came to a standstill and the Aspen sat quietly in the South Arm for about 20 years.

That all changed last week when the Aspen was towed by tugboat out of Lake Charlevoix and to Alpena.

The Aspen was donated by the Taylor family to Castle Farms, Inc.

Art Reibel, representing Castle Farms, Inc., said he plans to refurbish the ship and use her as an environmental research and education vessel on the Great Lakes.

"It's a nice project, and I'm really excited about it," Reibel said.

Helping Reibel with the project is Lonnie Jones, retired U.S. Coast Guard Chief engineer.

"Lonnie is donating his time, skills and knowledge to re-power the vessel," Reibel said.

The vessel is currently moored at LaFarge Corp. in Alpena, which donated dock space for the Aspen.

Reibel said he's been in contact with Michigan State University, Northern Michigan University and other environmental groups to create the environmental research program.

Castle Farms, Inc., a nonprofit, tax-exempt organization, is accepting donations for the restoration of the vessel and environmental education programs.

Anyone who would like to donate to the project may send checks to Castle Farms, Inc., 5052 M-66, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

"I want to finish what Mr. Taylor started," Reibel said of the project.

After 20 years of quiet life in Lake Charlevoix's South Arm, the Aspen moves from Lake Charlevoix to Alpena for a chance at a new life. Art Reibel is planning to refurbish the former Coast Guard light tender and create an environmental research and education vessel that will sail on the Great Lakes. (Photo by Laurie Lounsbury)

A provocative look at Charlevoix through photos

By Laurie Lounsbury

Mingled in between the ooohs and ahhs of admiration, people viewing the "Charlevoix" photography book for the first time will also let loose with a little yelp of recognition.

"That's my boat!"

"That's our beach!"

"That's Kelly at Cross Fisheries!"

And that's what the book, with text by Dianne Foster and photography by Ken Scott, is all about.

Beautifully composed and superbly photographed, the book is an intimate, yet stunning look at Charlevoix, Beaver Island and other key aspects of Charlevoix's history.

The text and photos are a revealing look at the private summer resort clubs, Earl Young homes, Horton Bay, the Loeb farm, Greensky Hill Church, the Coast Guard and much more.

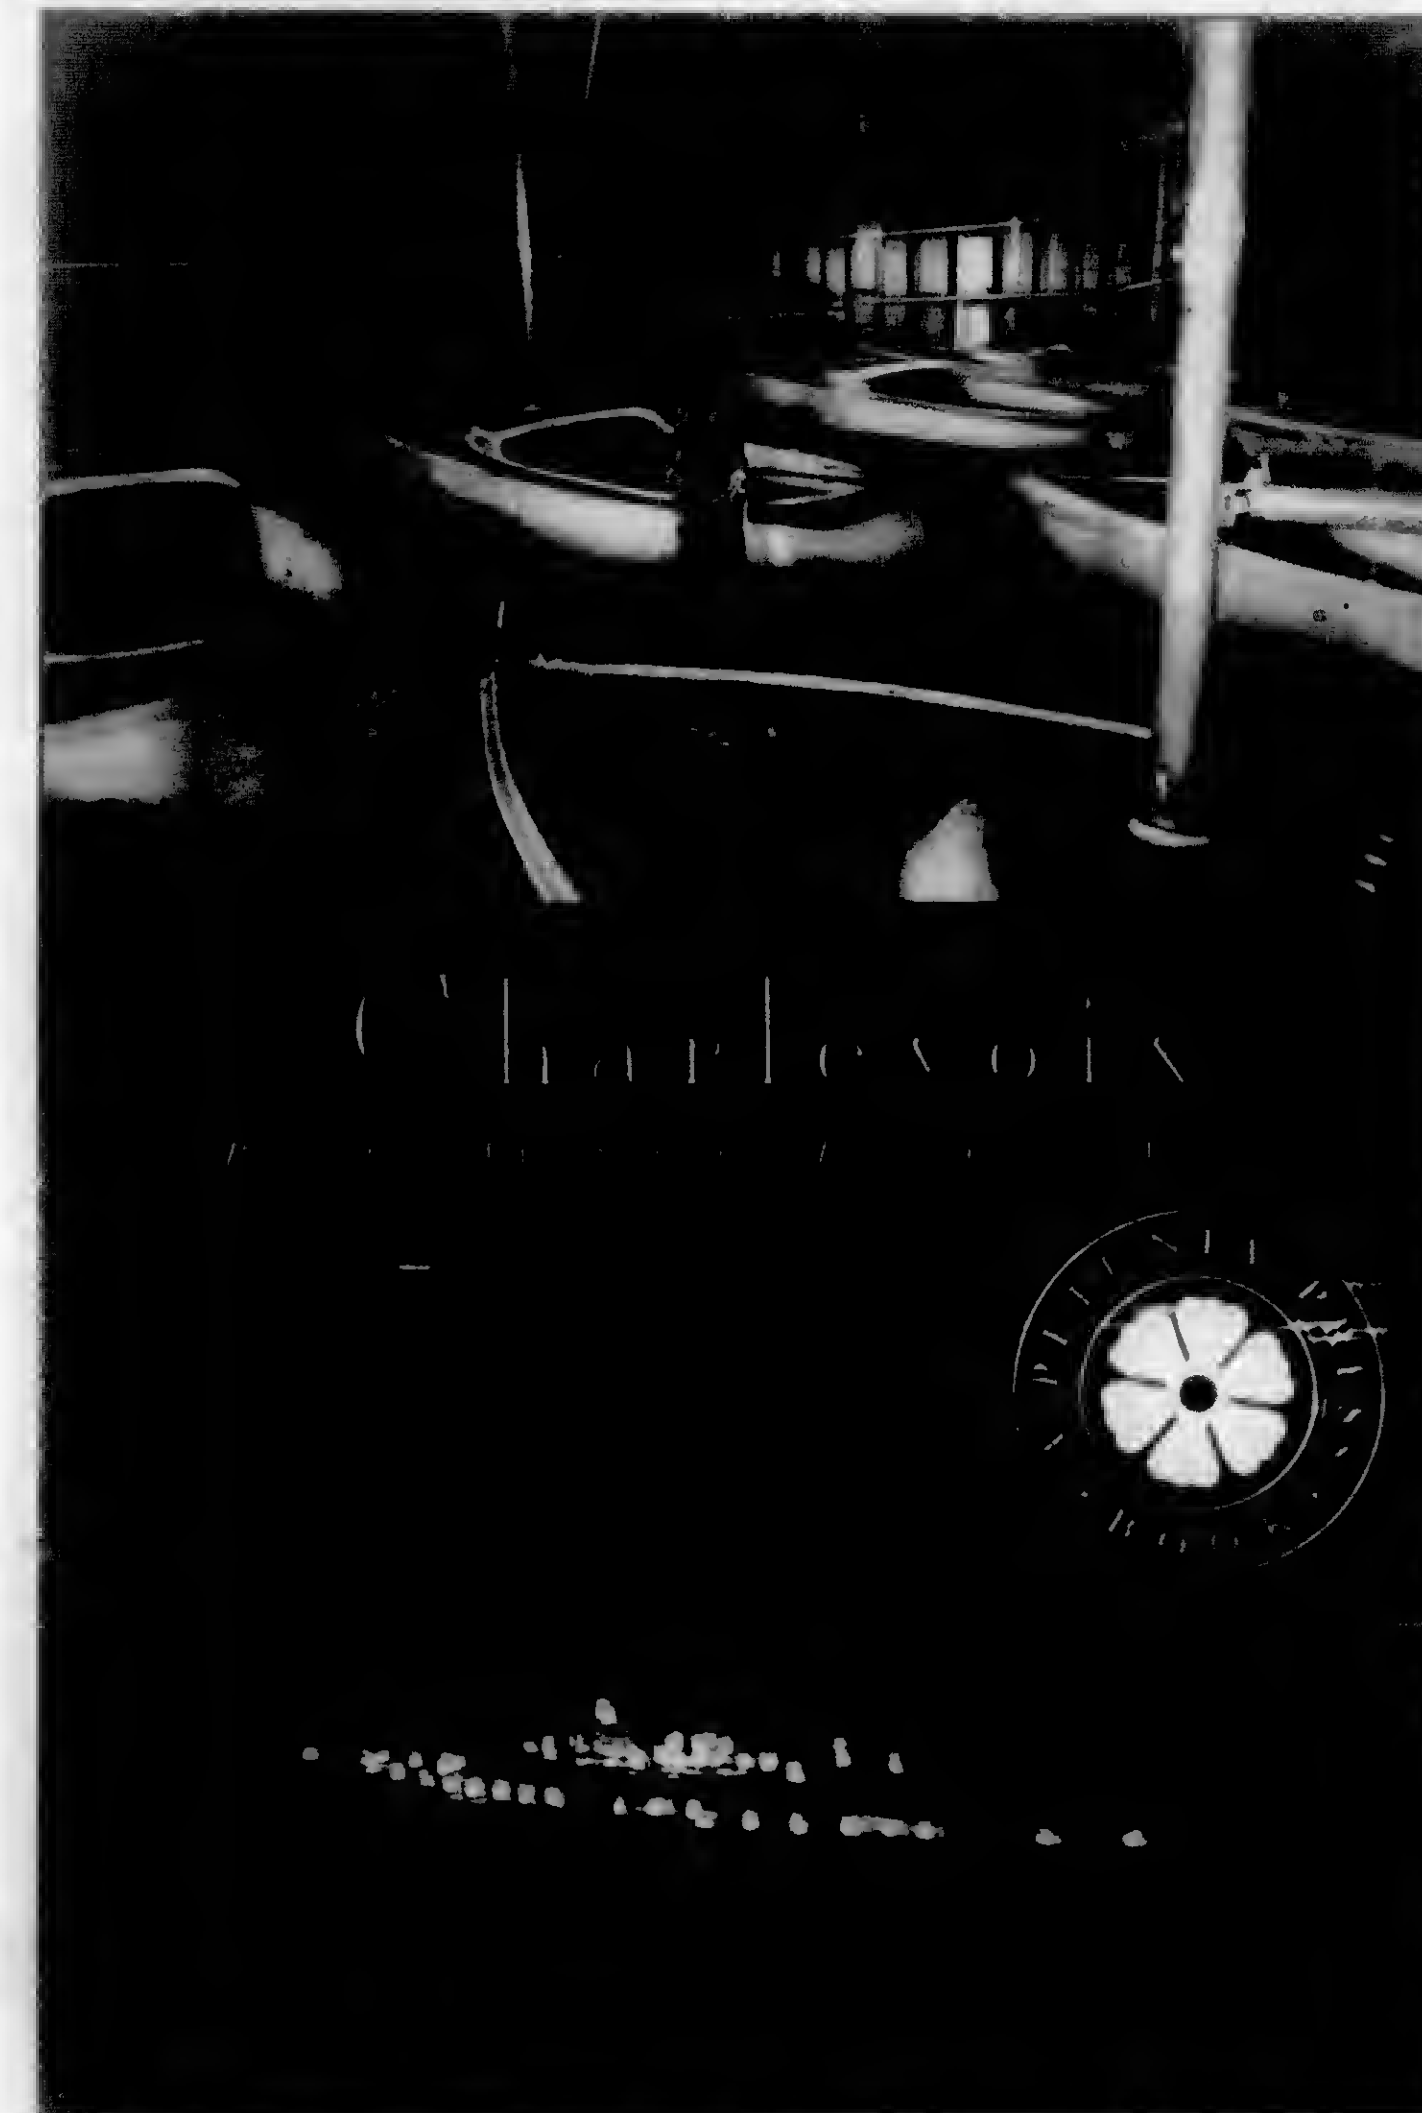

As soon as Foster and her husband, Kit, moved to Charlevoix to open the Bridge Street Book Shop, Foster started toying with the idea of a photography book on Charlevoix.

"I had so many requests from customers for a Charlevoix photography book, I knew I'd do it someday," Foster said.

In September of 1996, Foster got serious about the idea. She teamed up with Ken Scott, a Leelanau photographer she'd always admired, and formed the Petunia Press Publishing Company. They knew they wanted to self-publish the book.

"We had interest from other publishers, but knew if we self-published, we'd retain control of the creative process. It was a risky route to go, but in the end, it was the best way."

The book abounds with Foster's and Scott's creativity. Text flows gently, like an artesian well on a warm summer day, and photos reveal unusual views of Charlevoix.

"Being from outside the community, Ken brought a new perspective," Foster said. "For those of us who see the area everyday, he brought a new way to look at things."

Scott's series of photos on the Coast Guard Station and the cutter Acacia are a testament to that. Everyday sights to most of us, Scott showed the asymmetry and beauty of the cutter and the buoys she tends.

"Ken has an eye for detail and color," Foster said.

The book was released June 12 to very happy customers who bought as many as 12 copies at a time.

"You did a superb job," said newspaper publisher and Charlevoix resident Frank Shepherd to Foster. Shepherd, like others who thumbed through the book for the first time, lit up when he spotted a photo taken of a familiar beach scene.

"I said to my wife, 'I know that shot!'" The photo was of a pristine stretch of beach on Beaver Island, where the Shepherds have a home.

"This book will sell 10 years from now, because it's timeless," Shepherd told Foster.

The book will no doubt need to go for a second and third printing to sell 10 years into the future. At a book-signing party last Saturday, at least 400 people lined up to have a copy of the book signed by Foster and Scott. Almost that many people joined the Fosters and Scotts on the Emerald Isle Friday evening, when the publishers hosted a thank-you party for everyone who supported their endeavor.

"I think we'll be pushing the reprint button by fall," Foster said. Of the 7,000 books printed, over 1,000 have already been sold. Orders for the book are rolling in from all across the country. Someone even called from Alaska to get a copy.

"Hopefully, that's part of our contribution — to present Charlevoix and Beaver Island to people outside the area," Foster said.

In addition to that contribution, Petunia Press will donate a portion of the proceeds to the Charlevoix County community Foundation.

The book-publishing journey is not yet over for Foster. "Now I have to change hats to publisher and marketer," Foster said.

The book is being sold at bookstores all over northern Michigan. Foster has even had calls from bookstores in St. Louis, Mo., clamoring for copies.

"We've had a lot of word-of-mouth calls on it," Foster said. "It's amazing to me — there's no end to it."

Local woman enters race for 37th State Senate District

By Jamie MacMillan

One thing to be said about Kay Chase is that the Charlevoix resident practices what she preaches.

For years, the local Democrat has made it her party's goal to ensure a candidate on each ballot from the school board to the U.S. Congress.

Strides were made during the recent filing period as the Democrats are in three of the six county commissioner races, but as the filing deadline approached the party had one glaring omission.

Nobody had stepped forward to challenge Republican Walter North in his reelection bid for the 37th State Senate District.

Enter Chase, an accidental candidate of sorts, to fill the void.

"I didn't know until May 11 that I was interested in running for office," she said. "It's important that people have a choice, or we begin to foster a one party system."

As a mother of three boys who worked to put herself and her husband through college, Chase had no problem stepping to the plate in attempt to shred the notion that Democrats are behind an eight ball in any political race in northern Michigan.

She said it's a media misconception — the G.O.P.'s foothold in northern Michigan politics — and that a larger voter turnout would go a long way toward disproving that myth.

"It's not a good statement when barely 20 percent of the people make the decision regarding who will represent everybody," Chase said.

Kay Chase

Chase, 50, was born in Pontiac and attended Oakland University. She and her husband of 32 years, Gerald, moved to Charlevoix 24 years ago when he was placed to work in the local health department.

Through the years she has been an active volunteer in local school systems, scouting and a three-year stint as Northwest Regional Director for March of Dimes in the mid 1970s.

In 1979 she founded her own business, The Sewing Corner, in downtown Charlevoix, which operated until 1984. Currently, she serves as secretary/treasurer for Northstar Management and Consulting, a consulting firm for non-profit organizations.

Politically, she has been an active Democratic party member. She has served as an officer for the local chapter, including four years as its chairperson. She was a delegate to the 1996 Democratic National Convention, and co-chairs the Northern Michigan Democratic dinner. In addition to being a coordinator for various campaigns over the years, Chase publishes "Up North Notes," a party newsletter distributed throughout the north.

Chase is still developing a campaign agenda and has spent much of the race's first month on the road visiting the far reaches of the 14-

New trout pond and fountain planned for East Park

By Laurie Lounsbury

East Park is often considered the jewel in Charlevoix's crown of public parks. The park boasts a magnificent view of Round Lake and the yacht basin, where the scenery and the backdrop change with every sunrise, sunset and moonrise.

Currently, sitting in the very center of that crown jewel is — a trash can.

That centrally situated trash can will metamorphose into a fitting centerpiece — a circular trout pond with a water fountain — if the Downtown Development Authority's East Park project goes according to plan.

After months of discussion about renovating East Park, the DDA unveiled a dramatically new plan at a special meeting Wednesday.

The plans include everything anyone could want in a showplace park — unfortunately, the budget isn't as all-inclusive.

Cost estimates were made based on earlier plans for the East Park project. DDA members got the innovative idea to add a trout pond and fountain in the center of the park, a sculptured walkway, a new sound system and flag pole after the budget was largely spoken for.

A rough estimate of $294,000 was established for East Park and Veteran's Park renovations. The DDA has $322,000 in the budget for the two projects, but the balance

This trash can currently occupies the center spot in East Park. That will change if the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) is able to carry out their plans to renovate East Park and create a trout pond and fountain in the center of the park. (Photo by Laurie Lounsbury) of $28,000 will not likely cover the cost of the additional items in East Park.

"We can't skimp on the fountain," said DDA board member Fred DiMartino. "It's the centerpiece of the whole park."

Mayor Josh Barnes agreed, saying the fountain should stay in the plans and the group will have to find the money for it.

"I'd like to go after the money for the fountain with a fund-raiser," Barnes said.

The new East Park plans will make the center of the park a large, flat area, with the trout pond and fountain in the center. Angled walkways will stretch from the street sidewalk outward to points near the edge of the park. From there, sculptured walkways will angle back in to the center of the park.

The existing, three-terrace scheme will be altered to include one slope from the sidewalk to the wide, central portion of the park. One much more gradual slope will drop to the foot of the park by the yacht basin. The shuffleboard courts will be removed and four new courts will be built along the foot of the park near the yacht basin.

On the side of the park that faces the handshell, terraces will be built of large fieldstone boulders, at heights that will make it possible to sit along the fieldstone ledge and rest your feet on the next terrace level while facing the handshell.

Fieldstone boulders will also line the top terrace of the park.

A good, new sound system will be a major enhancement for the park, both in winter and summer. It is the city's intention to freeze the main level of the park in the winter for ice skating. Music will be played for ice skaters, reminiscent of a Norman Rockwell winter scene.

"The new sound system is going to be expensive. It's going to be permanent and it's going to be good," Barnes said.

The DDA voted to proceed with the engineering portion of the project. At their July 8 meeting, the group will finalize the plans and solicit engineering bids for the work.

county district introducing herself to the constituents.

With a husband in the health business and a business that helped develop community health centers in six counties, the future of health care is at the forefront of her thoughts.

Managed care could prove beneficial, she said, but the conversion process must come with close oversight to ensure that the more vulnerable citizens like young working families and the elderly do not lose access. A patient's bill of rights must be adopted by the state, she said.

She'll fight against those who want to tarnish the area's environment. Economically, she said, more needs to be done to create job opportunities for the region's next generation so they don't migrate elsewhere for career reasons.

Improvement of education is also high on her list. School has become boring for students because they're drilled to score well on anonymous state standard tests, she said, and a boring classroom leads to discipline problems.

"There are some troubled kids out there, and we've got to figure out what to do," she said. "I've always advocated that we look to what we can do for the kids."

She pointed to the local example of spending more than $2 million to expand the county jail instead of using the money on preventative measures for juvenile crime.

The general election is Tuesday, Nov. 3 while party primaries will be Tuesday, Aug. 4.

Life of rural potter is filled with quirky moments

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

Many locals and tourists remember Bonnie Staffel, popular professional potter, juror and teacher, who had a rustic barn studio with turrets seven miles south of Charlevoix on US 31. She doesn't talk much about the numerous awards and honors she has received from major museums and from Japan, nor about her professional travels to Guatemala, England and Denmark.

No, she'd rather reminisce about the time a neighbor's herd of cows walked through her studio patio without breaking a pot!

Bonnie and Bill Staffel were some of the first professional artists to settle here. They have frequently shown their work at the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair.

The couple first met as art students at the American Academy of Art in Chicago. They later married and moved to Toledo, Ohio, where they studied at the Toledo Art Museum, and where Bonnie fell in love with ceramics. It was then that her helpful husband built the first potter's wheel for her out of an old Edison phonograph machine! Bonnie learned how to make three firings; bisque, glaze and gold decorations for her popular cups.

In those early days, she sold the cups for $1.50 to a posh hairdresser, who catered to the carriage trade in Toledo. Each of his customers had her own coffee cup, similar to the personalized mugs formerly used in old barber shops. Bonnie laughingly recalled martinis, however, instead of coffee, being served in them.

In 1951 Bonnie received a scholarship to Cranbrook Academy of the Arts.

"I was in heaven! We worked from breakfast 'til midnight just stopping for meals," she recalled. "I continued to experiment with glazes and Majjo Grotel, our mentor and an innovator of glazes, chose my pot as one of the best glazes she had ever seen," Staffel said of the supreme compliment.

Her daughter Marell was born the next year. (Marell has since settled in Charlevoix and owns the Camera Shop in Oleson's Shopping Center). Those were the years that Bonnie juggled raising a toddler, throwing pots, and exhibiting her work at many art fairs. It was at one of those fairs that the Staffels met Ed Grey, owner of the Four Seasons Gallery in Traverse City, and he encouraged the Staffels to settle permanently in Northern Michigan.

Bill was a well-respected commercial artist, and in 1972 he was asked to design the award-winning logo for the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

After running a successful shop for many years, with more orders than she had time to fill, Bonnie felt "the tail was wagging the dog." She had always wanted to work in an art school and was accepted as resident potter at the John C. Campbell Folk School in North Carolina. There her duties expanded to include serving as Program Director, as well as traveling to Denmark for three winters as an exchange potter in five folk schools. Subsequently, she was recruited by the city of Canton, Miss., to help create a new art and craft campus in the town square, where the movie "A Time to Kill" was filmed.

It will be a privilege for Bonnie's devoted following to attend her 50th Anniversary Retrospective show July 3-12 at Ray and Tami Bier's Gallery on US 31 South. There will be an all day reception on Sunday, July 5. Her work will also be shown from 5-7 p.m. July 6-29 at the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey. Come along and say "Welcome back" to Bonnie!

Letters to the editor

Wifely submission would lead to fewer divorces

Dear Editor,
I would like to respond to your column in the June 17 paper, regarding wifely submission.

You make it sound as if the Southern Baptists have made a law stating that all Baptist men should treat their wives like slaves, and expect them to act as such. However, biblical wifely submission is far from this picture. I believe the verse you were referring to from Ephesians chapter 5, and the verse that this whole issue stems from reads as follows:

"Wives, be subject to your husbands as you are in the Lord. For the husband is the head of the wife just as Christ is the head of the church... Husbands, love your wives, just as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for her.... In the same way, husbands should love their wives as they do their own bodies."

What this means is that the husband should be considered the head of the household, not that wives should blindly follow any order given them by their husbands. The challenge that husbands should love their wives and treat them as they would like to be treated still stands. No one said "Let's follow the first part, but ignore the second part!" No where does anyone say that husbands should force their wives to submit to them. Wives are to submit willingly, or not at all.

This idea of wifely submission is far from a "shiny new edict," nor is it a made-up rule — it has been a part of Christian family living for millennia. The Southern Baptists simply wished to state that they still hold to this "antiquated" concept, just as they still hold to the view of homosexuality as being a sin, abortion as the destruction of a gift from God, and the view that children should respect and obey their parents.

Submission is not slavery. It is a loving relinquishment of power within the family. Baptist women are still allowed to voice opinions and participate in decision making, as well as refuse unreasonable requests, especially if a request goes against her faith or biblically moral upbringing.

In every family, someone must submit. If I, as a wife, do not, then I devalue my husband, and his leadership of our family. If I take charge when he is willing and able to do so, I am telling my husband that he is not capable of maintaining control. I am willing to submit, to give over control, to my husband. This tells him that I love, honor, cherish and respect him, and trust his decisions for our family, which in turn goes a long way in helping him to be good husband and father.

If more wives would willingly submit, and allow their husbands to take up leadership in the family, I'm fairly sure that the result would be less, not more, divorce.

50th Anniversary

Glenn and La Rue Kenney

Glenn and La Rue (Leverenz) Kenney will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary Friday, June 26.

They were married June 26, 1948 in South Haven, Mich. by the Rev. Lawrence Tenhopen.

They moved to Charlevoix in 1959, where they have been living ever since.

Glenn was the owner of Kit Carson Lumber and La Rue is a mother and housewife.

Their children are Richard Kenney and his wife, Pat, of Fountain Hills, Ariz., Cheryl Buitendorp and her husband, Sam, of Boyne City, and Kim Kierczynski and her husband, Bob, of Traverse City.

They have eight grandchildren. To celebrate their golden anniversary, the couple's three children sent the Kennys on a Caribbean cruise, and their two daughters accompanied them on the voyage.

Nursery school has openngs

Kids Corner Cooperative Nursery School of Charlevoix has openings in its Early 5 Program. This program is open to children who will be 5 by Jan. 30, 1999. For information on the Early 5, 4-year-old, or 3-year-old programs, please contact nursery school president Stephanie Brown at 582-9568.

Beware of phone fraud

A person calls your house and says they are an AT&T technician conducting a test on your telephone line. He or she says that to complete the test, you should touch "9", "0", "# (pound key)" and then hang up.

According to the phone company, if you push 9,0,#, you give the requesting individual full access to your telephone line, which allows them to place a long distance call billed to your home phone number.

The scam artist will not always say they are calling from AT&T. It could be any number of different phone companies.

The crime prevention is: if you get such a call, hang up immediately and report it to your phone company and to the sheriff's office.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's office can be reached at 547-4461.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

By Joe Johnston, Associate Pastor
Charlevoix Assembly of God

Have you ever asked yourself, "Why do people do the things they do?" I have on many occasions. I've even asked the Lord to tell me why people do the crazy things they do. It doesn't take a rocket scientist to look around and see there are some serious people problems on the planet; bloodshed, violence, racial hatred, moral decay, drug abuse and outbreak of deadly sexual diseases to list a few. What is this world coming to? Why all of the corruption, we might ask?

I believe the answer is clearly found in Scripture. God gave His son Jesus Christ the throne over all the nations of the world. Colossians 1:18 says, "He is the head of the body, the church... that in all things He might have preeminence." This is referring to Jesus. Timothy 1, 6:15, tells us that when Christ returns He is going to show everyone who is Lord of all.

In essence, our society has dethroned Christ, refusing to acknowledge His authority and kingship. We're removing God from our schools and ignoring Him in the making of our laws and now we're reaping a terrible harvest. Not only is this demise seen in our society but also in our churches. Many are trading the true Gospel for a social, lukewarm philosophy. Some have denied the Scripture to be the infallible word of God and believe it to be a religious history book. Many have reflected the sound teachings of Jesus and accepted the teachings of a fallen culture to be their guide. It must truly grieve God to see Christ dethroned by those who live under the banner of His name.

We must return to the Lordship of Jesus. We must acknowledge Him as King over our lives and our community. Many have said they will not how to Jesus. But the truth is, sooner or later they will how before their Creator. The Bible tells us "Every knee shall bow, and every tongue shall confess that Jesus Christ is Lord." (Roman 14:11)

Rafters will rock at Community Reformed Church worship service

If past performances are any indication, the rafters will rock at Community Reformed Church this Sunday, June 28, when the congregation of New Hope Baptist Church of Wayne, Mich. leads the Charlevoix congregation in praise and worship. The community is invited to attend both the 9 a.m. and 11:15 a.m. services to hear the lively black gospel-style music by some of New Hope's choir and musicians. New Hope's Pastor Virgil Hume will deliver the message.

About 53 members of the Wayne church will visit Charlevoix for the weekend and stay with Community Reformed families. The fellowship connection between these two churches was initiated when Charlevoix resident and Community Reformed member Gary Miller picked up a Detroit Free Press newspaper four years ago and read an account of racially motivated vandalism committed against the New Hope Church. Miller was moved to encourage the congregation at Community Reformed to send flowers to the New Hope congregation, along with a letter of support and love. Miller wanted the predominantly black church to know that a white church in northern Michigan cared about what had happened to them.

That gesture to the New Hope church generated a heart-felt invitation for the members of Community Reformed to visit the downstate church; and later that summer, a contingent of Community Reformed members traveled to New Hope and shared a worship service with them. The next year, New Hope visited the Charlevoix congregation and led a lively service. Last summer, Community Reformed took their Praise Team, Pastor Larry Grooters, and a number of church families to the downstate church again and led worship. So this Sunday, the members of New Hope will visit the Charlevoix church in what has become a meaningful tradition for both congregations. Call the church office at 547-9482 for more information.

Dog attacks prompt sheriff to issue cautionary warning

In light of a recent dog attack on two Charlevoix area citizens by a licensed dog in his own yard on persons the dog knew well, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office in conjunction with the Charlevoix County Animal Control Division, would like to remind people of some recommendations to help prevent dog related attacks and/or bites.

Safe, Responsible Behavior:
• Before petting someone else's dog, ask the owner for permission. After getting permission to pet a dog, always let the dog sniff the back of your hand first.

• When a dog approaches you, stand still and quiet. Keep your hands at hy your side.

Unsafe Behavior:
• Don't pet or approach a dog while he or she is eating, sleeping, or guarding something. Pets naturally guard their food, their babies, and their toys. Dogs also protect their owners, as well as property that belongs to, their owners - such as an owner's home, yard or car.

• Don't try to pull a toy, a stick, or any item from a dog's mouth. Playing roughly with dogs may teach them to bite, jump or become aggressive.

• Don't run away from a dog that is chasing you. A dog's natural instinct is to chase and catch someone who is running away. If you stand still, the dog will most likely stop, sniff you and leave you alone when he or she realizes you are not a threat. Also, don't chase or tease dogs and avoid petting or trying to pick up strange pets.

• Don't approach a dog (or any other animal) that is injured.

Lyndsay Blechel (center) is the Charlevoix band student receiving this year's $500 scholarship from the Charlevoix Band Boosters. This is the first year the band boosters reinstated the scholarship after a prolonged absence. Awarding Blechel with the scholarship is Rafe Rittenhouse (left), high school band director and Cathy Liotta, president of the band boosters. To earn the scholarship, Blechel had to be a four-year member of the band and write an essay on what band means to her.

Superintendent search continues

By Jamie MacMillan

With the Charlevoix School Board about to settle on a group of candidates to interview for its vacant superintendent position, the board is leaning on information gleaned from two surveys to guide its criteria.

Both surveys were conducted by Matt Kreh of the Michigan Association of School Boards, which was contracted by the district for a $5,500 fee to help coordinate the search for a new school leader.

The first survey was taken from a group of 47 community members and local organization representatives, while the second was a board survey.

Board president Allen Telgenhof was impressed with the results because both the community and school board appear to be on the same page as far as what each want from a potential superintendent.

"The responses they (the community) gave really seemed to match up with board expectations," he said.

From both surveys it is clear that Charlevoix's next superintendent of schools must be adept in the modern skill of public relations.

The board, for example, was asked to rate areas of expertise expected by the new administrator from one, lowest, to six, highest. The seven member board totaled 41 points out of 42 for public relations, nine points higher than the second highest rated skill, budget development/management.

The community survey, which was conducted out of sight from board members, ended with similar results.

Public relations was rated second, behind getting people to work as a team, on the list of most important duties by a superintendent.

The next five items on the list dealt with communication skills either as a listener, promoter of the schools or building consensus on issues, all public relation-type skills.

According to both surveys, the new superintendent needs to use those skills to help solve the district's most pressing problem - passing a millage for new facilities.

All seven board members said it's the most critical issue facing the schools and six highlighted a new school of some sort as an immediate goal.

The community survey put new facilities at the top of the list, but balanced with many other comments pointing to that as a more long-term goal.

Whoever the new superintendent is, he or she will have to have experience passing bond issues in his former districts.

"That's certainly in our minds, that who we bring in will have experience passing millage proposals and bonds," Telgenhof said. "We're not bringing someone in to review curriculum because we think that's on track."

The board wants to have someone in place by the start of the school year and will be accepting applications through the end of this week for the job. At the end of last week, Telgenhof said between 30-35 resumes had already been received which, he said, is the state average in these cases.

The board will meet at 5:30 p.m. Monday, June 29 in the high school study hall to narrow the field to the finalists who will be interviewed. From the start, the board has focused on a group of six to interview, but Telgenhof said the final group could be as small as four or as large as nine.

The board will eliminate candidates through a series of progressive rounds, Telgenhof said. To ad-

Animal shelter gets closer to construction phase

By Jamie MacMillan

Concerns about incessant barking and an undersized septic field surfaced during the Boyne City planning commission's first look at a site plan for the new Charlevoix County Humane Society building.

The new facility will be located south of the downtown district on the corner of Brockway and Beardsley roads and would be double the size of the current Humane Society.

The shelter's current building is in Charlevoix on Grant St. behind the county sheriff's department. Not only do officials want a larger animal shelter, but the impending jail expansion will squeeze the humane society out of its current home.

To expedite the process, the county board of commissioners donated the Boyne City land to the humane society in addition to giving them $150,000 for the project.

Planners gave the designs a thumbs-up only after some initial hesitation and some spur of the moment revamping of the blue prints, sketched by local architect Sam Wiseman.

"With the exterior dog runs, I have some concerns about the noise," planner Todd Wright said. "It could become quite a ruckus and a nuisance."

Humane society officials plan 33 dog runs, absent at the current shelter, to be extended outdoors through vertically raised doggie doors.

While the area is predominantly nonresidential, Wright's concerns were shared by a trio of residents from the general vicinity as well as the owner of a day care center which is across the street from the proposed site.

"If you approve this, I hope you have some sense of what you're going to do if the noise becomes too much," Walter Hill of Grandma's Child Care said. Hill's concerns ranged from disturbances of naps to animal odor to the creation of a bad environment for child care.

When it was mentioned that the city airport and the hustle and bustle of the county transit authority dominate the landscape, Hill said those sounds come in quick bursts while barking dogs would be incessant and more of a problem.

Other neighbors feared a domino effect of barking dogs in the neighborhood.

Humane society officials countered those predictions by noting that the dogs would be outside only during certain times and the whole pack would not be outside at the same time. Society president Helene Vallad said in the years of being located in the middle of a residential neighborhood in Charlevoix, they received few complaints.

Vallad said they would be willing to take extra steps to ensure more silence such as holstered landscaping, carpet strips along the tops of the runs and concrete berms buffering the runs, but that they had a "financial responsibility" to their donors to spend the money on building the new structure before adding amenities to placate noise concerns.

As the meeting triggered different conversations, humane society officials tinkered with their design, shifting the entrance from facing Brockway before the intersection to facing the corner of the roads, with entrances to a crescent-shaped drive on both roads.

In its original form the facility ran parallel to the day care center, which looks out onto Beardsley, with the dog runs directly across the street. Angling away from the day care operation in the revised plans, the runs would be farther away and could be buffered better with either landscaping or masonry walls.

The nine-member board approved the plan without dissent, but wanted to see more changes before granting final approval and allowing construction to begin. Specifically, they want more plans regarding landscaping, exterior lighting, the new entrance and a larger sewage facility.

Planner Joe St. Dennis noted the proposed 480 square foot septic tank would be acceptable for only a single family residence and with all the animals, something larger would be needed to guard against overflow.

A larger tank could be avoided if the new building could tap into the neighboring transit authority's septic lines.

Project manager Tim Sorensen said he approached transit about tapping into the lines, but there was apprehension on their part because the lines were privately owned by the federal government.

Hill said he had asked for the same thing for his child care center and was quoted a fee of $27,000 to do so. County commissioner Phil Johnson said his board might be willing to cover those costs for the new shelter.

vance past round one, a prospect would need support from only one hoard member. To make the second cut, support would be needed from two board members and so until a final field is determined.

The board will interview candidates July 6-8, and from those meetings pare down the list to two finalists. That duo would be interviewed a second time.

After the second interview, the board will decide who their top choice is, then go on a "home visit" to their current district to, as Telgenhof said, "reinforce and give us peace of mind that we made the right choice."

Yacht club hosts second annual barbecue

The Charlevoix Yacht club is hosting a steak and shrimp barbecue from 4:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Saturday, July 4 at the yacht club at 209 Ferry Ave.

Tickets are available at the door. The price for the steak and shrimp meal is $15, with a kid's meal of hot dogs and chips on sale for $5.

The event will raise money for ongoing yacht club projects.

Last year's barbecue helped raise the money to finish the club house kitchen.

Clockwise, from top left: With Daniel Swenor defending the pitcher's mound, Bob Ohle loads the pitching machine, sending a fast one toward home plate in an 8-year-old/9-year-old little league game last Thursday night between teams sponsored by the Teachers and Twin Bay Glass.

No baseball game, would be complete without the morsels of entertainment provided by game announcers. Here, Caitlin Cole plays the role of Ernie Harwell, calling the action during a round of little league games in Charlevoix.

Twin Bay coaches (from left) Bob Molter, Allen Telgenhof and Dick Swenor watch as their team gets the final three outs in a 14-9 win, their first of the season.

With coach Terry Amick looking on, Tanner Fisher hustles down the first base line, eluding the tag of Daniel Swenor.

Junior golf season is under way

The Charlevoix County Junior Golf program launched its 1998 season with a record first week enrollment. A record 150 players registered for the program's first week, with an anticipated 50 or so more expected in the next week, now that downstate schools are out.

The golf program director also announced the youngsters awarded scholarships for the week-long golf academy at Ferris State University. Six Junior Golfers were selected to attend the Ferris State Camp, and they are: Allen Brooks, Zack Bajos, Dennis Avery, York Smith and William Foster, all of Charlevoix, and Brian Jakeway from Petoskey.

"There were many quality applicants that the selection committee considered and it was a difficult decision, but these six young golfers did stand out and will represent our program well," said program director Dean Davenport.

The Belvedere Golf Club hosted the first week of the instructional program.

There is still time to register, but it must be done this week. The next lessons will be at Antrim Dells and the Country Club. There is still a need for adult mentors who volunteer to walk holes with youngsters as part of their lessons. To register as a mentor or for more program information call Dean Davenport at 547-6433.

Convention and Visitors Bureau concert schedule announced

Up North Big Band plays this week

The music of the '30s, '40s and '50s will ring out of the Clarence Odmark Pavilion in East Park as the Up North Big Band takes the stage at 8 p.m. Thursday, June 25. This is the third concert in the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau summer concert series.

Up North Big Band was formed one-and-a-half years ago, with principal players from the north-west Michigan area, and has already established itself as an authority on the big band sound. The band's 18 members came together as a result of a common interest in preserving the big band style. Until the formation of the Up North Big Band, there was an absence of hands playing music of this genre in the area.

Led by musical director Frank North, the band plays tunes by big band legends such as Glen Miller, Duke Ellington, Count Basie and Tommy Dorsey.

The next concert in the series will feature the captivating Mid-Michigan Highlanders. Having performed at last year's concert series, these electrifying performers will once again treat audiences to the best of Scottish Highland dancing.

This year the best of previous local entertainers are scheduled, along with some talent from outside northern Michigan.

New this year are the Lookout Cats, a four-piece jazz, blues and rock band; Dane Tollas, a local folk and blues artist; and the Petoskey High School Steel Drum Band, offering calypso music for that balmy summer evening.

Audiences will again hear the country sounds of Loose Change, Chris Martin and Dr. Goodheart. Also returning are the Larry Wojcik Band and Randy, Rob, and Mary D.

The Up North Big Band concert is one of many sponsored by the bureau through July, August and September.

The concerts begin at 8 p.m. Thursdays through August, with a final concert at 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 5.

The summer concert schedule is as follows:

— June 25, Up North Big Band (Glen Miller sound).

— July 2, Mid-Michigan Highlanders (dancers).

— July 9, Loose Change (country, variety).

— July 16, the Lookout Cats (jazz, blues, rock).

— July 23, Randy, Rob & Mary D. (folk, pop).

— July 30, Petoskey High School Steel Drum Band (calypso).

— Aug. 6, Larry Wojcik & Friends (best in swing and jazz).

— Aug. 13, Dr. Goodheart's Home Remedy (folk, country).

— Aug. 20, Dane Tollas (folk, blues).

— Aug. 27, Chris Martin (Willie Nelson sound).

— Sept. 5, 2-4 p.m., USAF Wright Brass (brass quintet).

The Charlevoix City Band plays in the Odmark Pavilion at 8:15 p.m. Tuesdays, beginning June 23 and continues weekly through Aug. 25. In the event of rain or inclement weather, the Thursday concerts will be canceled.

Travel golf league begins season

The first day of competition for the four courses in Northwest Michigan travel golf league saw two exciting matches. The Charlevoix Country Club edged Dunmaglas 4-2 and Antrim Dells used the home court to their advantage as they eased by Agaming 4 to 1.

There were 48 golfers that converged on the Antrim Dells course, and while competitive golf was the outcome, the real objective was to meet with new golfers, enjoy the course and socialize afterward by rehashing the day's events.

Each course sent six two-person teams into competition and, using the handicap system, played the first of 10 scheduled events following a format similar to that of the Ryder Cup. The match was a best ball and the Charlevoix Country Club squeaked by Dunmaglas with one match swinging the outcome. The next scheduled competition is Wednesday, June 24 at the Agaming Course. Teeing off at 2 p.m., Antrim Dells will meet Dunmaglas and at 3 p.m., Agaming will host Charlevoix Country Club.

Cabaret duo to perform in Petoskey

Cabaret duo Jamie MacKenzie and Wayne Barker will present "Check in with the Jet Set — Flying from Hollywood to Paris in the Fab Fifties and Swinging Sixties," at 8 p.m. July 10 and 11 in the Ross Stokes Theater of the Virginia McCune Arts Center in Petoskey.

The new show features the songs of Sammy Cahn, Henry Mancini and Michel LeGrand, among others.

"This is a lot more hip than our Porter and Gershwin shows," MacKenzie said. "We wanted to do a tribute to the music and style of the Rat Pack. We've picked our favorite fifties and sixties ballads, and we'll do some nearly-forgotten songs like 'Bachelor in Paradise,' 'Girl Talk,' and 'Man's Favorite Sport,' which explore some hilarious views of romance."

Jamie MacKenzie performed on Broadway with Richard Chamberlain in "My Fair Lady," as well as starring in the recent off-Broadway musical, "Disappearing Ace."

Barker is a pianist, composer and arranger, whose arrangements for symphony orchestra are heard in "Hollywood: the Concert," which recently debuted with the South Florida Symphony.

Tickets are $10 and reservations are recommended. Call 347-4337 to make a reservation.

Jimmy Buffett helps watershed

You may know the words to "Come Monday" or "Margaritaville," but do you know that singer-songwriter-author Jimmy Buffett is doing more than creating popular music? Through his Singing for Change Charitable Foundation, which recently granted Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council $10,000.00, Jimmy Buffett is helping to keep the waters in northern Michigan clean.

Since 1979, Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council has been the lead organization working to protect and enhance lakes, rivers, wetlands and ground water in northern Michigan. This money will be put to use in watershed programs that serve northern Michigan residents, businesses and resorters by protecting the ecological integrity and economic values of northern Michigan's water resources.

The Singing for Change (SFC) Charitable Foundation was initially funded by Jimmy Buffett's 1995 concert tour, and continues to receive one dollar for each concert ticket sold during his tours. The watershed council fits the foundation's funding requirements as an organization with programs that improve quality of life and effect positive change in their communities.

"The watershed council is a powerful voice for protecting important water resources and provides many valuable programs that are accessible to all sectors of the community and benefit present and future generations," said Judith Ranger Smith, SFC Charitable Foundation Director.

For more information about the Great Lakes, magnificent inland lakes, blue-ribbon trout streams and rich wetlands that grace northern Michigan, call the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council at 347-1181.

Wellness wagon rolls into northern Michigan

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency (NWMCHA), along with the Northern Michigan Hospital - Burns Clinic Foundation, took delivery today of their new mobile health unit, dubbed the "Northern Michigan Wellness Wagon" at the agency's offices in Charlevoix. Phil Johnson, Chairman of the Board of Health, and Theresa Green, Manager of the Community Health Education Center, ceremoniously received the keys to the vehicle in a show of partnership between the organizations. Use of the mobile unit was awarded to the organizations by the State, and will be operated collaboratively by both NWMCHA and the NMH-Burns Clinic Foundation.

Current plans are to provide many different health care activities such as immunizations, hearing and vision checks, as well as other health education and screening programs during regular monthly scheduled stops at communities in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, Mackinaw, Montmorency, Otsego and Presque Isle counties. In addition, the mobile unit will be at various festivals, fairs and other events where there is a need for health care services.

"The Wellness Wagon is one more tool to assure accessibility to preventative health services throughout the area," Gerry Chase, Administrator of NWMCHA said.

The joint project originated from a concern about the lack of health care services available, especially in the rural pockets of this area. Statistics show that children in this group are not receiving immunizations 25% of the time and that 20% of these children also live in poverty.

The "Wellness Wagon" will be housed in Petoskey and Life-Link will provide drivers, when the unit is on the road. For more information about the "Wellness Wagon" you can contact the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency at 1-800-432-4121.

Stewards of diminishing lands

Group forms Charlevoix County Land Conservancy

By Laurie Lounsbury

Maybe it was the apple tree in full bloom, with the sweet scent of apple blossoms permeating the air, that inspired them.

Or maybe it was the century-old house, sedately standing watch over encroaching parking lots, that tugged at their heart sleeves.

It was some compelling force that drew a small band of environmentally-minded citizens to the yard of the old DeWitt home at 108 Park Ave.

While standing in the yard admiring the outstretched limbs of the apple tree, that small group of people developed an idea for a land conservancy.

Ironically, that apple tree is now in their own back yard.

The newly formed Charlevoix County Land Conservancy is setting up their office in the DeWitt home — a home that needed tenants as much as its tenants needed space.

"This home is part of the conservation ethic," said Sulane Hamilton, one of the group's founders. "We're preserving something for the City of Charlevoix."

"It's a marriage of everyone's best interests," founder JoAnne

Beemon added.

The Charlevoix County Land Conservancy's broader mission is to be a marriage of everyone's best interests.

"We're apolitical and we're not anti-development," said Cheryl Hofweber, a founder and president of the conservancy's board of directors. "But if we're going to have development, then let's do it in a way that benefits the community and uses land wisely and aesthetically."

Hofweber lives in East Jordan and serves on the Friends of the Jordan Board along with being a member of River Life, a group that protects the lower Jordan River estuary.

The other founder is Ron Winchester, who is a member of Ducks Unlimited and the Little Traverse Conservancy.

"This is not a passing interest," Winchester said of land conservation. "It's a long term commitment to the community."

Also serving on the board of directors are Tom Sheets of Boyne City, who is chairman of Friends of Boyne River, Tim Matchett, a Marion Township farmer, and Richard

School board names superintendent candidates

By Jamie MacMillan

The Charlevoix School Board's candidate list for a new superintendent has been whittled down to a lucky number of seven finalists.

Monday night, the Charlevoix Board of Education pared down an original list of 49 applicants to seven who will be brought to town for a round of face-to-face interviews early next week.

All seven finalists are currently employed in the state of Michigan. Four are current superintendents, one is an assistant superintendent and two are high school principals.

Only one, Conrad Reiter, superintendent, Vanderbilt Area

Schools, has a working knowledge of the northern Michigan area.

In addition to Reiter, the candidate list includes Roland A. Johnson, assistant superintendent, West Ottawa Schools (Holland); James W. Goebel, superintendent, Hesperia Schools; Gunnard N. Johnson, principal, Haslett High School; Timothy J. Murphy, principal, Houghton-Portage High School; John J. Sturrock, superintendent, Concord Community Schools; and Michael C. Colby, superintendent, Morley-Stanwood Schools.

"I was shocked — everyone seemed united about the final list," said board president Allen Telgenhof.

The board systematically eliminated candidates by going through the list to determine how much support each candidate had. On the first run through, if one board member voted for a candidate, that prospect would stay on the list. The second time around, support from two board members was needed, and so on until a group of finalists was produced.

Twenty prospects were cut during the first round and three more rounds were needed to arrive at seven finalists.

Board members were a bit surprised by the high amount of out-of-state applicants who threw their hat into the ring. Of 49 original applicants, 22 applied from out of state.

"They had a big question mark next to their names," said board member Larry Levegood. "Some had tremendous credentials on paper, but I went back and forth on many of them because we don't really know who they are."

Unique school funding laws, the proliferation of charter schools and a strong teacher union presence are pressures that exist in the state of Michigan that an out-of-state candidate might not be able to handle, board president Allen Telgenhof said.

Nine candidates for 106th seat discuss issues

By Jamie MacMillan

The campaign for spots on the November ballot for the state's 106th House of Representatives seat began last week in Charlevoix. All nine prospects gathered at Charlevoix High School for an issue forum sponsored by the Charlevoix Area League of Women Voters.

Monday evening, the discourse continued with a second forum at the Charlevoix Area Hospital, dealing mainly with health care issues.

Four democratic and five republican hopefuls are vying for the party's nomination in the Aug. 4 primary. This election, the first since state-wide term limits legislation went into effect, has welcomed a mishmash of competitors, ranging from public officials, retired servicemen, a chamber of commerce director, businessmen and even a former newspaper reporter to the race to replace outgoing republican Bev Bodem.

The democratic ticket includes Marie Twite, Andy Newman and Bob Fournier, all from Alpena, and Cheoygan's Lance Enderlee.

The republican competition offers a hit more geographical variety, with Wolverine's Jeff Schwalm and Indian River's Betsy DeYoung to go along with a trio of Alpena hopefuls, Phil Ludlow, Bill Filher and Friday Brenner.

While differences between party colleagues exist, same-party candidates for the most part struck similar cords when addressing the issues, which ranged from education to tax policy to leadership qualities. On education matters, the hopefuls towed party lines on the issues of using public-funded vouchers to support private school enrollment. The quartet of democrats opposed the idea as a betrayal of the public school systems while republicans, with the notable exception of Ludlow, touted the idea as a way to foster competition and accountability.

Ludlow, an Alpena businessman in the food service industry, opposed the idea because he doubted private schools could handle the enrollment pressures a voucher system could bring. He did favor a tuition tax credit for families to help defray private school tuition costs.

Joseph, Charlevoix attorney and member of Ducks Unlimited.

The way Hamilton sees it, forming the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy was like adding a needed square to a patchwork quilt.

"We're continuing the culture of land conservation in this area that spreads from Leelanau to the Upper Peninsula," Hamilton said. "We're a contiguous piece of the puzzle."

As Beemon pointed out, rivers and lakes know no political boundaries, so it's important for land conservancies to work cooperatively to achieve their goals.

A note to the Charlevoix Conservancy from Ken Winter, chairman, and Tom Bailey, executive director of the Little Traverse Conservancy, expressed just such a spirit of cooperation.

"With best wishes for success on behalf of the conservation cause that transcends all individual and organizational boundaries," their note said.

The Charlevoix County Land Conservancy will work to achieve their goals through land acquisition.

"We will try to acquire significant properties or get easements," Hamilton said. "We'll model ourselves after other successful conservancies."

Hofweber set community awareness as a high priority for the conservancy.

"I want everyone at all levels to be aware of what we do," she said. "We're not going to tell anyone what to do with the land they buy, and we won't get into any zoning issues. This is a 'We can' instead of a 'You can't' situation. And what we can do is acquire critical lands."

Farmland tops Hofweber's list of land that needs protecting. View sheds (property with views) fall into that category.

"The thing people love most about lakes is to look at them," Beemon said. "We need to protect that view."

For now, the group has succeeded in protecting one favorite view in Charlevoix — the sight of the town's third oldest home. The home at 108 Park Ave. was formerly owned by Edna DeWitt, and before her, Fred Meyer. It's so old that no one is sure of its true age, but the new addition was built in 1890.

The Downtown Development Authority owns the home, and plans to tear off the rear addition to create more parking. The original portion of the home will be renovated and used by the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy.

Anyone who would like more information about the conservancy may call JoAnne Beemon, executive director, at 547-4820 or stop by 108 Park Ave. from noon to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Developer's plans will be put to a vote in East Jordan

By Jamie MacMillan

Local developer Sam Haberman is not getting what he wants — neither are the neighbors of his proposed development project in the southern portion of South Arm township.

The result will be a voter referendum, perhaps in the November general election, over a controversial rezoning approved in May by township officials.

The land in question is 130 acres about two miles southwest of East Jordan, bordered by Rogers Road to the south, Bailey Road to the north and Waterman Road to the east.

Haberman, a summer Charlevoix resident, has a housing project planned for the acreage. His project, called Jordan Meadows, will be done in four stages and will allow up to 67 homes priced from $110,000. He said he wants to preserve natural areas, build nature trails and sell only a handful (10-15 in the first year) to keep growth at a steady pace.

Currently owned by Gerald Boyer, the land was zoned agricultural, but a 4-1 vote by the township board in May turned the land into residential property.

Township supervisor Robert Christiansen noted the rezoning was only a subtle change to allow clustering of homes for the new development. In the township's agricultural district, one home is permitted every two acres, so Haberman could build 65 homes without appearing in front of the board.

Realizing the threat of a voter referendum, Haberman attempted a direct mail campaign and sent out between 700-800 letters to township residents explaining his idea.

Calling the movement against his project a small vocal group, Haberman spelled out in his letter that basically the land will be developed one way or another, but reverting the land back to agricultural would lend itself to outdated development tactics.

In an agriculturally zoned district, homes would have to be built in a row on two-acre parcels, while residential zoning would allow more clustering of homes and preservation of open space.

Those against the project do not see it as that simple.

They point to the fact that wetlands on the property would prohibit close to a third of Haberman's project, should the land stay agricultural, and that permitted uses in a residential district could allow for as many as 468 homes.

The township's residential zone allows 3.6 homes per acre.

"He's not real clear on the number of homes, his plan is not engraved in stone," neighbor Kelly Mumich said, noting that township officials told her they could accept 100 homes on that site.

— Sam Haberman, on his development project.

Mumich, sensing that other neighbors were adamant against the project and not ready for this kind of growth, began circulating petitions to place the issue on an upcoming ballot.

Citizens have seven days after public notice of a board's decision to file a letter of intent to that board's clerk about setting a voter referendum. After that, the party has 30 days to collect the necessary amount of signatures (10 percent of those who voted in the last governor's election) in order to form a ballot initiative.

Township clerk Joanne Smith confirmed that petitions with more than enough signatures were turned in before the deadline. She said she would give the board the petitions during their next meeting, July 8, at which point the board will settle on an election day.

stand up and take notice.

The parade will proceed through the downtown metropolis of Horton Bay on the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road at 1 p.m. and will last until the last rumor is squelched. Parade goers are encouraged to arrive early and bring their own lawn chair and roadside sustenance.

Rumors swirl at Horton Bay Parade

"Have You Heard?" is this year's parade theme

theme for this year's parade.

"Horton Bay will become the intergalactic rumor control center," Rohe said. "We hope, once and for all, to bring an end to rumor-mongering. This is where most rumors will converge before proceeding to their final resting place... then be banished to obscurity."

The judges for this year's Horton Bay parade will once again be led by chief judge, Sara Gay Dammann. Dammann will be joined by Julie Greenwald of People Magazine and several local celebrities.

As czar of the Horton Bay parade, Rohe is reluctant to reveal any rumors before they are released on July 4, but he did let one slip.

"Have you heard Viagra is in the water at Horton Bay?" Rohe asked innocently. If true, it will certainly make a lot of Horton Bay men

It is too late to make the ballot for the August primary, but the initiative could be on the November ballot, if not sooner, should a special election be called.

"This issue needs to be decided by the people," Mumich said. "It's a big step for South Arm Township. Does East Jordan need this kind of growth? We're not Detroit or even Traverse City for that matter."

Mumich said she was disappointed by the board's unwillingness to consider possible negative environmental impacts the project could have on the area. With no water extensions, every new home would need septic tanks, heightening the chances for runoff into adjacent creeks that flow into Six Mile Lake and Lake Charlevoix. Other concerns include tapping into enough water during summer dry periods and an overall loss of farmland.

Christiansen said the board's decision was an economic one to increase the township's tax base as well as offer more housing options to local residents.

He said the area is a good spot for residential housing because it runs close to a new golf course and is near downtown East Jordan and its shopping areas and schools.

"This takes it out of the board's hands," he said of the referendum. "I think we're looking at a vocal minority; most people are in favor of this."

Haberman, meanwhile, waits to purchase the land from Boyer. He said he expects to close on the property later this month.

As for the voter referendum, Haberman said he may challenge the petition's validity in court. He said misleading statements about the environmental impact of his project may have earned the petitions more signatures than it would have otherwise.

Both he and his attorney, Richard Joseph, said they're still weighing that decision.

Haberman also refuted claims that he'll load the property up with more homes.

In an interview, he said 67 homes would be the maximum he'd build on the land. Most would be stick-built homes brought up in pieces from Crest Homes, a manufacturer out of Indiana. The homes would then be assembled on site. Other homes would be built after selling individual lots.

Whatever happens, Haberman remains sure that he'll undertake some sort of housing project on the land. "We'll go to plan B, C or D — whatever it takes," Haberman said. "We have a number of different options."

Simple traffic tips for tourists will help avert a dousing

Laurie Lounsbury

Lest I be accused of biting the hand that feeds me, let me say one thing before I launch into this column — I love tourists.

I love all the camera-toting, money-spending folks who flock into town.

You are my kind of people.

Charlevoix's tourists open their hearts and their pocketbooks to our community. They spend money freely in our shops and restaurants, and even donate money to our local causes and charities.

Thank-you, thank-you, thank-you.

Without their massive infusion of cash, I would not have a job. Or at least, not a paying job.

With that said, I'd like to share a few traffic safety tips with our visitors.

Even though we might seem to be worlds apart from the big cities you call home, we do have very similar traffic laws. In fact, the police force would say they're identical laws.

A red stop sign still means "Stop," even in northern Michigan.

I've noticed tourists driving down streets, perhaps looking for Earl Young homes, cruising blithely through stop signs.

I'm pleased that you find our neighborhoods and landscapes so worthy of gawking, but please, try to keep at least one eye on the road.

I heartily agree with all of you that the sight of the Pine River Channel from Memorial Bridge is breathtaking.

I only ask that you park your car somewhere else to enjoy the view. The center lane of the bridge is definitely a "No Parking" zone.

We fortunate ones who live here see the bridge view every day. We also like to get home after work and see the view of our family, and we'd prefer not to stop in the middle of the bridge while en route to our loved ones.

Crossing Bridge Street in the summer time is a big challenge, I know. It is, best done swiftly and with surgical precision at designated points called crosswalks.

I'm impressed that you put so much faith in the local drivers that you don't look right or left before plunging into the street on foot.

However, we probably don't deserve that much trust. And don't forget, some of the motorists in town are from big cities like you, and are apt to be doing a little scenery-gawking of their own.

They might not see you stepping out in front of their car.

When crossing the street at the always-congested Clinton and Bridge street intersection, make haste.

I mean, REALLY, make haste. Go fast. Step smartly. Move it!

Bear in mind, when the bridge is up, traffic on Clinton Street waiting to turn left on Bridge Street is backed up for several blocks. The drivers in the traffic jam are getting a bit testy. Their air conditioners are running low on Freon. Their engine radiators are starting to steam. So it does not make them happy — after sitting through four tight changes — to finally get a chance to turn onto Bridge Street only to discover tourists strolling casually, stopping, and chatting in the middle of the intersection.

Now, about that woman who pushed her baby stroller out into the busy traffic to get across the street. This is definitely not playing fairly. The rules of the Charlevoix traffic game clearly state that pushing a baby carriage into traffic first to test cars' stopping ability is akin to pulling hair or kicking below the belt in a street brawl. I saw you use this baby carriage maneuver to scurry over to the movie theater. I also saw you do this to get to Carcy's Shoes. I assure you, Soupy will not start the movie until every one has had an ample opportunity to get through the concession stand line. And Randy Carcy hasn't run out of Aerosole shoes yet. There is no need to employ this dangerous tactic just to cross the street.

You may have noticed that occasionally one car will stop to let another car nose into the line of traffic when it isn't really that car's turn. There is a reason for this. It is called the home field advantage. We locals let our friends into the line of traffic when we see them stuck at an intersection, trying to turn left or right. It might not seem fair to you, but it's just the way it is. Instead of honking at us for allowing this preferential treatment, you may want to try hiring us. We respond well to the sight of a $20 bill.

Just kidding. Actually, we respond well to the sight of a person waving politely at us, asking permission through sign language to enter the flow of traffic. Any sign language other than a five-fingered wave will be sternly ignored.

If we all abide by these simple traffic tips, we might be able to get through the summer without any drive-by water pistol shootings.

Don't say I didn't warn you. Some of us are packing Super-Soakers.

Honored environmentalist

JoAnne Beemon proved that she is more than a random tree-hugger when she was recently honored by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs at their awards banquet. Beemon received the Special Conservation Award. She was cited for her efforts to launch the St. Clair Lake-Six Mile Lake Natural Area Project in Charlevoix County. "It's really an honor," Beemon said of the award. "Many of the conservation clubs are comprised of hunters. What environmentalists and hunters know is that we have to protect habitats if we're going to have game to hunt." (Photo by Laurie Lounsbury)

Railroad display visits Depot Museum for two weekends

The Charlevoix Historical Society is sponsoring "Railroad Bill" Davis in its second annual model railroad display at the Depot over two weekends. Railroad huffs, parents, and especially kids are invited to attend from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays, July 4 and 11, and 12 to 6 p.m. Sundays, July 5 and 12. Classic Lionel trains will be running on multiple tracks, and a special track will display a gear-driven Shay locomotive, designed especially for the rolling hills of the lumber territory, and its lumber cars.

Also on display will be old railroad photos, schedules, and various posters, many from the collection of the East Jordan Historical Society. Railroad T-shirts, hats, pins, and patches will be available for purchase.

Admission to the train display is $4 for adults and $1 for children ages 12 and under. All area railroad huffs are encouraged to attend, with the possibility of establishing a local railroad enthusiast club in conjunction with the Charlevoix Historical Society.

The Charlevoix depot is located at the far end of East Dixon overlooking beautiful Lake Charlevoix. Turn right at the Lodge Motel one block north of the bridge. There is plenty of parking space at the Depot and the adjoining beach.

Letters to the editor

Citizen disagrees with Marion Center Road project

Editor: The following is a letter sent to Mike Wiesner, city manager: Dear Mr. Wiesner,

We are residents on the southeast side of Charlevoix at 115 Hampton St. Because we may not be able to be present at the public hearing scheduled for July 20 concerning the Marion Center, Stover Road, M-66 matter, we wish to be on record as favoring the suggestions of Councilman Timms.

A traffic signal at M-66 and Stover Road would certainly be a preferred solution to congestion in that area. The light would not only provide regulation and timely access to the Marion Center arrivals but it would also provide timely clearance for Stover Road traffic originating from the East. At 1 p.m. on Friday, June 19, I observed two vehicles waiting for clearance from the Marion Center side of the intersection and four waiting for clearance from Stover Road east.

Friends of the Jordan receive water quality grant

The Friends of the Jordan River Watershed (FOJ) will continue to play a major role in monitoring the water quality of the Jordan River and educating students and the public about the natural resources of the watershed, thanks to a $5,000 grant the group recently received from the Norcross Wildlife Foundation of Massachusetts.

The grant will allow FOJ to continue to administer a water quality monitoring program it began with the East Jordan Schools this past school year. The program was highly successful, as several students from the high school's math, science, and technology center used the program's water quality monitoring equipment for their "master projects."

"This grant will enable us to replenish and enhance the water quality testing equipment and resources we bought with a previous grant," said John Hummer, FOJ program director. "We hope to be able to expand the program to include more participating schools and classrooms from throughout the watershed."

In addition, the grant will be used for a new educational display for the group, which will be useful at various meetings and functions.

The grant will also help the Friends in its quest to establish a Jordan River information and education center, a rather recent goal of the group.

"We'd like to establish a place where people can easily access information about the Jordan and FOJ. The Norcross grant provides us with some seed money to begin planning for such a place," said Hummer.

For more information about the Friends of the Jordan, call Hummer at 533-5063.

Highland dancers take stage in East Park Thursday

The Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau's eighth annual summer concert series continues Thursday, July 2 with a performance by the Mid-Michigan Highland Dance Academy.

The Academy is located in Alma, Michigan, and is dedicated to the promotion of the Scottish Arts through authentic and entertaining programs featuring Scottish Highland Dancing. These dances range from the traditional formal dances of Scotland, such as the Highland Fling and Sword Dance, to National Dances such as the Irish Jig and Hompipe.

The performance will begin at 8 p.m. in the Clarence Odmark Bandshell in East Park, and will last 45 minutes to an hour.

The Academy, under the direction of Christie Freestone, represents the Midwest Region at the National Championships, and has produced dancers who have competed not only in the United States, but also in Canada and Scotland. Past and present members include six national runner-ups, and a former U.S. Champion.

Freestone has taught Highland Dance for 25 years in the Alma area, and has traveled extensively, judging Highland Dancing competitions throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Performed in full costume, the dances promise a vivid and genuine production that will entertain audiences of all ages.

The following concert in the series begins at 8 p.m. Thursday, July 9, and features the country group Loose Change.

At 8:15 p.m. Tuesdays, the Charlevoix City Band performs.

In the event of rain or inclement weather, the performances will be canceled.

BEACONS

Beacons of Blessing
By Rev. Bruce Hamilton

Greetings from the deck of the Motor Vessel Chippewa, one of the Arnold Line ferries, cruising the Straits of Mackinac. One of our church families told us about Sunday night vesper cruises and we got a group together. It's a summertime experience that you will want to take advantage of before it slips away.

To begin with, there are no advanced reservations for the journey. It's first come, first served. We came for the eight o'clock sailing which meant we were in line at 7:15. I was surprised at just how far back down the line we were. You depart from the Old State Dock rather than the usual Arnold Docks. For those of you who are summer visitors, that was where the big huge car ferries used to take traffic between the two peninsulas before the bridge was built.

Teenagers from five Mackinaw City area churches make up the "cruise crew." They greet you, pass out tickets, take up the love offering (the trip is on a donation basis), and even serve as an impromptu choir.

Tim and Sue are the hosts. They are full time evangelists from the Cheboygan area. He's a jolly old soul who trumpeted just becoming a grandfather the week before. After introductions, he led us in singing with a mellow voice that put hymns within easy reach of every worshiper. The waves were slight. The breeze was comfortable. You could feel yourself relaxing more and more as you drew away from the dock and into the straits.

This particular night was a photographer's dream. The sky was blue and orange with cotton ball clouds. Turning into the sunset, the Mighty Mac rose out of the water like the most perfect museum sculpture you could imagine. The islands sparkled like jewels on the water.

What was so special to me personally was how Tom and Sue weaved the ministry and sites of the cruise together. They shared just enough to let you feel like you were in church and they gave just enough free time that you could really value the Lord's beauty that so wonderfully surrounded you.

Sailing under the bridge itself moved everyone on board. Even giant gravel-hauling trucks looked like children's play toys from the water below. They shared some statistics with us, such as 42,000 miles of wire make up the support cable system. It was a wonder to view, up close and personal.

As we reluctantly turned around under the bridge and started back, Tom went through the decks interviewing people. You name the church group, and it was there. Most of the Midwestern states were represented too. I think the farthest away state mentioned was Nebraska. He covered anniversaries and birthdays as well. Since he was 51, everyone who shared his age got an extra special mention. Several couples had been married over 60 years and that was a blessing.

Coming into the dock, he brought the evening together sharing some thoughts from Psalm 8. "When I consider your heavens, the work of your fingers, the moon and the stars which you have set in place, what is man that you are mindful of him... You made him a little lower than the heavenly beings and crowned him with glory and honor."

Looking back over the waters and watching the sun sink beneath the waves for the final time, I could understand where the Psalmist was coming from. The vesper cruise is an experience you need to share. Blessings!

Norwood hosts ice cream social

The fourth annual Norwood Area Historical Society Ice Cream Social will boast a special event this year; a ceremony to dedicate the Michigan Historical Marker for the Norwood Township Hall.

The Ice Cream Social will be from 1-5 p.m. Saturday, July 11 in the Village of Norwood. At 2 p.m., dignitaries will gather to celebrate the listing of the hall in the State Register of Historic Sites.

State Senator Walter North will make a few comments about William Harris, "Apple Blossom Willy," the State Legislator from Norwood who introduced legislation to make the apple blossom the official state flower of Michigan. Betty Beeby and John Pearl, descendants of original Norwood settlers, will offer some insights and anecdotes about life in Norwood then and now, followed by the official dedication.

Erected in 1884 by local contractor, Daniel Stafford, for $648.50, the township hall is a well-preserved example of a simple wood frame, clapboard, gable front building design of the late 19th century. Today it is still used for township meetings and also houses the historical society's collection of Norwood area memorabilia. Other events will include the popular horse-drawn wagon historical tours, exhibits by local artists and craftsmen, a colorful quilt display and, of course, ice cream and cookies.

Ice Box offers new way to cool off on hot summer days

If one of the many summer traditions is a cool ice cream cone on hot afternoons, then Donna VanderHyde is hoping to tinker with that tradition this summer.

VanderHyde, an East Jordan native, has opened her own store, The Ice Box, and is offering a summer refreshment unique to the immediate area — shaved ice.

Shaved Ice, in other circles referred to as Hawaiian, Bahama or New Orleans Ice, is smoothed out ice flavored with a fruit or sweet mix.

VanderHyde had not heard of shaved ice until she moved to Grand Rapids to raise her family. Across the street from their home was a shaved ice stand, and when the day came to open her own business, that store stood out in her memory.

"It's a cooler refreshment, but really different from anything else, even Popsicles," she said of the quality of shaved ice. "It melts in your mouth."

VanderHyde serves her shaved ice in large cups and offers 36 flavors from fruits to candy to non-alcoholic margarita and daiquiri blends. Also included on the menu is her specialty, El Nino, a secret blend of some of the flavors on her menu.

"I was with my nieces and we were bored," she said of the purple-colored concoction. "After about an hour, this is what we came up with."

A cup of shaved ice costs $1.50. The Ice Box also sells novelty items with an edge toward humor.

Donna VanderHyde serves shaved ice refreshments in 36 flavors in addition to selling novelty items at The Ice Box. (Photo by Jamie MacMillan)

She said the storefront, located at 101 Park Ave. next to the Acorn

Cafe, was too big only to do shaved ice, so she added inventory. She said she hopes to add more items, expand her venture to Boyne City and East Jordan and add more flavors as her business grows.

Open for the past six weeks, she noted business has not been overly heavy, but she already enjoys her youthful clientele.

"I love having the kids come in, they're a lot of fun," said the mother of four teenagers.

As for starting business in Charlevoix after relocating to East Jordan via Grand Rapids, VanderHyde noted that Charlevoix always was "very touristy and always seemed busy this time of year."

The Ice Box will just be a summer business, open seven days a week from noon until 9 p.m.

Home tour offers new and original, old and traditional

The Kappa Sigma Sorority is hosting its 20th annual home tour from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday, July 8. The selection of homes this year includes a fully restored, century-old Charlevoix home in the valley, a lighthouse-inspired home near the shores of Lake Michigan and a wildlife-theme decorated home on the 18th fairway of the Charlevoix Country Club.

Proceeds from the tour will be donated to the Charlevoix Area Hospital and Habitat for Humanity's Charlevoix home project. Tickets are $15 each and are available locally at the following locations: The Apple Tree, Shop of the Gulls and The Clothing Company. Tickets are also available at the Petoskey Chamber of Commerce and the Quiet Moose in Petoskey, Boyne Country Books in Boyne City, and the Tin Soldier in Harbor Springs. Tickets may also be purchased at each home on the day of the tour.

Tom & Sue Erber: 1810 Stonebridge Dr., Charlevoix Country Club.

This special home is located on the beautiful 18th fairway of the country club, a short walk from the clubhouse and driving range. A spacious deck overlooks a pond that attracts native wildlife which populates the country club grounds. This six bedroom home accents the wildlife theme inside as well with a unique, natural scene above the fireplace created by Tom Erber and constructed by Jeff Lutz and Carl Dhaseleer. This house was built with one purpose in mind; a place for family and friends to relax and enjoy themselves when they return home to Charlevoix.

Inside the lighthouse

Mel and Geri Lester: 2275 Meanderline Road on Lake Michigan.

A beautiful year-round getaway nestled in the woods overlooking Lake Michigan. This unique home has two distinct living areas, each devoted to different genres of art. The upper level contains works by such noted Japanese artists as Nohu Fukui and a wonderful color lithograph by Roy Lichtenstein, a well-known contemporary American artist. Additionally, you will find a "realistic sculpture" by Soho artist John Mackiewicz. The lower level devotes itself to Charlevoix history. Historical photographs are by noted Charlevoix photographer Bob Miles. These pictures depict Charlevoix in its heyday of the roaring '20s. Don't miss this home, it's an art connoisseur's paradise.

Sam & Toby Haberman: 306 Clinton St.

A gracious front porch and proximity to town and beach attracted the Habermans to this charming, though deteriorated, 1884 home. Rescuing it from impending collapse and completing its conversion back to a single family home was a total restoration project. The project included additions of architectural embellishments of stone, salvaged stained-glass windows and woodwork, a new garage and landscaping with perennial gardens. Overall, they wanted to preserve the enjoyable, quirky qualities of an old home while making it conducive to the comforts of modern living and casual northern Michigan lifestyle. In 1991 the Habermans accomplished this daunting task with contractor Ron Brown (Brown and Horn Builder, Inc.). Today, eclectic and whimsical in decor, the home is anchored by a spacious vintage kitchen with an antique drugstore soda fountain back bar, and features collections ranging from fine to funky. It's truly a unique home for all seasons.

Thomas & Jan Spooner: 8493 McSaubia Road in the Colorado Club.

This is a unique, pavilion-style home that is nestled in the treetops and offers spectacular views of Lake Michigan from every room. The two outer "pods" are connected by an atrium with a palm tree and natural plantings that allow springtime even in the coldest Charlevoix winters. The great room is accented by a vaulted ceiling, an eight foot skylight and a large field-stone fireplace. A large wooden deck surrounds the house and leads down to the beautiful Lake Michigan beach.

Bobbie Rassieur: The Lighthouse, Colorado Club, McSaubia Road.

This very special lighthouse home overlooks Lake Michigan and was conceived by original owners Buck and Cindy Scott. It conveys a nautical theme throughout. The charming kitchen was creatively designed into a lifeboat and each doorway in the home is reminiscent of a ship's entryway. The use of wood in the home is extensive and the curved staircase and railings are not only utilitarian but are an aesthetically balanced work of art as well. Rope baseboards add final nautical touch. Bobbie Rassieur and her late husband, Charles, continued the theme when adding the dining room and guest apartment. The glass and wood circular room has an observation deck at the top of the lighthouse.

The old stairwell in the Haberman home was fully restored with a salvaged, antique banister.

The wildlife scene over the fireplace of the Erber home rivals displays at the Museum of Natural History in Chicago.

battled for this congressional seat, said the main problem with the school system is a lack of leadership from school administrators.

"They don't do their job," he said. "If a teacher is not teaching, fix it and get them to teach."

Furthering the education debate, candidates had mixed reviews about the proposed Senate Bill 300 which would prohibit schools from beginning classes before Labor Day.

The quartet of Democrats opposed the idea as state-wide legislation, preferring the matter be dealt with by each local school district.

Newman, an Alpena County Commissioner, said with the length of the school year set to increase by 10 days over the next few years that the year would run too long into the summer with mandatory post-Labor Day starts.

"I'm a strong supporter of tourism, but not at the cost of school children," he said. "By May they're already staring out the windows."

Fournier suggested tinkering with a 45:15 system where school would be in session for 45 days, then out for 15 days as a way to space out vacations and prevent teacher burnout.

Republicans Brenner, Schwalm and Filber also opposed the concept as state-wide legislation while DeYoung and Ludlow favored it.

DeYoung, the Indian River Chamber of Commerce Director, did say that if schools did not before Labor Day, then the weekend needs to be extended to include Friday as an off-day from school.

"That's a weekend perhaps both schools and businesses can live with," she said.

All nine favored some form of campaign finance reform, but little was offered as to how to do that.

"Make it a challenge to see who will spend the wisest — after all, that's who you should vote for," said Brenner, the Alpena writer/farmer who worked as a reporter in Michigan, Ohio and Florida.

No one said the state's gun laws need to be made more strict. Instead, they all mentioned more education on how to use and handle guns held the key to eliminating possible misuse.

Twite, the Alpena Township Supervisor, noted her opposition to assault weapons and Ludlow said he would support a law to require all guns be locked in households with residents under the age of 18.

All agreed to fight state takeover of local roads, but three of the Democrats — Twite, Newman and Enderle — did support raising trucking fees and raising the tax on the diesel fuel they use as a way to help pay for more road repair.

"When you play a golf course you have to pay the fees," Enderle said. "Trucks are on the roads more than cars and they should pay."

Schwalm, the former munitions expert who now serves on the Wolverine school board, said increasing costs for truckers would increase the cost of goods and be an unfair burden on the many of the independent trucking outfits.

A majority supported slashing the income tax, but only Enderle suggested a total abolition of the tax.

Fournier and Twite meanwhile said a reduction in the sales tax was the best way to reduce the tax burden on citizens. Fournier said all new programs need to have a sunset, so after two or three years, what's not needed could be more easily eliminated.

On health care issues, Filber, Ludlow and Fournier stood opposed to the legalization of assisted suicide. Fournier called the publicity generated by Dr. Jack Kevorkian "unfortunate."

Filber, a mental health counselor, was concerned what path assisted suicide would lead to and said, "We need to place more value on human life and it's time we realize that morals and ethics are more important than the bottom line."

Ludlow noted the Michigan Right to Life supports his campaign, which opposes the legalization of assisted suicide.

The remaining candidates didn't endorse making assisted suicide legal, but mentioned the state should play no role in those decisions and that people have a right to die with dignity.

None of the prospects were overjoyed with managed care and H.M.O.s.

"Their (HMO) decisions are based on how to make money and put dividends into people's pockets," DeYoung said. "In that regard they actually limit care."

Enderle, meanwhile, said one of his legislative goals would be to keep insurance companies out of the decision-making process and called for greater oversight on insurance and medical research companies who charge consumers over and above affordable rates.

Stress clinic offered at Burns Clinic

What is stress? Stress occurs when there is an imbalance between the demands of our lives and the resources we have to deal with those demands. Stress may also occur when we don't feel capable of meeting demands that we perceive are greater than what we can cope with in any given situation.

Learning how to recognize stress triggers and the detrimental behaviors that lead to stress is the first step to replacing stress with positive habits.

Join Larry Warner, M.A., L.L.P., of the Burns Clinic Department of Psychiatry on Wednesday, July 15 from 7 to 8 p.m. at the Community Health Center located across from the main entrance to Northern Michigan Hospital. Various coping responses to stress will be discussed in relationship to stress from the workplace, home, or family.

There is no fee for this class. To register or for more information, please call Northern Michigan Hospital HealthAccess at 1-800-248-6777.

Grief recovery series offered to help cope with loss

Losing a loved one, parent or child due to death is sometimes more than we can bear. Also emotionally taxing is getting divorced, ending a long-term relationship or even losing a pet. Loss of any kind is the focus of a series designed to help people cope with their loss.

A series of five weekly sessions for those coping with a loss will be from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday, July 14 to Tuesday, Aug. 11 at the Community Mental Health building at 218 W. Garfield in Charlevoix. The Grief Recovery program is sponsored by Charlevoix County Hospice, Charlevoix Area Hospital, Northern Michigan Community Mental Health and the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency to provide help for anyone who is recovering from a loss of any kind.

Andrew Sahara, Ph.D., and a licensed practitioner, will advise the Grief Recovery sessions. These informative discussions will provide assistance in dealing with grief.

Class size is limited to 10. Anyone interested must pre-register by phone and registration will be closed with no one admitted to the sessions after the first class. There is no charge to attend.

"If there were two equal candidates, I'd pick the person from Michigan," he said.

None of the out-of-state candidates made the final cut, and over half of them were eliminated by the end of the second round.

Only seven women applied for the position, none of whom survived the first three rounds of cuts.

The next step of the board is to interview the seven prospects, which they hope to do early next week before settling on two finalists to further interview. A decision on the two finalists could come as early as next Wednesday night, July 8.

Two interviews will be conducted on Monday, July 6 at 6 and 8 p.m., three on Tuesday, July 7 at 4:30, 6:15 and 8 p.m., and two on Wednesday, July 8 at 4:30 and 6:15 p.m.

They're everywhere, they're everywhere

Zebra mussels form new attachments to the area

By Laurie Lounsbury

As lifeguard for the Sequanota Club on Lake Charlevoix, Laura Trantow is accustomed to carefully monitoring her charges by observing the swimming abilities and habits of the little ones in her domain.

But her charges are usually small children.

This summer, Trantow finds herself monitoring exotic swimmers from extremely large families that like to cling to anything they can find — even each other.

The uninvited new arrivals at Sequanota's sandy, sheltered beach are the zebra mussels, a sturdy bunch of European barnacles that invaded the Great Lakes

Zebra mussels do have some redeeming qualities

nearly a decade ago.

While zebra mussels have been in Lake Charlevoix for several years, they have, for the most part, stayed clustered on anchors, dock pilings and rocks in deep, cold water.

"Now they're glomming onto anything — little rocks, clams, sticks, even each other. They don't need anything but themselves to hang on to," Trantow said.

Sequanota's swim area seems like an unlikely candidate for a zebra mussel habitat. The lake bottom is pure sand, blissfully free of stones or driftwood.

"Last year I only found them in deep water, attached to the chains and anchors of the swim buoys," Trantow said. "To find thousands of them in the middle of the swimming area in four feet of water was really a surprise."

It's no surprise to fisheries research biologist Jori Jonas, who served as the zebra mussel coordinator in Wisconsin before coming to the Charlevoix Fisheries station.

"They will attach to any solid surface," Jonas said. "As young ones, they float around, then attach to each other on the bottom of the lake, creating mats."

When the zebra mussels first arrived in northern Michigan, no one rolled out the welcome mat for them. They came, uninvited, in the bilge water of sea-going ships that dumped their ballast water in the Great Lakes.

Fishermen worried about the mussels consuming all the nutrients in the lake algae, leaving nothing behind for the fish. The mussels made no friends at area plants and factories along the lake shore. They attached themselves to water intake and outlet pipes, wreaking havoc with circulating water systems.

And the zebra mussels' ability to reproduce at a rate that would make a rabbit blush had everyone concerned.

After a few years of uneasy cohabitation with the exotic invaders, the thumb-nail sized zebra mussels proved they had some redeeming qualities. Water clarity in Lake Charlevoix's South Arm suddenly became better than it had been in years.

"Zebras filter a tremendous amount of water," Jonas said. "They consume everything in the water and excrete what they don't want in pellets on the lake bottom."

Initially, the perch population seemed to be threatened by the zebra mussels, but, for now, the perch seem to have adapted.

Other fish and wildlife are benefiting from the zebra mussels. Diving ducks and whitefish feed on the infant mussels, when they are floating microscopic creatures called veligers. The pellets of excretion from mature mussels put concentrated nutrients onto the bottom of the lake.

"The excreted pellets from the zebras have enhanced walleye egg survival in Lake Erie," Jonas said. "So they can help in some ways and hurt in others."

What they hurt most on humans are the soles of their feet. The zebras have razor sharp edges on their shells. Trantow noticed that when the shells are completely closed, they don't have the cutting power they have when partially open.

With long, slender fingers, Trantow boldly scoops them up by the handful and tosses them out of Sequanota's swim area. She's trying to maintain a zebra-free swim area, but realizes it's probably an exercise in futility.

"No matter how much I move them, they keep coming back," Trantow said. "I'm hoping they won't come into the really shallow area because they seem to like the deeper water."

Trantow, like everyone else, must learn to live with the zebra mussels.

"They're here and we're living with them," Jonas said. "We're not going to do anything about them. Wearing aqua socks is the way to go to avoid cuts."

Dick Scofield, Fisheries Research Supervisor, has seen other exotic invaders, such as the alewives and smelt, become subdued in numbers through natural adaptation.

"Like all exotics, the zebra mussels will peak out and then decline in numbers," Scofield said. "Exotics arrive, carve out a huge niche for themselves, then level off."

Jonas said the zebras may be reaching their peak.

"I think you're probably seeing the worst of it," she said. "They'll be on every solid surface in the lake."

Even though the zebra mussels made themselves at home first in Lake Michigan before they invaded Lake Charlevoix, they aren't posing a problem along the shores of the bigger lake.

"They get scoured away from the shoreline by winter ice movement on the big lakes," Jonas said. While the zebra mussels are adapting to their new environment, the native species are adapting to the zebras.

"We're seeing a change in fish behavior," Jonas said.

Fish that were once able to sneak around in murky waters are now nakedly exposed to their predators. The increased water clarity leaves them easily visible to anglers.

"The fish spook more easily in the daytime, because they can see you coming," Jonas said.

Fishing for walleye, once a daytime sport, is becoming a night time adventure as anglers find ways to creep up on fish without being spotted. The darkness of night provides their best chance to hook an unsuspecting walleye.

Jonas remains confident that both humans and aquatic life can adjust to the zebra mussel.

"In saltwater environments, they deal with this type of problem a lot," Jonas said. "Barnacles have been around a long time, and in saltwater areas they have learned how to cope."

Jonas said anti-fouling paints can be applied to boat hulls and dock pilings to prevent zebra mussels from attaching. Screens coated with anti-fouling paint will keep the mussels off water intake and outlet pipes.

It is an adhesive thread the mussels produce, called a byssal thread, that allows them to cling so securely to just about anything in the water.

"Research companies were studying the byssal thread, hoping to develop a new adhesive compound," Jonas said.

Who knows?

The zebra mussel might bring us an underwater version of Super Glue.

Until then, the zebra mussels should be regarded as long-lost relatives from the Old Country.

They came to America for a visit, and decided to stay and have kids. As their hosts, we have to take the good with the bad.

Mid-Michigan Highland Dancers are true athletes

The following story was written by Nick Kessler, a Charlevoix High School performing arts student who will be writing for the Courier this summer. He will primarily be covering arts and entertainment events in the area.

By Nicholas Kessler

The summer air was filled with music as the bagpiper led a train of children through the crowd. The Mid-Michigan Highland Dancers had returned to the East Park in Charlevoix. A delighted crowd sat transfixed as Bill Weaver, bagpipe player, highland dance instructor and judge, created lively tunes for the young dancers to step to.

Highland dancing is saturated with background. Each dance and costume is deeply rooted in folklore and legend, with a richness that acquires well-deserved respect instantly. Tartans — or kilts — each have a pattern that represents a family, such as a McGregor kilt versus a Douglas kilt.

Displaying a kilt of dark green, Bill Weaver wore a tartan that was originally worn as hunting camouflage. The bagpipes played are Highland Pipes. Because they were originally used to summon the men in time of war, the Highland Pipes were made of African Blackwood to increase their resonance and volume. Similar to ballet, each dance illustrates an unspoken story. The first story shown by the Highland Dancers was the difficult Sword Dance. A sword and sheath were laid crosswise on the ground. The performer had to dance around the sword knowing, by legend, a single touch would mean indefinite doom.

To symbolize the Scots' release from the English laws, the Dance of the Torn Trousers had many kicking motions. This was to paint the picture of angry Scotsmen kicking away the constrictive trousers of the English, to make room for their treasured kilts that had been banned.

The Irish Jig was lively and emphatic. Stamping her feet in disgust, an angry washer woman is upset that her husband has spent too much money at the pub. Not only was the footwork impressive, the look on the faces of these washer women could have scared the most determined of pub men.

Taking pause from the trout pool, captivated children watched as Hannah Faustmann flawlessly performed her own, personally choreographed, "Lord of the Dance." Like leaning on a cane that suddenly breaks, the audience fell forward into enthusiastic applause as Hannah became motionless in her final position.

The Mid-Michigan Highland dancers entertained crowds in East Park Thursday night with their lively and emphatic dancing. (Photo by Nick Kessler)

The Mid-Michigan Highland Dancers are a returning favorite in Charlevoix. Based in Alma, the 10 dancers took a break from competitions to join our community for an evening.

"Performances [rather than competitions] are a relief, relaxing and fun," said Kristy Freestone, dance instructor and choreographer of 26 years at Mid-Michigan Highland Dancers Academy. Of the 10 dancers, six are Highland Dancing national champions. The dancers are eager for their trip to Scotland to perform in the Scotland Highland Games. That trip will come after their next stop, the United States Highland Dance Competition. When the dancers are critiqued, five things are examined: perfect timing with music, exactness in the pointing of toes, the degree of leg turnout, steady, even bounces, and "general deportment."

Because of the constant movement, leaps, bounces and foot work, all done on the balls of the feet, Highland dancing is anything but easy. A study at Harvard University showed that not only was Highland the most athletic of all dancing, it is the most aerobic of any sport. The dancers present were: John and Anna Fruittiger, Kelsey and Caitlin Thelen, Kate DeGood, Sheena Moes, Kristen Riemersma, Katie Goodell, Emily Brooks and Hannah Faustmann. Hannah's grandparents still live in Petoskey where Hannah's mother was raised. Most of these dancers started when they were three or four years old and practice one to three hours a day. Their instructor said that it's their first love and they don't mind working harder than most adults.

Expect to see the Mid-Michigan Highland Dancers returning next year here in Charlevoix.

"Most people either like bagpipes or don't like bagpipes," said Weaver. Anyone who likes the bagpipes should come down and see the Highland Dancers, and if you don't like the bagpipes, it might be time to give them another chance.

If you're interested in Highland dancing, you can contact Kristy Freestone at the Mid-Michigan Highland Dancers Academy, Alma, Michigan (517) 463-2983. You can also contact the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey, ask for Mary.

Craft Show coming to Charlevoix's waterfront parks

Combine one of the most picturesque settings in the state with a gathering of over 225 crafts people from all over the United States, an open-air atmosphere, and the result is Charlevoix's 30th Annual Craft Show, a bonanza of opportunity for collectors. This year the Craft Show will run from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, July 11.

All available spaces in Charlevoix's waterfront parks along Round Lake will be filled by artisans displaying a great variety of crafts. Highlights include wooden furniture, birdhouses, pottery, jewelry, quilted works, toys, original folk art, baskets, hand-woven rugs, dried florals and herbs, hand-painted clothes, native American beadwork, decoys, dolls, stained glass, and, of course, holiday items.

Charlevoix's Craft Show virtually has something for everyone, with reasonable prices.

The timing and setting of the Craft Show is ideal. The summer resort and tourist season is in full swing, boaters are sailing and cruising in and out of the serene Round Lake Harbor.

Exhibitors come from a range of backgrounds; some are full-time craftsmen and women, and others are people who find time to devote to a favored hobby.

"It's a very interesting craft show," said long-time exhibitor Phyllis Young of Elk Rapids. Young has participated in 27 of Charlevoix's 30 Craft Shows. Her jewelry features "Just Love Michigan" designs on necklaces, earrings and pins.

Nancy Piatek of East Jordan will display her wheel-thrown slab and coiled vessels, vases and sculptural pieces.

Five Million Dollar Dinner benefits arts council

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

Only a handful of people know what really goes on behind the scenes of the Five Million Dollar Dinner. Ask Nancy Porter and Martha Landis, who have co-chaired this popular fund-raiser for the Crooked Tree Arts Council for the last few years. Try finding a home with a separate dining room that seats 12 people, with a pantry, a commodious kitchen, plus accommodations for a volunteer staff of 30, which is only the first step.

A volunteer staff of 30? Yes, sir! Every one of the five winning couples who purchased a $10 ticket is picked up by a chauffeur, (possibly even by Major General James Randolph) and escorted by a hostess, (June MacIntyre) to and from the dinner. Each couple is served by a tuxedo-clad waiter (Gary Osterbeck), plus two wine stewards (Dr. Jeff Porter and Paul Keisewetter) and a butler, (John Ferseus).

Nancy Porter overlooks no detail. She instructs the wine stewards to pour the wine carefully without lifting the glass off the table. In addition to the staff in the dining room, the seven course dinner requires a team of two competent dishwashers in the kitchen who rotate on an hourly basis. Susan Flanders helped hand-wash 108 porcelain china plates, cups and saucers, 60 crystal wine glasses, and 129 sterling silver knives, forks and spoons, not including pots and pans.

This year, arts council founder Jack Perry, who usually provides all the silverware, was heard to comment that "someone used their fish fork for the salad!" which reminds us of the bon mot by Oscar Wilde, who said, "The world is my oyster, but I used the wrong spoon."

Future winners need not worry about picking up the wrong fork or spoon — just watch the hostess carefully.

Everyone has heard that help is hard to get nowadays, but not for this popular fund raiser! There's a waiting list of volunteers every year who are eager to offer their services. Repeat volunteers enjoy ooh-ing and aah-ing over the flower centerpiece and candelabra on the elegant dining room table, they love to watch the chef carefully assemble the seven course meal, and with a bit of luck, they get to taste a bite of an appetizer or dessert.

Where the dinners are annually held is rotated between Harbor Springs, Petoskey, Charlevoix and Walloon Lake. Charlevoix has hosted five of the 15 previous dinners. Two have been held at the MacGillivray on Turtle Hill, another by the Lepmans at Loeh Farms, one was hosted by Allan Warner of the Chicago Club, and one was held at Mary and Chuck Adams' home on Michigan Avenue.

This year the Gordon Bonfields graciously hosted the dinner in their new Victorian home in Bay Harbor.

Admittedly, this elegant affair is not everyone's cup of tea. Some people may feel intimidated, but fortunately there are enough men and women who thoroughly enjoy getting dressed up and being wined and dined in high style. In spite of the fact that everyone doesn't know each other at the beginning of the evening, we've noticed that the conversation becomes livelier and livelier as the meal progresses. Guests enjoy being served course after course of our many restaurants' finest specialties, accompanied by a well-selected wine.

There have been fortunate winners every year from Charlevoix. In fact, Mary Feindt has won twice! But best of all, several years ago, the dinner was responsible for the beginning of a full-blown romance that ended up in a happy marriage. Ask Dr. Ronald Vandenberg and the former Jan Biddick. She held the winning ticket in more ways than one.

Should you buy a ticket next year, the odds on your being one of the winning couples are pretty good. Six-hundred-fifty tickets were sold this year, raising $7,000 for the arts council.

Firemen to help out at movie theater

When you see a big fire truck in front of the Cinema III movie theater July 12, it won't be because the sizzling summer movies set the place on fire.

The truck will be there to support the fire department's fund raising efforts for a new thermal imaging camera, a life-saving device that will allow fire fighters to see clearly through smoke and dark when searching for victims.

Cinema III in Charlevoix will be showing a full schedule of movies Sunday, July 12, with firemen taking over as hosts, selling popcorn and pop, escorting patrons to seats, parking their cars — whatever they may do to make your day enjoyable.

Theater owner Bill Supernaw will be donating a portion of each ticket purchased and each concession item sold to the fund raising effort.

"We'll have some great movies showing," Supernaw said. "Armageddon, Lethal Weapon 4 and Small Soldiers are scheduled. Movies will start at 1 p.m. Sunday, July 12.

Retired fireman Tom Meggison is pleased with the Cinema III effort to help the department. Donations are 100 percent tax deductible.

Meggison said his fellow firemen will be very happy to accept anything donors want to give to the cause. The word is that a beautiful dog with spots will be there, and if it's hot that day, firemen might cool the crowd with a giant water spray.

Lady Luck will help pay for petunias

It takes a village — actually, an entire community's worth of volunteers — to plant five miles of nearly 45,000 petunias along Charlevoix's main thoroughfare.

It also takes money. Keep Charlevoix Beautiful (KCB) must come up with $10,000-$12,000 every year to buy petunias and pay for gas, maintenance and insurance for the petunia-watering truck, driven by volunteer Dale Boss.

This year, KCB will be hosting a Vegas Night aboard the Emerald Isle from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Saturday, July 11 as their main fund-raising event. Tickets for the party are $10 per person and are available at Interior Motives, Trade-mark Clothier, the Sunglass Shoppe, or at the boat the evening of the party. There will be blackjack tables, a roulette wheel, craps and other games of chance. A live auction and 50-50 tickets will also help defray the cost of the annual petunia-planting. The live auction and 50-50 ticket sales times are 10 p.m., 11 p.m. and midnight.

Live entertainment will be provided by the Petoskey Steel Drum Band. There will be a cash bar on board, and no one under the age of 21 will be permitted to attend.

For those who are unable to attend the party, donations may be made to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful at P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, MI, 49720.

Camp McSauba is in full swing with summer fun

There aren't many places where kids get what they want — and so do their parents.

Camp McSauba is just such a place. A weekly day camp for kids, the outdoor setting provides ample activities for children such as BB gunnery, archery, games, arts and crafts, hiking and swimming in Lake Michigan at the foot of the spectacular North Point dunes.

And what do the parents get? A great, guilt-free place to leave their kids during the day while they go to work, go sightseeing or go shopping without kids in tow.

Camp sessions run from Monday through Friday noon, with Thursday being a full day of activities culminating in the traditional overnight stay.

With the addition of a new, second floor on the Mt. McSauba Lodge, kids have a safe, comfortable place to sleep during their overnight stay.

Camper fees are $60 per camper for the week. The fees include insurance, arts and crafts costs, a Camp McSauba T-shirt and two meals and a snack on the overnight camp-out.

Each camp session can accommodate 65 campers.

There are still a few camp scholarships available.

For more information, call the city recreation department at 547-3253.

School board embarks on superintendent interviews

By Jamie MacMillan

Before beginning interviews for its vacant superintendent position, the Charlevoix Board of Education hired a new industrial arts teacher, accepted the resignation of two coaches and hired a new coach.

The board hired Scott Diment to replace middle school industrial arts teacher Jim Jinsky, who retired at the end of the last school year.

Diment has 10 years' experience teaching at Caledonia Middle School, where he taught industrial arts and other technology education courses.

He earned a degree in education from Central Michigan University in 1987 and later earned a Masters in vocational education in 1995 from Western Michigan University.

The board also accepted the resignation of JV girls' basketball coach Leanna Mosoryak and varsity soccer co-coach Tom Conlan.

While the district will post the JV basketball opening, the soccer position will be referred to the extra-curricular committee to determine if another co-coach needs to be hired.

Hagen Manker has coached the squad with Conlan since its inception four years ago. Since the position was originally created with co-coaches, some board members were hesitant to elevate Manker to head coach before ensuring that doing so would not be a violation of school policy.

Staying with athletics, the board hired Toni Felter as freshmen girls' basketball coach. Felter is a counselor at the high school and earlier in her career coached the girls' varsity squad at Charlevoix.

In other action, the board swore in new members Dennis Halverson and Michael MacMillan, making the pair the 13th and 14th persons to serve on the board in the last 15 months.

All that was a precursor to the start of face-to-face interviews of the group of finalists for the school's vacant superintendent position.

On Monday, the board interviewed Roland Johnson, assistant superintendent of West Ottawa (Holland) Schools, and Michael Colby, superintendent of Morley-Stanwood Schools.

Four more interviews took place after the Courier deadline for this week's news. Three candidates were interviewed Tuesday, July 7, and one candidate was interviewed Wednesday, July 8. The result of the interviews will be covered in next week's issue of the Courier.

After the initial round of six candidate interviews, the board will narrow the field to two finalists, hold second interviews next Monday, July 13, and perhaps choose its man that night.

One prospect, Timothy Murphy, withdrew his name from contention because he took the superintendent job at Rudyard Schools.

Dizzying summer days

Summer can be a dizzying time for children of all ages. Colin McDonough, 6, can attest to that as his friend Michael Lenhart, 8, spins him around on the merry-go-round at Ferry Beach. (Photo by Jamie MacMillan)

Newspapers deliver an involved, dedicated audience. An electronic media buy often contains a lot of waste — people who are just too far away to be your prime prospects — while newspapers deliver the people most likely to do business with you, right where they live and work.

'Yellow Pages' bills: They look real, but you don't have to pay

By JANE DUNSHIE
News-Review staff writer

You've heard it before and you'll hear it again. But just in case you've forgotten - here's a refresher. Read the fine print.

At least two internet companies specializing in business listings are sending out solicitations to businesses that look like invoices and bear official-looking logos similar to the yellow pages walking fingers. It's not a bill, and you don't have to pay.

These are not from the local phone book company. One company, Yellow Pages, Inc., has offices in Orange and San Juan Capistrano, Calif., as well as Atlanta, Ga., and Boston, Mass. The other is Yellow True Pages with offices in Indiana, California and other states as well.

And the solicitations, in amounts of $191 and $175, are not for space on a printed yellow phone book page, but for an internet listing which the service already provides for free. According to representatives from each company, the fee is to make the listing more visually appealing by changing the type color and size, and moving the business higher on the list of similar service or product suppliers.

Ed McDonald answered the phone at the San Juan Capistrano, Calif., offices of Yellow Pages, Inc. "A directory like this is only good if it's complete - so every company in the country is listed in it right now," McDonald said.

McDonald estimated there are 17.5 million companies listed in the directory, available by state and type. Upgrading is to make the company stand out among what could be hundreds in any given category.

He said the company has received complaints about the appearance of the solicitation, because it does look like a bill. McDonald said the letter was designed that way to get approval from the post office.

According to the Better Business Bureau, Colton, Calif. office, this company has a satisfactory business record since its start date March of 1995. As of June 26, no complaints about service, advertising or solicitation practices had been filed.

The other company, Yellow True Pages, was represented by Mike Pfeiffer, also speaking from a California office.

He said the two most common questions he hears are "Aren't all you yellow pages the same company?" and "Is this a bill?"

"Of course, we are quick to point out to them that neither of these is the case," Pfeiffer said.

Part of the confusion stems from the service mark at the top left corner of the solicitations. The logos vary in minor details. One has the fingers walking over a keyboard, the other over a globe. Each is very similar to the logo associated with the successful "Let your fingers do the walking" yellow pages advertising campaign from years ago.

"People don't realize that is a service mark and anyone can use it," he said.

The Better Business Bureau of northeast Indiana has received complaints about this company, which had a start date of April, 1996. Since September of 1996, seven complaints were filed. Five have been closed and assumed satisfied, two were closed as unanswered. According to the Better Business Bureau, how complaints are responded to is just as important as the number of complaints, and the volume of business should be taken into consideration.

Representatives from each web yellow pages company said their goals were not to dupe people, and have cheerfully refunded money sent to them by mistake.

Lawyers come and go at Charlevoix's largest law firm

By Jamie MacMillan

Charlevoix County's largest law firm split into two entities, with one lawyer returning to individual practice and the others forming their own partnership.

Pointner, Joseph, Corcoran and Telgenhof officially dissolved on May 1.

From the break-up, Richard E. Joseph, Michael J. Corcoran and Allen R. Telgenhof have created their own firm.

Pointner will remain active on the Charlevoix legal scene, but will practice alone, away from the partnership atmosphere.

For Pointner, the move was deja-vu, reminiscent of his own career climb. In 1978, he left the Petoskey firm of Jack Clark after eight years to start his own firm in Charlevoix.

"It's a rare lawyer who doesn't have that yen to start their own shop," he said of the separation. "I wish them the best and anticipate the very best for myself."

Pointner, a 1970 graduate of the University of Wisconsin Law School, opened his firm in 1978 and his partner at the time was current circuit judge Richard Pajtas.

Pointner has practiced alone before - namely after Pajtas' election to the bench - as well as after other partner comings and goings.

As for Charlevoix's newly formed firm of Joseph, Corcoran and Telgenhof, it's their first attempt at autonomy, although Telgenhof did have his own firm for a year in Clio prior to moving to Charlevoix in 1994.

"We're real excited about the prospect of starting a successful firm," said Corcoran. "We have a great deal of confidence in each other."

Joseph has practiced law for 11 years with a focus on real estate, development, zoning, general business and estate planning. Corcoran has practiced law for 10 years, and in Charlevoix for six years with a focus on worker's compensation issues and bankruptcy. He also does trial work, while Telgenhof is a trial lawyer focusing on criminal defense, civil litigation and securities fraud.

Also joining the firm is associate Valerie K. Barnes, a 1995 graduate of the Williamette University College of Law. Barnes concentrates on real estate and has a broad appellate practice.

As for the shake-up, Telgenhof noted it was just "time to go in our own direction."

Since they were an active part of the previous firm, Joseph called the change a "lateral" move and that it's "not entirely new territory for us."

"We'll give a young and fairly aggressive approach to providing legal services at an affordable price," he said.

The trio will remain at their 203

Tom Pointner

Mason St. offices, but their phone number has been switched to 547-8990. They expect to set up a satellite firm in East Jordan next month.

Pointner will continue to share office space with the firm, but, he said, he'll relocate sometime in the near future. He said he has renewed vigor with the move to an individual practice.

"An added bonus is that the time I used to spend managing and supervising can now be spent enjoying our beautiful area and its fine people."

Durant money buying computers for faculty

Also buys some new machines for computer lab

By Jamie MacMillan

Slowly, but surely, the Charlevoix School District is spending the money received in the rebate from the Durant settlement.

In April, the schools received $168,000 as settlement from the 18-year-old Durant case, which saw 84 school districts — including Charlevoix — sue the state of Michigan for underfunding of required services such as special education, food services and driver's education.

Since the settlement was announced last fall, it was expected that Charlevoix would spend the money on some sort of technology advancements.

After delaying on an earlier proposal to buy computers, file servers, and update current technology, the board voted 6-0 last Monday night to purchase 95 computers.

Board member Pete Spieles was absent.

Seventy of the computers will go on teachers' and administrators' desks. Technology coordinator Scott Mays said this would allow every faculty member to have a computer.

Meanwhile, 25 computers with a little more power will be installed in the second high school business lab.

The 70, 266 megahertz Pentium
II costs about $1,210 per machine while the 25 higher-powered, 350 megahertz Pentium II is $1,695.

About two-thirds of the total $128,925 purchase will be covered by Durant funds, with the remainder being covered by funds available in the school's vocational education funds.

In all, $86,800 is being taken from the Durant money, while $42,125 is coming from voc-ed funding.

In an original technology proposal, the district was going to purchase 25 computers for the middle school computer lab. Instead, that lab will receive the computers being replaced in the business lab. Those machines are three years old, but were upgraded last month, Mays said.

"What really drove this move was that funding for vocational programs became available," Mays said.

In the original proposal, stalled by the board in May, 116 new computers were budgeted. Mays said the decrease in computers purchased came after a reassessment of true needs, and that computers already on faculty desks were simply upgraded.

The schools received eight bids, but chose the Charlevoix firm of CTL Systems.

While there was one lower bid than CTL, Mays explained that CTL was the only one to offer a three-year parts and labor warranty as well as on-site visits during the first year.

The average of the bids was $145,000.

With over $80,000 remaining of the Durant funds, more technology spending can be expected. Mays said the schools are considering purchasing three file servers, estimated at $6,000 apiece, to help the elementary and middle school transition to Windows programs from McIntosh, as well as new printers.

On — and off — the road again for mountain biker

By Jamie MacMillan

Summer is the time of year for high school students to break away from the shackles of school. Most will take part-time jobs, hit the beach and make sure enough days are spent doing as little as possible.

For one local teenager, all of those activities are wedged in between jaunts to the nearest bike race and hours spent alone training on the open road.

Todd Freidinger, a junior at Charlevoix High School, has parlayed a simple off-road bike ride on Fisherman's Island four years ago into a promising career on the state-wide mountain bike racing circuits.

This is Freidinger's third year of competition, but first year he's had a full plate of events. Already, the 16-year-old has captured four first place finishes, a pair of seconds and one fourth place finish.

"That race was frustrating," he said of his fourth place finish at the Fort Custer course in Kalamazoo.

Not only did he get nudged out for third place in a sprint to the finish, he spent much of the race adjusting the cleats in his shoe, which were throwing off the rhythm of his pedaling.

Other than that, it's been a fairly smooth ride to the top of his age group.

Across the state, mountain bike competitors compete on two different circuits; the Michigan Cup and Michigan Mountain Bike Association (MMBA). Freidinger said most riders compete in both circuits which, until the final event of the season, race at different times.

Freidinger has raced on courses at Boyne Mountain, Traverse City, Houghton and Pontiac. Courses are between three and six miles in length, with each event requiring three laps to the finish. Most of the courses are carved out of ski hills and city parks. His home course at Boyne Mountain, he said, is his favorite.

He trains by hitting the open road on a more standard road bike for 30- to 60-mile rides four times a week. When not on the road, he takes his competitive bike, a Mt. Fuji FX, to either Boyne Mtn. or Mt. McSaubia for off-road work.

Freidinger got hooked on the sport after that bike ride four years ago, but it took some time to get interested in riding competitively. Basically, he wondered how his riding would stack up against everyone else, so he entered the Octoberfest race at Schuss Mountain in October of 1996.

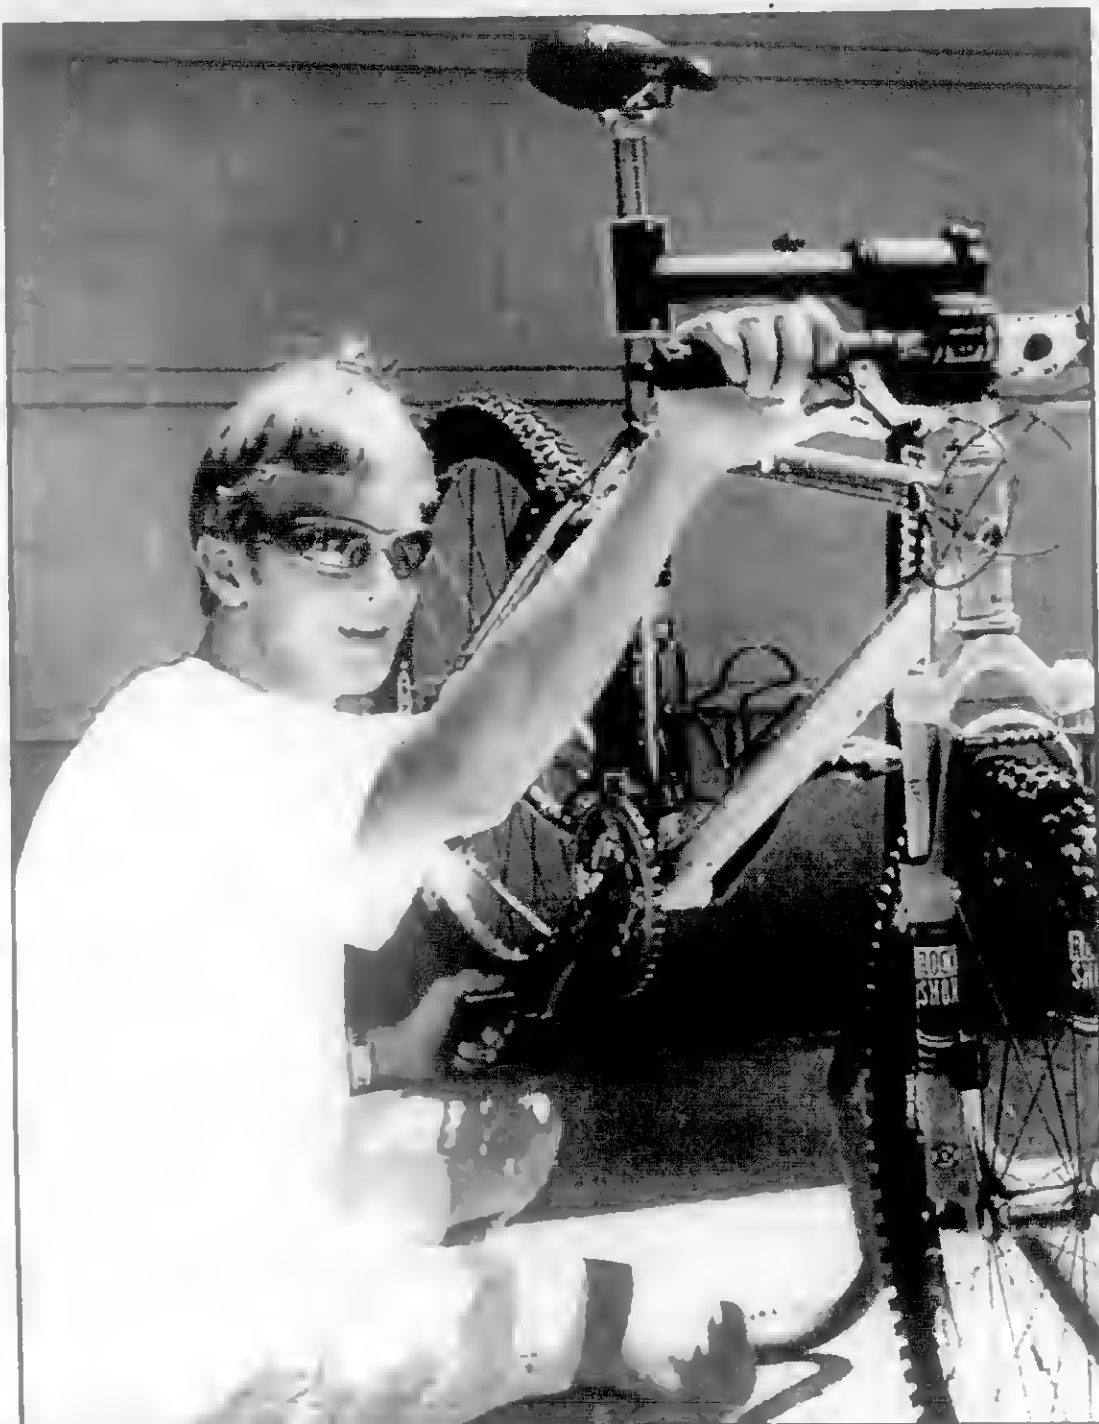

"I guess I'm just a little competitive at everything I do," he said.

In that race he crossed the finish line in fifth place out of 20 riders in the beginners' U-14 division.

"I was really nervous about what was going to happen," he recalled. "During the race I felt like I was fighting everyone and everything."

Racers are divided into four classes: beginner, sport, expert and elite. From there, each class is divided into age groups. In the beginner and sport classes, the age groups are U-14, 15-18 and 19-24. The expert class is divided into U-24 and 25 and over while the elite class is a professional division.

Midway through his nine-race schedule last summer, Freidinger moved into the sport class. He has hopes to move into the expert field in the near future.

Jumping from beginner to sport class, Freidinger said the racers weren't much better, only a little faster. The biggest change was that the races were also longer.

"You get to race longer for the same price," he joked.

When he's not biking this summer, Freidinger works part time at Bridge Street Ace Hardware and his sister store, Charlevoix Cycle and Sports, which is his sponsor on race day.

Freidinger also is an avid skier and one of the better skiers on the Charlevoix High School team.

He did say that there's very little correlation between the two sports except for the positive groove felt when making the right turns either downhill on skis or through the twists of a bike trail.

The hiking, he said, offers less pressure.

"No one is depending on you, it's just you," he said.

Freidinger is one of a few area kids who race their bikes which, he said, has ended up as another attraction to the sport.

"When you do school sports, you stay with those friends," he said. "In this you're kind of alone, so it's been a nice way to make new friends."

The sport is no passing fancy to Freidinger. He said racing in college might be an interest if he improves his road racing skills. For now, it's the completion of this summer's circuits, plus the 26-mile Kalkaska to Traverse City Iceman Race and a 12-hour marathon race next month that occupies his goals.

"I like being outside, going fast and maybe being scared a little," he said.

Charlevoix Lions Club hosts annual golf benefit

A $5,000 "Putt for Bucks" event is a part of the Charlevoix Lions Golf Tournament at the Belvedere Golf Club July 16. Mr. Charlie, the club's mascot, takes a practice putt. Lion Bob Heath is monitoring the test activity.

On Thursday, July 16, the Charlevoix Lions Club is hosting its fourth annual golf tournament at the challenging Belvedere Golf Club. Immediately following will be the awards dinner at the Charlevoix Yacht Club. The event is one of the club's major fund-raisers for its charity beneficiaries. Many local businesses and professionals are supporting the tournament itself, or are sponsoring individual holes. Others, including several local golf courses, have donated prizes.

The tournament's four-player team scramble format, along with many individual on-course prize opportunities, appeals to both the avid golfer and the occasional player.

There is a $10,000 prize for any golfer who lands his or her tee shot in the 17th hole. The golfer with a hot putter can win $5,000 in a putting green event by sinking a 50-foot putt. Aces on each of three other designated holes can win substantial prizes, such as: a set of Tour Edge irons; a package visit for two at the Gurnee Golf and Tennis Resort in Florida; and a framed work of art by a well known artist.

The scramble team members with the best score win both trophies and cash prizes. Other awards include prizes for those whose tee shots land closest to the hole-in-one designated hole pins; a prize for nearest miss from a bunker; and a prize for a longest fairway drive. There will be drawings for the door prizes during the awards dinner.

Tournament check-in begins at 1 p.m. Thursday, July 16 at the Belvedere Golf Club on Marion Center Road with the shot-gun start at 2:30 p.m. Brats, chips and beverages will be available, starting at 1 p.m.

The $80 per-player fee includes green fees, cart, the "Putt-For-Bucks" putting green event, on-course refreshments and the awards dinner at the Charlevoix Yacht Club on Ferry Ave. The Lions will be serving their popular barbecued chicken at the dinner. Awards dinner tickets are $10 each.

Golfers who want more information or to reserve a place, can call golf chairman, Jeff Rizzo at 547-5117, or public relations director, Bern Cannan at 547-5512.

Rumor-mongering was theme for Horton Bay Parade

The rumors were flying through Horton Bay on the Fourth of July — in fact, the rumors spread a whole lot faster than the parade moved down the street. At one point, parade goers were sure the event had to be over when no floats were in sight after a 10 minute wait. But the die hards waited and waited. They knew it wasn't over until the fat lady sings. In fact, more floats did eventually make their way down the parade route, followed at the end by G.T. Long, who was in his traditional fat lady garb and was singing.

Clockwise, from upper left: It's only a scary rumor that the Petoskey News-Review was bought by the National Enquirer — we think. Rumors of a Horton Bay matchmaking web page proved to be a major letdown for rejected single people who couldn't find a match. They share their pain with people along the parade route. It turns out that Horton Bay itself is just one big rumor. There is no general store, no high society, or anything else Horton Bay is famous for. It looks like it's not a rumor, but a fact that Ferris Bueller enjoys his day off in Horton Bay.

Microchip clinic offered for pet owners

Nationally, millions of pets are lost or stolen each year. Tags fall off, a tattoo will fade with time and collars can be removed. A microchip is an affordable pet ID to ensure that a beloved pet returns home.

The Charlevoix County Humane Society is having a microchip clinic at Donto Kennels at 05133 Barnard Road in Charlevoix from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, July 11.

The cost is $25 per microchip, which is a permanent pet identification. It cannot be detected without a specialized scanner. This is a simple, painless, and safe procedure for animals.

People provide training, veterinary care and a lot of energy in caring for their pets. The heartbreak of a lost pet no longer needs to happen. All domestic animals are welcome. (Horses, dogs, cats, rabbits, pot bellied pigs, birds, ferrets, etc.)

Then there was the fire at the theater. It was on March 3, 1945. I remember it well, because I was going to turn 12 the next day. I would have to pay the adult rate, and it was with mixed emotions that I watched the flames and smoke from our dining room window, on top of the hill, overlooking the fire. The fire chief lived in the new city hall then, and was on duty 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The City of Charlevoix did not want the theater to be rebuilt, because they wanted to make a view of Round Lake. They had a rule that if any building on the east side of the street burned, it would be torn down. The wealthy Galster family from Petoskey, who owned the Petoskey Portland Cement Company as well as the theater, had more money than the city had. They said the building had burned less than 50%, and they were going to rebuild. The war was on, but that didn't make any difference. They were able to get materials anyway. They had Bill Wallace, the contractor who built it originally in the roaring twenties rebuild it. My husband, Dale, vividly recalls that he and his brother, Dean, rummaged through the dump truck, which had a lot of old piano rolls in it, some of them charred. They were thrown out with the trash. These had been used during the silent movies with a player piano. Dale's folks had an old player piano at home, which they had bought in Birmingham for $15. The boys were very excited to bring them home. Dale also remembers seeing his neighbor, Andrew Essenburg, Sr. working at the site. He was a car salesman, and there were no cars to sell at the time because of the war. He was doing finish work in the lobby of the theater in his Sunday best clothes. Dressed in white shirt, tie, nice white straw hat and shiny shoes, he was an unusual sight, to say the least. The theater continued at that site until 1996, when Bill Supernaw sold the building and built the new theater on Antrim Street.

The MinEva restaurant was another bad fire, within a year of the theater fire. It was located across the street from the Central Drug Store. Benny, the man who owned the building, was changing an LP gas tank, and it blew up. There was a man drinking coffee at the front counter, and it blew him right out into the street. My dad drove his big oil truck to the fire, and parked it with me sitting in it, on Clinton Street beside Central Drug. I was lucky enough to have a front row seat during the whole thing. The fire was so hot, it cracked the glass window in the front of the drug store. Dale recalls walking down the street on the west side and putting his coat up over his head to save off the intense heat. He remembers the old '27 Graham fire truck pumping water at full speed. My uncle Carlton Ikens was there, checking his watch constantly, and every 15 minutes he would give the old Graham full throttle, pumping water. The ease of oil which my dad had placed in the middle of the street kept the engine from burning up. They knew that it took that amount every 15 minutes to keep it running, and they couldn't shut it down, so he poured it in as it ran full throttle.

In the early 1950s, the Butters Sunset Lodge, which was the former R.E. Olds mansion, burned. It was located on the lake side at the end of Ainslie Street on Michigan Avenue. There was a high wind raging off Lake Michigan, fanning the fire. People three blocks away on Dixon Avenue were using their garden hoses to put out chunks of burning wood in their yards which were setting the leaves on fire. It was a terrible inferno. It burned to the ground.

As I recall some of the stories from the past, I again recall the many happenings that really made a little town on three lakes bustle. One of my classmates from high school returned to town a few years after graduation, and said to me, "I don't understand how you can stand to live in this little town. It must be very dull."

As he continues to live the big city life, he has no concept of the wonderful experience of living in this beautiful place, recalling the days gone by, and knowing in our heart that Charlevoix the beautiful has never been, and never will be, a "dull" place.

Fires have consumed many landmark spots in Charlevoix

By Marilyn Boss

Back in the 1940s, the sound of the fire whistle would make everyone who heard it drop what they were doing and listen to the number of whistles blowing. Each section of town had its own whistle signal — one, two, three or four. Charlie Marshall, the fire chief, would get in his truck, and amid sirens, take off to the fire, with firefighters following from various places around town. In a day when the only communications were transacted over the telephone, they did a great job.

I vividly recall some of the big fires we had. My dad was a fireman, and I will never forget the fear I had when he fought the fire at the Church of God on Hurlbut Street. It was right across the street from our house, and we watched as they fought the blaze. Dad went down in the basement, where the worst of the fire was, and I was so glad to see him come out again.

Then there was the fire at the theater. It was on March 3, 1945. I remember it well, because I was going to turn 12 the next day. I would have to pay the adult rate, and it was with mixed emotions that I watched the flames and smoke from our dining room window, on top of the hill, overlooking the fire. It appears that this fire occurred downtown many years ago, but we're not sure exactly which building was consumed by the blaze. Does anyone know where, or what year, this happened? Call the Courier at 547-6558 if you have any information. (Courier file photo)

Mrs. Butters loved the color yellow, and they had a little lamb named Buttercup, who traipsed around town on a little leash. The children would run up and pet him.

Community foundation helps local causes

Medical emergency equipment, land conservation, a new shelter for orphaned pets, a school-based mentoring program and more will receive some financial help from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. The local foundation and its Youth Advisory Committee recently announced grants totaling $103,550 to support a host of projects benefiting residents of the area.

The new awards bring the community foundation's grant-making total to $923,500 in its five-year history.

"With our assets now at nearly $6 million, we're able to do much more for the people and programs in our area," said Bill Lorne, president of the organization. "All of us who live and vacation in the Charlevoix County area are able to see the long-term impact this foundation can make."

Programs chosen for community foundation assistance and the amount of their grants are:

- Charlevoix Alano Club - $1,500 to produce and distribute a monthly newsletter.
- Charlevoix County Humane Society - $4,000 toward the construction of an animal shelter.
- Northwest Michigan Child & Family Services - $1,200 for the expansion of counseling services in Charlevoix County.
- Char-Em Housing Coalition -

$2,000 for a revolving security deposit loan program to help renters seeking affordable housing.

- Alzheimer's Association - $2,000 to establish and maintain a regional resource library at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

- Women's Resource Center - $5,000 toward the renovation of Safe House, the regional shelter for abused women.

From the Youth Fund, used to support programs that benefit children and families:

Wouldn't you rather be boating?

Buying a chance to win a new, 20-foot boat at $10 a ticket is an irresistible offer in the summer. The opportunity is even more worthwhile when you consider that all boat raffle money is going to help pay for Charlevoix's first laser light show during the Venetian Festival.

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce is raffling a Four Winns 200 Horizon boat with trailer, valued at $27,000, expressly to pay for the added expense of a laser show.

"A laser show is considerably more expensive than fireworks," said boat raffle chairman Dan Barron. "People who buy a raffle ticket are also supporting the new Venetian event."

Barron added that a portion of the extra expense will pay for a good sound system to be installed for the event, so that music can be choreographed with the laser show.

Take a chance on it

You could be boating in this Four Winns boat this August if you enter the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce boat raffle. The winning ticket will be drawn Saturday, July 25 during Venetian weekend.

Tickets can be purchased for $10 each or six for $50 at the chamber of commerce office on Bridge Street, where the boat is on display. Call 547-2101 for more information.

Honoring a century of family farming

By Laurie Lounsbury

William Parsons rubs a deeply tanned, rugged hand across his chin when he talks about the tornado that nearly destroyed his family farm.

"I was out planting beans when the storm came up," he says. "Hailstones the size of golf balls were pelting the horses and cattle."

After the hail came a devastating tornado that came dangerously close to destroying the farm house where William was born.

"It took the barn and scattered it all over this farm and the neighbor's farm," he recalls. "Took all the crops too. There wasn't a spear of grass left on that field."

The date was June 23, 1943, a day that Parsons, now 85, won't likely forget. The farm he'd bought from his father, George Parsons, was 50 years old — exactly half as old as it is today.

The George Parsons farm received its centennial status this year, honored by the Michigan Historical Commission as a farm continuously owned by the same family for 100 years.

Reflecting the typically stoic ways of the farming community, William said they were able to bounce back after the tornado.

"We gathered up the pieces of the barn and put it back together. The neighbors helped," William said. "Course we didn't do much farming that year. After we put the barn back together, we got busy and grew buckwheat."

According to William, buckwheat was the only crop they could grow in a short amount of time. It wasn't a popular crop with the consumers.

"If they didn't like buckwheat, they got a chance to like it again, whether they wanted to or not," William said with a chuckle.

Over 100 years, the Parsons family has done whatever was necessary to maintain a family farm.

During World War II, William stayed home and grew beans, potatoes and peas. His father had invested in a thrashing machine, and the two men found themselves thrashing beans for farmers from East Port to Charlevoix.

Although George Parsons wasn't wild about milking cows and the dairy business, they always had a

Superintendent search down to two candidates

By Jamie MacMillan

Impressed with one's financial skills and the other's general demeanor, the Charlevoix Board of Education has narrowed its search for a new superintendent to two candidates.

Chosen for a second interview were Roland Johnson and John Sturock. The pair were selected last week after the board conducted 90 minute interviews with six different candidates who were chosen from an original list of 49 prospects.

As with most audition-like scenarios, all six candidates impressed the board, making the final decision a tough one.

"I'd be comfortable, in varying degrees, to say that all of them could do the job," board president Allen Telgenhof said. "I think we did a good job picking six people who were top-notch people."

What then set apart Johnson, assistant superintendent of finance and support staff at West Ottawa (Holland) schools, and Sturock, superintendent of Concord Community schools, from the rest of the field?

Board member Michael MacMillan highlighted Johnson's "massive budget-building skills" as one determining factor.

In his current position, one that he has held for the last 14 years, Johnson has overseen a $50 million yearly budget without running a deficit ledger.

On top of that, he has been in charge of managing close to $110 million in incoming bond money over the 10 years.

John Sturock

His experience with millages caught the eye of another board member.

"He was on the ground floor of the whole process of getting new facilities and maintaining the older ones," Dennis Halverson said.

Due to three voter-approved bond initiatives, the West Ottawa district has, within the last 10 years, built three new elementary schools, a new middle school, refurbished all the other buildings, built a 750 seat auditorium, new athletic fields and added technology enhancements.

As for Sturock, he wowed the board with his cool, laid-back persona combined with the firm belief that everything a district does should revolve around its students.

"For the 21st century, schools must change from being organized around the work of adults to around the work of children," he said.

Board members said they felt Sturock's overall philosophy toward education, students and trust throughout the district warranted a second look.

"We were all in agreement that we wanted to hear more from this guy," Telgenhof said. "He's got a lot of ability that might not show up on a resume."

Halverson noted Sturock had an "air of confidence, professionalism and experience," that was appealing.

The pair will return to town next week for a day's worth of continuing interviews.

Sturock's interview was Tuesday, July 21 while Johnson's will follow on Wednesday, July 22.

Both interviews will be at 7 p.m. in the high school band room.

The meetings are open to the public.

In addition to the interviews, the board will meet with each candidate for an informal dinner at the Weatherlane at 5 p.m.

Both candidates have been in the education field for close to three decades.

Johnson earned a bachelor's degree in elementary education from Michigan State University in 1966 and earned a master's in education administration from Central Michigan University in 1967.

He taught fifth grade for one year apiece at Reed City and Pontiac before relocating to, of all places, Petoskey.

He taught sixth grade at that school from 1969-74 before becoming elementary school principal at Pellston schools.

He left Pellston in 1979 for the West Ottawa district.

There, he served as administrative assistant to the superintendent until 1981, when he was promoted to his current position.

He earned his doctoral degree in education administration from CMU in 1978.

Sturock, after earning a degree in secondary education from Eastern Michigan in 1971, embarked on a 12-year teaching career as an industrial arts instructor which spanned three high schools: Pinckney, Allen Park and Howell.

In 1983, he was hired for the assistant principal/athletic director job at Williamston schools. In 1986, he was promoted to high school principal.

In 1993, he left Williamston for his current job as superintendent of Concord Community schools.

Sturock earned his master's degree in education administration from Eastern Michigan University in 1976 and last year earned his doctorate in that field from Wayne State University.

Letters supporting landfill weren't sent by signers

By Jamie MacMillan

Since trash is its main business, is it any wonder that recent developments in Waste Management's push to expand its landfill has turned the debate into a sticky mess?

At the heart of the mess are two city residents who have received "thank-you" letters from the company for their support of the expansion request.

The problem is that Howard Neilson, of 103 W. Dixon, and Harper Camp, of 305 E. Dixon, not only didn't send any such letter, but are both opposed to further development of the landfill.

In the case of Neilson, the opposition is staunch.

"We're flirting with danger," he told county commissioners last week of expansion at the landfill. "I can't understand why anyone would approve of a landfill so close to the lake."

The thank-you letters are signed by both Don Pizzurro, facility general manager, and Jeff Poole, manager of business development.

Dated June 8, 1998, the letter thanks the recipient for supporting the expansion through a letter to the county board in September of 1997.

The letter states that they were among over 700 people who helped sway the board into lobbying the expansion question into the hands of county planners. It was a move which had company officials confident that their request would be approved.

However, planners denied the request in April, and the disputed thank-you note was to make their supporters aware that their wishes had been ignored.

"I have a pretty good idea that people signed this and didn't know what they were signing," Neilson said. "This is not a very true representation."

Pizzurro said he was "quite surprised" with last week's developments.

According to Pizzurro, customers were solicited to sign a letter of expansion support as they came to the facility to drop off trash. Also, company employees were asked to take the letter to neighbors and friends.

Some signed their support, while others did not. Pizzurro said all the letters with signed support were forwarded to the county board.

Pizzurro denied the rumor that employees were given incentives to sign people up, and said he could understand any false support claims had they done so.

"We didn't verify any names," he said. "It was something we did out of good faith."

As for the 700 supporters, that figure has already dwindled from an alleged 900 letters that commissioner Shirley Roloff said she had received from the company.

Roloff, though, said she may have already thrown out that list. "If the list disappears, then I guess we know the validity of it,"

"We're flirting with danger. I can't understand why anyone would approve of a landfill so close to the lake."
— Howard Neilson, WATCH founder and opponent of the landfill expansion.

request in part because a stream at the foot of the expansion design was deemed too close and in violation of zoning restrictions.

Landfills must be 2,000 feet away from any lakes or permanent flowing bodies of water. However, if the body is classified as only intermittent, the landfill can encroach to 500 feet.

This creek, which is south of the proposed expansion, is 520 feet away.

Over the objections of company officials who claim the creek, known as Sears Creek, is not permanent, planners classified it as such using the Michigan Resource Inventory System (MIRIS) which labeled it a constantly flowing body of water.

According to a letter from the United States Department of the Interior, which the company contacted to help clarify the situation, the stream is not permanent.

Using three different maps, of which two label the stream as intermittent, the department said "It is likely that the stream in question is intermittent."

"They believe there was a mistake on that map," Johnston said. "They depict it as intermittent and we'll go to the state with it."

None of the maps which the department of the interior used, though, were the MIRIS map which, according to the county's solid waste plan, is the designated resource tool to be used to distinguish bodies of water.

After receiving Waste Management's information, the DEQ will have 120 days to render a decision.

Thieves steal cash from Don's IGA

Sometime between 6 p.m. Sunday, July 11 and 8 a.m. Monday, July 12, Don's IGA was robbed.

According to city police chief Dennis Halverson, the burglars entered the store through an air conditioning unit on the building's roof. After entering the store, they used a reciprocal saw to open the safe. The thieves took an undisclosed amount of money.

"It was a clean job," Halverson said.

Rebecca Haney, co-owner of the store with her husband, Don, was shocked to discover the burglary.

"It's not 1955 anymore," Haney said. "And June and Ward Cleaver aren't living here anymore."

Although the Haney's had made a bank deposit for the day's receipts, they still had money in the safe.

"They took enough," Haney said.

The burglars ruined the safe, which will have to be replaced, and damaged the air conditioning unit and the roof.

The city police are asking anyone in the surrounding neighborhood to report any unusual cars parked in the neighborhood that evening. They believe the burglars drove to the IGA, rather than arriving on foot.

OPINIONS

Flivver-boobs and calamity howlers made great copy

I am getting a huge kick out of reading the old Courier articles heing compiled by Cynthia Postmus for our Scrapbook page.

It amazes me that the local issues today are exactly the same as they were 50 and 100 years ago.

Only the news coverage — particularly the writing style — has changed.

I'm amused at the numerous typographical errors that made it onto the page without benefit of computers and spell-check.

I've chuckled at the stilted use of grammar and the slanted, clearly opinionated writing style in news stories.

Journalists today are vigorously taught to keep their personal opinion out of their news stories. Objectivity is the consummate goal of a news story.

Even our columns today are no longer safe havens for strong opinions. Fear of libel suits keeps us reined in to a slow trot instead of a robust romp through the issues that confront us.

In this week's Scrapbook article, the writer of a 1922 story on traffic problems in Charlevoix called reckless drivers "flivver-boobs." Another story about poor weather and a possible slow tourist season called the worriers "calamity howlers."

What great words. What strong opinions.

The writing style in the old Charlevoix Courier makes me long for the good old days. I could do without the typo's, the awkward grammar and the linotype method of making a paper, but the delicious use of descriptive words leaves me drooling.

Apparently, I am not alone in this sentiment.

In a recent article in Editor &

Publisher Magazine, a speaker at the Organization of News Ombudsmen meeting was quoted expressing the same sentiment.

Van Gordon Sauter, former president of CBS news who reported for Knight Ridder newspapers and the Chicago Daily News before switching to broadcasting, had this to say about newspapers:

EDITORIAL

"The news media produces products that are exhaustingly safe and rarely, if ever, risk offense, take a risk or call a scalawag."

I bet Sauter would like the word "flivver-boob."

"In too many cases, pages are lifeless, writing is banal and columnists don't kick butt. There is an apparent abhorrence of flair," Sauter said.

Hip-Hip-Hooray.

I'm with you, Mr. Sauter.

Sauter cited a period in journalism — the same era as the Courier's "flivver-boob" writer — as a healthy period in American journalism, producing passionate editorial crusades and editors not afraid to take on the establishment. It was the era of the so-called yellow journalism in the late 19th and early 20th century. And it was a time when writers wrote forcefully and with authority.

I've been told that the Courier, a small town weekly paper, is not the place for forceful writing and strong opinions.

I beg to differ.

The Courier stories in days gone by prove that writing with flair and authority is what makes a story memorable. And it proves that small town papers didn't — and shouldn't — shy away from such writing.

I agree that the writer's opinion should be kept out of news stories, but that doesn't mean they can't use colorful descriptions and interesting words.

The late Mike Royko, of the Chicago Tribune, was the last writer and columnist I've seen who was unafraid to "call a scalawag a scalawag."

Royko was my hero. Sure, he offended people on occasion. But I think it's better to offend a few people while pleasing many, rather than offending no one and pleasing nobody.

While continuing my job here, I'll try to keep my predecessors in mind — the ones who wrote of flivver-boobs and calamity howlers.

Letters to the editor

Speaker shares Fourth of July sentiments

Editor:

Independence Day is a day of celebration for all Americans in the observance of the founding of this great nation by the signing of the Declaration of Independence, July 4, 1776. The founding fathers believed they were free men, who were not going to put up with the capricious rule of one man sitting on a throne two thousand miles away. Fifty-six men pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor. Signing the declaration was a treasonable act against King George III punishable by hanging.

This day has a special meaning for me, as my ancestor, Abraham Hudson, served one year as a private in the Continental Army in 1775, and as a sergeant in the army of the United States for five years, from 1776 to 1781. He was with General Washington's army in the battle of Trenton, New Jersey, where he captured two Hessian soldiers single-handedly. The Hessians were German mercenaries hired by the British to fight. The battle at Trenton in 1776 was Washington's first victory in the war for independence. After finally defeating the British, the founding fathers proceeded to write the most important governmental document in the history of man, the Constitution of the United States of America.

The founders were only too familiar with the antics, capriciousness and tyranny of kings, queens and princes and were determined that it would not happen here. Thus they created the great experiment in government, here in the "new world" right between the old world of Europe and the ancient world of Asia.

The founders envisioned that if the people would adhere to the constitution, this nation would rise from a fledgling experiment to become a great nation.

Here we stand today, citizens of the greatest nation ever seen on the face of the earth. Free men and women doing the things free people do when striving to reach new goals and build better lives for themselves and their families and sometimes, that freedom exacts a terrible price from us. Greatness is not in the size of the nation or its military might, though that can help. Greatness is in the people who make up that nation and provide a government of law, principle and conscience.

After every war to maintain our freedom or the freedom of other people, we have helped our former enemies to reestablish themselves in the family of nations. We have every reason, this day, to be proud of our heritage, and proud of ourselves in our accomplishments.

Hope you had a happy Fourth!

Exceptional Riders Program thanks supporters

Dear Editor:

The Exceptional Riders Program would like to express their deep appreciation to Gentry Peeveyhouse, Bill Price and Corky Price, formerly of Lake Charlevoix Farms, for their generosity and support of our horseback riding program for the handicapped over the past 14 years.

What began in 1984 as a small group dedicated to teach the sport of horsemanship to impaired citizens of Charlevoix and Emmet County has blossomed into a program that serves 24 riders per year with over 40 volunteers.

This spring the Exceptional Riders Program faced its biggest challenge. Lake Charlevoix Farms was sold and it became necessary for the program to find a new location.

Paula Pace-Jones of Pace Setter Farms of Charlevoix immediately invited our program to make her facility its new home for the fall of 1998. We are very fortunate to have such people in our community; someone who sees the value and

Lookout Cats to entertain in East Park

The lively melodies of jazz, R & B, and rock and roll will ring out of the Clarence Odmark Pavilion in East Park as the Lookout Cats take the stage at 8 p.m. Thursday, July 16.

The four-piece band is the sixth group to perform in the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau summer concert series.

The Lookout Cats formed three years ago with principal players from the northwest Michigan area, and have since become known as northern Michigan's hottest, most versatile group. The band often performs at the Grand Traverse Resort and at Shanty Creek, where they always charm audiences with a "taste of everything."

The Lookout Cats consist of Elizabeth Rivers on vocals, Charlie Tomlin on guitar and vocals, Denny Klein on drums and vocals, and David Chown on keyboards and vocals.

The next concert in the series will feature popular local performers, Randy, Rob and Mary D. Having performed at last year's concert series, these electrifying performers will once again treat audiences to the toe-tapping tunes of folk and pop music.

In the event of rain or inclement weather, the concerts will be canceled.

BEACONS

Beacons of Blessing
By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

One of the jobs of a minister is to deliver God's Word in a relevant fashion for today. You look for ways to take the timeless truths of the Bible and bring them to life in a fashion that helps us believe. A friend of mine e-mailed me a contemporary version of the story of Noah and the Ark that I can't resist sharing.

And the Lord God spoke to Noah and said, "In six months I'm going to make it rain until the whole earth is covered with water and all the evil people are destroyed. But I want you to save a few good people and two of every kind of living thing on the planet. I am commanding you to build an ark." In a flash of lightning, God delivered the specifications for the ark to Noah.

And it came to pass that God reappeared before Noah.

"Noah!" shouted the Lord, "Where is the ark?"

"Lord, please forgive me," begged Noah. "I did my best, but there were big problems. First, I had to get a building permit for the ark construction project and your plans didn't meet code. So I had to hire an engineer to redraw the plans. Then I got into a fight over whether or not the ark needed a sprinkler system. After that my neighbor objected, claiming I was violating zoning by building an ark in my front yard. So I had to get a variance from the city planning commission."

"Then I had problems getting enough wood for the ark. There was a ban on cutting trees to save the Spotted Owl. I had to convince the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service that I needed the wood to save the owls. But they wouldn't let me catch any owls, so no owls.

"The carpenters formed a union and went on strike. I had to negotiate a settlement through the National Labor Relations Board before anyone would pick up a saw or a hammer. We now have 16 carpenters on the boat and still no owls. I started gathering up animals and got sued by an animal rights group. They objected to me taking only two of each kind. Just when I got the suit dismissed, EPA notified me that I couldn't complete the ark without filing an environmental impact statement on your proposed flood. They didn't take kindly to the idea that they had no jurisdiction over the conduct of a Supreme Being. Then the Army Corps of Engineers wanted a map of the proposed new flood plain so I gave them a globe."

"Right now I'm still trying to resolve a complaint from the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission over how many Croats I'm supposed to hire. The IRS has seized all my assets claiming I'm trying to avoid paying taxes by leaving the country. And I just got a notice from the State of Michigan about owing some other kind of tax."

"I really don't think I can finish the ark for at least another five years," Noah wailed. At that the sky began to clear. The sun began to shine. A rainbow arched across the sky.

Noah looked up and smiled.

"You mean you're not going to destroy the earth?" he asked hopefully.

"No, my son," said the Lord sadly. "The government already has."

The book of Proverbs records that, "A merry heart doeth good, like a medicine." If that made you laugh, then I have done my job. Be encouraged. God is in charge and He knows how to see you through whatever you may be facing.

Assembly of God Church celebrates 50th anniversary

The Charlevoix Assembly of God congregation will celebrate its 50th anniversary with special events this weekend, July 18 and 19. A Homecoming Picnic will be at 4 p.m. on Saturday, July 18 on the church grounds. Services Sunday, July 19 will feature the national head of the Assemblies of God, General Superintendent Thomas E. Trask, in the morning service at 10:30 a.m., and the leader of the Assemblies of God in Michigan, District Superintendent Bill Leach, in the evening service at 6 p.m. Former pastors and church members from across the country will be returning to join the congregation for the events of this special weekend.

Reverend Trask is the chief executive officer of the church. As superintendent of the Assemblies of God, the largest Pentecostal denomination in the world, he gives oversight to the nearly 12,000 congregations in the United States with some two-and-one-half million members and adherents. Before being elected to national office Reverend Trask pastored several churches in Michigan and also served at various times as the Michigan District's Youth and Sunday School Director, Assistant Superintendent and Superintendent.

On Jan. 2, 1948, 19 people met with Pastor and Mrs. Reynolds Warner for the first services in the Pastor's home, which was then located on the corner of Bridge and Hurlbut streets. Rapid growth of the congregation necessitated the erection of a church building and the ground breaking was March 27, 1949. Just over a year later, on May 25, 1950, the first services were held in the new church on East Upright Street (the building, which now houses the East Upright Church of God congregation). Continued growth of the congregation in the ensuing years made it necessary to add an educational unit with fellowship hall in 1967.

With continued growth of the congregation it became necessary in 1976 to seek property for relocation. On June 9, 1976 the congregation voted to purchase the church's present property on M-66. On Sept. 11, 1977 ground was broken and construction began. First services were held at the M-66 location on April 16, 1978.

The Charlevoix Assembly of God continues to experience growth. Average Sunday morning service attendance in 1997 reached 229. The church has had a strong missionary vision over the years with a present list of 30 missionaries or missions organizations under its support.

According to Pastor Lowell Anderson, the distinctive ministries of the church to our community include dynamic contemporary praise and worship, a strong emphasis on the preaching and teaching of the Word of God and exciting ministry to children and youth. Associate Pastor, Joe Johnston leads the church's small group ministry (CARE Groups), gives direction to the outreach and evangelism ministries of the church and oversees the Youth Ministry, along with other regular pastoral duties.

Area churches sponsoring new religious comics

The Community Church of God in Charlevoix has joined with area churches to sponsor a special, free publication for young teens and preteens.

"Cardinal Adventure" #7 asks, "Should a person's value be determined by their outward appearance?"

A comic strip story and an article examine this question in the light of Bible passages like Psalms 139. Advice is given by contemporary Christians such as comedian Mark Lowry and Blaine Smith, author of "Overcoming Shyness."

"Cardinal Adventures" is a nondenominational publication, resembling the Sunday comics section of a newspaper. The comic strip is produced by a Gaylord cartoonist and is overseen by a group of area pastors.

Copies of the free comic are available locally at Central Drugs and Disciple Books, Charlevoix; IGA, East Jordan; Boyne Country Books, Boyne City; Boyne Mini-Mart, Boyne Falls and Promises & Praises, Petoskey.

Copies are also available for churches to use as a hand-out or for group discussion with junior high youth. For information, call author K. J. Kolka at (517) 732-4673.

Public hearing will determine Marion Center Road plan

By Laurie Lounshury

While everyone agrees that the traffic snarl at the intersection of Stover Road and M-66 needs to be improved, not everyone agrees with the city's proposed solution.

The solution, arrived upon by city staff and the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT), would reroute Marion Center Road from the point where it joins Stover Road, and swing it west to U.S. 31. The remaining portion of Stover Road from Marion Center Road that runs past the city cemetery to M-66 would be closed.

To work out all the details of the plan, the city recently invited Marion Center Road property owners who would be affected by the rerouting plan to an open meeting.

Property owner Shirley Roloff was one city resident who doesn't support the plan.

"I can't believe they can reroute all those people (coming north on Marion Center Road and headed for M-66) and make them go to the spotlight on U.S. 31," Roloff said.

Roloff is also concerned about the logistics for commercial businesses that currently have access from both U.S. 31 and Marion Center.

"How are those big delivery trucks going to turn around and get back on the highway?" Roloff asked.

Roloff said an alternate solution might be to make northbound traffic on Marion Center Road turn right only onto M-66.

City councilman Bob Timms favors a signal light at the intersection of M-66 and Stover Road, but MDOT engineers said the suggestion is not an option, according to a summary report by Mayor Josh Barnes, for the following reasons:

— A signal light on M-66, which is a two lane road, would cause traffic to back up behind anyone turning left;

— A left turn lane would be needed to accommodate the light;

— The state wouldn't fund a project without eliminating the problem of northbound Marion Center traffic. As it is, people northbound on Marion Center Road avoid the M-66 intersection by cutting through private properties between Marion Center Road and U.S. 31.

If the Marion Center rerouting plan is adopted, M-66 will be widened anyway to accommodate a center turn lane.

Another concern expressed by Roloff echoed the sentiments of other city residents. The concern is about the hefty price tag of the property the city proposes to buy, which is owned by the Joan Way Trust.

"It's mind-boggling what they're trying to do," Roloff said. "They're trying to buy property for double what it's worth."

The 1997 State Equalized Value (SEV) of the Way property was $85,700. The general rule to determine market value is to double the SEV. In this case, that would make the property worth $171,400.

The proposed purchase price is $330,000.

Properties sometimes are worth far more than their doubled SEV in Charlevoix, most particularly if it is undeveloped lakefront property.

The value of commercial properties is more likely to be determined by the rental income it can generate. The rental income for the small building on the Way property is not known.

A nearby property on U.S. 31 includes more than one acre of land and has a 9,000 square foot commercial building. It recently sold for $280,000.

The decision to proceed with the Marion Center Road plan and the acquisition of the Way property will be determined at the next city council meeting, when council will hold a public hearing. The meeting will be at 7 p.m. Monday, July 20.

Local farm receives Michigan historic designation

FARM

few cattle on hand.

With the arrival of electricity in 1938, cow-milking became more palatable to the senior Parsons.

"He always said, 'When electricity comes in, I'm getting a milking machine.' He got one a month after we got electricity," William said.

The arrival of electricity changed the face of farming in northern Michigan. Jobs previously done by hand could be done with machines.

"It changed the total life of the country," William said. "We used to can everything. Now we put it all in the freezer."

With electricity, and stricter government standards, farming became more specialized.

"We used to do everything. We raised turkey and chickens, made maple syrup. Every Saturday, we went to Charlevoix and sold eggs. We could take a can of cream to town and sell it. Government regulations did away with that," William said.

In 1977, William's son David hought the farm from his dad and continued the family farming tradition. Today, the primary crop is hay for horse customers. In the winter, David also does auto body work.

"Diversification isn't what different crops you grow on the farm anymore," David said. "It's what you do along with farming."

Of William Parsons' four children, David was the only one who chose to stay in farming.

"It's a tough way to make a living compared to other occupations," David said. "But I can't think of any other place I'd rather live or

"They like to say, 'Oh, the good old times.' I'll take the times now any day."

— William Parsons, talking about how hard farming was before electricity.

anything else I'd rather do, so I guess I'll stick it out."

Neither William or David can predict the future of the family farm when David is ready to hang up his pitch fork.

"I wonder about it myself," William said. "David's boy is really not too interested in farming. And if they're not interested in it, they'll never make a go of it."

As the senior farmer, William likes to reminisce about the old days, but wouldn't trade them for today. He doesn't miss having to go outside to the privy, nor does he miss going out to pump water for a cold drink.

"They like to say, 'Oh, the good old times.' I'll take the times now any day," William said.

Over the Fourth of July weekend, the Parsons hosted a family reunion, with 150 family members attending.

ATTENTION BUSINESSES:

Make sure the "Yellow Page" bills you receive in the mail are for the real thing.

'Yellow Pages' bills: They look real, but you don't have to pay

By JANE DUNSHIEF
News-Review staff writer

You've heard it before and you'll hear it again. But just in case you've forgotten - here's a refresher. Read the fine print.

At least two internet companies specializing in business listings are sending out solicitations to businesses that look like invoices and bear official-looking logos similar to the yellow pages walking fingers. It's not a bill, and you don't have to pay.

These are not from the local phone book company. One company, Yellow Pages, Inc., has offices in Orange and San Juan Capistrano, Calif., as well as Atlanta, Ga., and Houston, Mass. The other is Yellow True Pages with offices in Indiana, California and other states as well.

And the solicitations, in amounts of $191 and $175, are not for space on a printed yellow phone book page, but for an internet listing which the service already provides for free. According to representatives from each company, the fee is to make the listing more visually appealing by changing the type color and size, and moving the business higher on the list of similar service or product suppliers.

Ed McDonald answered the phone at the San Juan Capistrano, Calif., offices of Yellow Pages, Inc. "A directory like this is only good if it's complete - so every company in the country is listed in it right now," McDonald said.

McDonald estimated there are 17.5 million companies listed in the directory, available by state and type. Upgrading it to make the company stand out among what could be hundreds in any given category.

He said the company has received complaints about the appearance of the solicitation, because it does look like a bill. McDonald said the letter was designed that way to get approval from the post office.

According to the Better Business Bureau, Colton, Calif. office, this company has a satisfactory business record since its start date March of 1995. As of June 26, no complaints about service, advertising or soliciting practices had been filed.

The other company, Yellow True Pages, was represented by Mike Pfeiffer, also speaking from a California office.

He said the two most common questions he hears are "Aren't all you yellow pages the same company?" and "Is this a bill?"

"Of course, we are quick to point out to them that neither of these is the case," Pfeiffer said.

Part of the confusion stems from the service mark at the top left corner of the solicitations. The logos vary in minor details. One has the fingers walking over a keyboard, the other over a globe. Each is very similar to the logo associated with the successful "Let your fingers do the walking" yellow pages advertising campaign from years ago.

"People don't realize that is a service mark and anyone can use it," he said.

The Better Business Bureau of northeast Indiana has received complaints about this company, which had a start date of April, 1996. Since September of 1996, seven complaints were filed. Five have been closed and assumed satisfied, two were closed as unanswered.

According to the Better Business Bureau, five complaints are responded to as just as important as the number of complaints, and the volume of business should be taken into consideration.

Representatives from each web yellow pages company said their goals were not to dupe people, and have cheerfully refunded money sent to them by mistake.

LexaLite makes organizational changes

Jeffery H. Roski, president and CEO of LexaLite International Corporation announced two organizational changes that will position LexaLite for future growth.

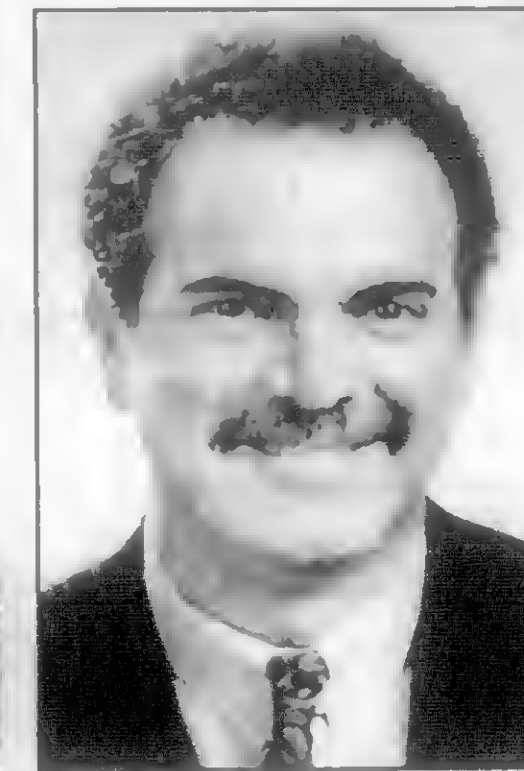

Roski announced that Dale A. Troppman has accepted the newly created position of Vice President of Operations.

"Dale is uniquely qualified to accept his new responsibilities," Roski said. "He has over 19 years' experience with LexaLite, and thoroughly understands our company." Troppman, who possesses a BS degree in engineering from Michigan Technological University, will have responsibility for all of the operational functions of the company including Manufacturing, Materials, and Tooling. All operations personnel within LexaLite will report to Troppman.

Replacing Troppman as LexaLite's Vice President of Sales and Marketing is Marc H. Wank, who comes to LexaLite from Schulze Manufacturing of Burlingame, Calif. At Schulze manufacturing, Wank held the position of Vice President of Sales and Marketing. Wank, who possesses a BS and an MBA from the University of Georgia, joins LexaLite with over 20 years of multi-functional industrial experience.

Dale A. Troppman

Marc H. Wank

"Marc brings a wealth of experience to LexaLite," Roski said. "His most recent position at Schulze focused on selling components to OEM companies in the Silicon Valley. This is a perfect parallel to LexaLite's mission of selling technical components to the lighting industry."

Wank and his family will be relocating from San Francisco to the Nashville, Tenn. area in the near future, where he will maintain his office in LexaLite's Dickson, Tenn. facility.

"These steps will further strengthen LexaLite's commitment to provide our markets with excellent service and support as we grow," Roski said.

The organizational changes became effective July 1, 1998.

New store offers religious books and materials

By Jamie MacMillan

The most striking observation made upon entering Disciple Books, a local Christian book store, is the volume of merchandise available.

In addition to all the best sellers, the store is equipped with jewelry, clothes, games and other novelty items devoted to spreading the word of the Lord.

"It's a wonderful way to witness and I've enjoyed talking with the people who come in," store owner Ginger Stevens said. "There isn't anything else like it in town, and I thought it was a real need."

Stevens' store opened its doors in early May and is located in the Airport Plaza on 1516 S. Bridge St. Disciple Books is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday. The shop is closed Sunday.

Stevens, a member of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church, said she was a late bloomer with her faith, but once discovered, she committed herself to learning as much as possible. She found her education by reading anything she could find on the topic of religion, and in time developed the idea of her own store.

"In my heart, I felt it was kind of a calling to bring this to other people," she said.

Her merchandise line includes games, children items, mugs and other Christian knickknacks.

Stevens noted that all children's items are marked down by 10 percent.

Clothing and jewelry, including numerous styles of "What Would Jesus Do," apparel are also available.

Of course the anchor of the store is its line of books — both fiction and non fiction — and music.

Stevens noted that the "Left Behind" series authored by Tim LaHaye and Jerry Jenkins, as well as the works of Frank Peretti, are some of the more popular books.

Musically, Petra, News Boys and Jaci Velasquez are hot on people's buy lists.

Stevens has a shelf devoted to different versions of the Bible plus an inch-thick catalog of other Bibles which, along with anything else, can be ordered via the store and available within two or three days.

"It's a nice service that a small store can offer," she said.

Stevens said within the next few months she would like to extend her line of cards and gifts as well as add a Catholic corner.

By appointment, Stevens said she'll host book parties and can be contacted at the store at 547-1714. As she gets her feet wet, she said she plans on holding special events at the store.

First on that list is the official Grand Opening to be held during regular business hours on Thursday, July 30 and Friday, July 31. Door prizes and in-store specials will be offered during that time.

Stevens has lived in Charlevoix since early childhood and she and her husband, Greg, have a teenage daughter, Vicki.

Camaraderie and competition: Two reasons to join the new traveling golf league

By Jamie MacMillan

Last week, on a hazy but cool afternoon, teams from Dunmaglas and A-Ga-Ming bested their opposition in local travel golf league play at the Dunmaglas Country Club.

After three weeks, though, the Charlevoix Country Club remains atop the Northwest Michigan Travel Golf League standings with a 2-1 record. Dunmaglas and A-Ga-Ming are 1-1 while Antrim Dells stands at 1-2 and will look to overtake the country club as the summer heats up.

More importantly, though, are the rave reviews coming from golfers after the initial events in what is billed as the area's only active traveling golf league.

A handful of the 48 golfers who entered last week's event rattled off different reasons, from meeting new people to the attraction of competition, that drove them to join the experimental league.

"It really has worked out terrific so far," said Ron Vraniecki, who plays for the Charlevoix Country Club.

Local golfing guru Dean Davenport, who helped spur the league's creation, said the concept began simply as a means to network with other golfers.

Most courses have their core membership who will hone their skills playing each other on their home course. This league, Davenport said, provides an avenue to both mingle with other area golfers and play different courses.

Added Vraniecki, who was playing the Dunmaglas course for the first time, "This gives us an opportunity to see what our neighbors have to offer."

Most of the golfers mentioned mingling with new golfers as a positive off-shoot to the league.

"I'm a new face in town, and meeting new people was very appealing to me," said Joel Epstein.

In its inaugural season, four teams, comprised of staff and members from the respective courses, are competing. Matches are held once a week through the end of August and will rotate between the four courses.

Each team may enter 12 golfers in an event. Six pairs are created to battle the pairs from opposing teams. Davenport said ideally the league would like to match opponents based on similar handicaps, but as of now can't always do that.

In all, 12 events are on the schedule, and Davenport said each event will offer different styles of golf competition from scramble, best ball, match play and the standard Ryder Cup format of competition.

When Dunmaglas bested the Country Club 5-1 last week and A-

Ga-Ming topped Antrim Dells 4.5-1.5, the format was a scramble, where teammates choose the better of two shots, with each playing from that spot.

Davenport said the league tinkered with the idea of establishing 25-man rosters and then each week have each team select 12 to play. The idea fizzled, he explained, because people's summer schedules are so hectic people liked the flexibility the league offered by not demanding set rosters.

As the league struggles with consistency, such as a more set schedule and handicap adjustments, the players appear unaware and have embraced the new-found competition.

The area has its share of open charity events and each club also has events for its members, yet the traveling league concept had no problem attracting participants.

"This is team golf, like the Ryder Cup," said Gayle Sheldon.

Most striking about the league is the span of ages it has involved, from high school teenagers to retirees.

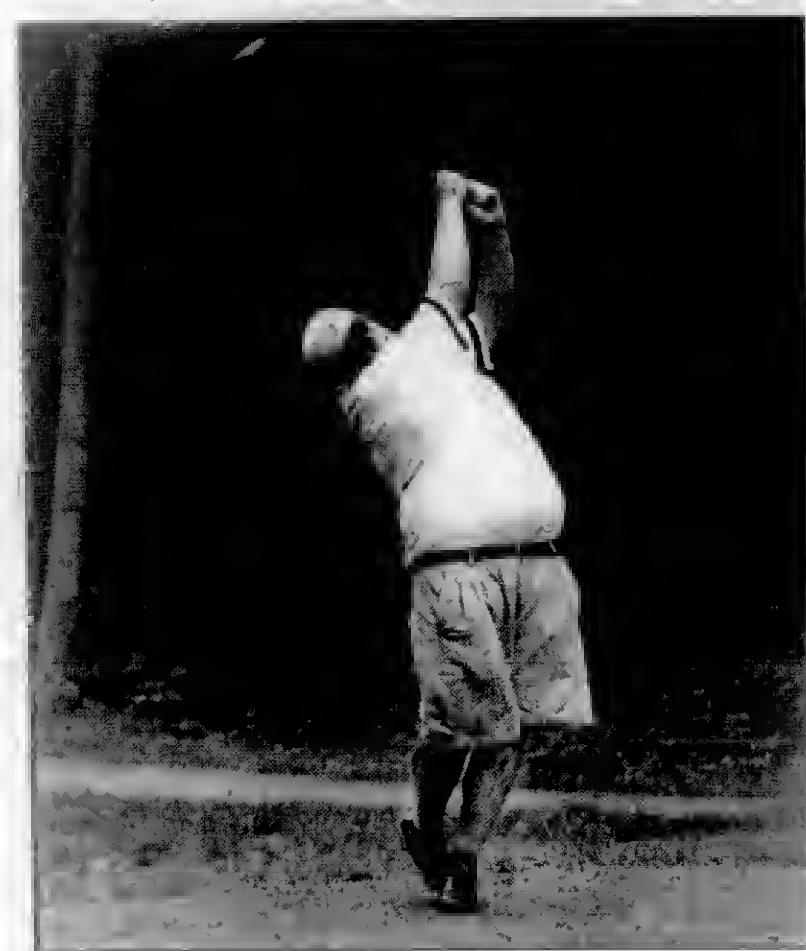

For Jonathan Sell, a Charlevoix High School junior, playing in this league was natural because he said he likes golf and competition. A member of the Rayder golf team, he expects this summer league to keep him sharp for this fall's high school season.

Another local youngster said it's all about experience.

"I'm playing better courses with better golfers," Chad DeKorte said. "It's been lots of fun."

While much is left undetermined, such as which club will sit atop the standings at the end of next month, Davenport is already planning to expand next year by recruiting more teams.

"We're all making good friends and having fun out here," he said.

Clockwise from top: Mike Martin, with CCC teammate Dean Davenport watching, drives his tee shot down the fourth fairway. Roscoe Serrels, playing for Dunmaglas, watches his par putt go in on the second hole. Jonathan Sell keeps his competitive drive sharp for the high school season by playing for the Dunmaglas team. ## Former foes face off again in county election

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, July 15, 1998 - PAGE 17

Joan Blanchard

By Jamie MacMillan

The battle for the Republican nomination for the District No. 5 seat on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners will pit the same rivals from the 1996 campaign.

The fifth district includes Charlevoix, Norwood, Marion and Eveline townships.

Incumbent Joan Blanchard will once again battle Don Smith in the Aug. 4 Republican primary, but unlike 1996, the pair are wearing different hats.

That year the incumbent was Smith, a 14-year veteran of the board. He was bested by challenger Blanchard, the county's former equalization director.

Smith said his basic intentions for reentering the political field were to give people a choice on election day.

"It's healthy to have races and good for the democratic process to give people choices," he said.

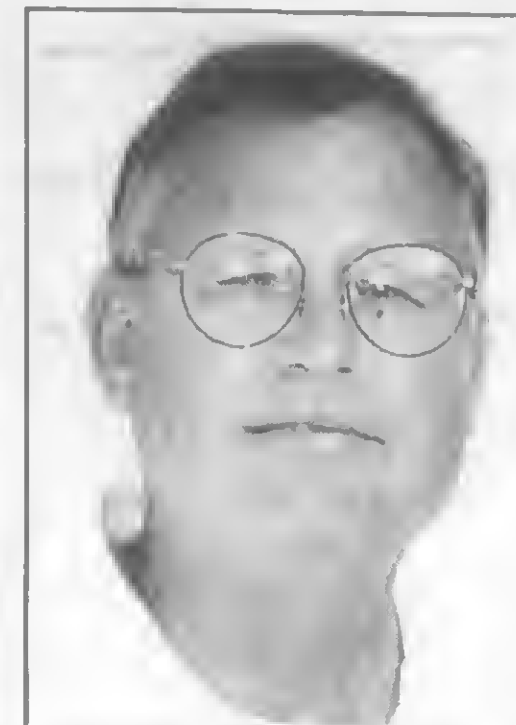

Smith, who teaches U.S. history and economics at Petoskey High School, said that closing or at least limiting the scope of the Cedar Ridge landfill would be his top priority.

Blanchard also is an opponent of the landfill's expansion, but Smith said the current board lacked a true voice against the landfill and that the board didn't have enough debate on the topic before forcing the county planners to decide the issue.

"My goal is to prevent the landfill from becoming a permanent regional facility," he said.

County planners did turn down the expansion request, but Waste Management is planning to file an appeal to the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality.

Smith said should the expansion be allowed, he would lobby for surcharges on tipping fees for all incoming waste to set up an emergency clean-up fund in the event of an accident. Should no accident occur, he said, the money could be directed to Eveline Township (the landfill's home township) for recreational projects.

He also would like to pay for an enforcement officer at the landfill out of county funds.

Blanchard also is opposed to the landfill and was one of two board members who voted 'no' on last fall's measure to circumvent the county's solid waste plan and allow the landfill to apply for expansion.

Blanchard doubted hiring an officer would work because Waste Management is a private company and could not be forced to submit to an enforcement officer.

She does favor stronger rules of operation and stricter enforcement, but more studying on the topic needs to be done before settling on an outcome.

Another environmental concern for Blanchard is to keep an eye on Big Rock to ensure that their de-commissioning process remains safe and problem-free.

Smith favors a slight reduction in the county's millage rate, but Blanchard was hesitant to endorse a decrease for the next fiscal year.

She said the county may use up to two-thirds of its $6 million surplus to fund the jail expansion and needs to maintain the current millage rate to ensure that money remains in the county's coffers.

She did say she was against any millage increases.

Roads were another topic on both candidates' minds, but with different ideas topping their list.

Smith would like to find a way to fund a project to completely rework the Charlevoix-Boyne City road to bring it up to the quality of the M-66 stretch that connects Charlevoix and East Jordan.

Blanchard's highest concern was the danger and congestion of traffic that has accompanied recent growth spurts of the area. She said she would work to help police forces monitor travel better and is open to any ideas that make for safer traffic.

As for her current two-year term on the board, Blanchard said it took some time to get her feet wet, but she is ready to take the county into the next century. She feels her strengths are her financial background and her working knowledge of all the county departments. She attributes that to her three decades at the helm of the county's equalization department.

"My goal is to help maintain the quality of life we all have in Charlevoix County," she said.

Volunteers needed for dance marathon

Feel like partying the day away? Feel like striking a blow against cancer? Now you can do both in the same night!

Marathon dance teams, artists and crafters, corporate sponsors and all-around helpers are needed for the "Rockin' for Research" 12-hour dance-athon fund raiser for all of Charlevoix County, from noon to midnight, Saturday, Aug. 22 at the East Jordan High School in downtown East Jordan. All proceeds will go toward cancer research through the Great Lakes Division of the American Cancer Society.

Dance teams, backed by donations from local corporate and other sponsors, must use a "tag team" approach to keep at least one couple dancing to a variety of music by popular disc jockey "Radical Joe" for all 12 hours. Local companies and civic groups are urged to assemble their own dance teams or sponsor others willing to assemble a team. The minimum sponsorship is $100 per team member. Some company teams are already challenging other companies to match their commitment, if not their dance-floor stamina.

Punctuating the tag-team dance marathon will be hourly auctions and raffle drawings, and arts and crafts fair, celebrity spokespersons, personal care information booths, karaoke contests, and food booths for snacks and beverages. Local businesses are urged to donate a product or service for the auctions and drawings. Artists and crafters and food booth operators interested in setting up a sales booth are asked for a $25 booth space donation and to add a little to their prices for an additional contribution.

Volunteers are also needed for just plain "behind the scenes" help and to assist in soliciting corporate donations and sponsorships.

For more information, call Kim Hejka at 536-0084 or Nikki Skrocki at 536-3181.

SCRAPBOOK

Traffic has always been a problem

The following articles were compiled by Cynthia Postmus, with co-operation from the Charlevoix Public Library. We are reprinting stories from old Charlevoix Couriers in their entirety, complete with typographical errors and unusual grammar usage.

STOP IT BEFORE IT HAPPENS Serious Auto Accidents Are Bound To Happen

The Wild Delivery Boy and His Wild Light Delivery Truck are Proving a Menace
(Charlevoix Courier, July 12, 1922)

Charlevoix is making little progress in the solution of its traffic problems, we say problems, for we have many of them, which daily are becoming more serious, and which if not handled with dispatch, will assume proportions that are a menace to the city and its inhabitants.

Hardly a day passes when several narrow escapes from collision are reported. Bridge street is usually crowded with traffic with little or no regulation. Drivers that surely observe traffic regulations in other cities, upon their arrival here, assume the attitude that we are a "hick" town, the police department is a joke, and they drive about as they please. And we have become convinced, from personal observations, that there is more truth than fiction in this conclusion.

The handling of tourists and local touring cars could be made an easy matter, but what about the "flivver-boob"? By this word we refer to the wild delivery boy in his equally wild light delivery truck. Endowed with the recklessness of youth in the first place, and with a light car that is early managed in the second place, these boys and young men are literal sore spots in the city. One cannot expect the city to be thoroughly policed insofar as this reckless element is concerned. If we had a dozen traffic policemen they would not be found on side streets or streets where there are the greatest number of homes and children. And it is in these sections of the city that the "flivver-boob" greatly thrives. Here he actually menaces the life and limb of mothers and children. He swings corners at 20 and 25 miles an hour. He swerves and he darts with expert control of his car. He is in a hurry because he is anxious to "clean up" his deliveries, he is inconsiderate and thoughtless and foolhardy. He is everything that youth is, plus a sturdy little motor of many horses. That he doesn't kill and maim more frequently is because he has the populace bluffed — the populace in this instance being principally women and children. But he is wild, wild, and soon there will be a real accident and then a big holler.

Let's stop it before it happens. Let's watch the streets off the beat-track and hold the shop keepers responsible.

FOURTH MARKS REAL OPENING

Summer Season Now Begins In Earnest
Hotel Registers Show Normal Bookings and Weather Conditions are O.K.

Edward Heise was the first person to identify last week's Scrapbook photo. He told us the fire was at the Charlevoix Hotel, owned by the Windors, on Bridge Street. It burned down June 6, 1935. The hotel was on the east side of the street, across from the old Mont's Restaurant, occupying space that is now East Park.

(Charlevoix Courier, July 6, 1923)

Calamity howlers, who have been predicting a poor resort season for this region, on account of the late arrival of warm weather, have failed to take into account the fact that July 4th really marks the beginning of the summer's activities.

Our warm weather has already arrived and with it the usual quota of summer visitors, averaging fully as many as at this time in previous years.

At the Beach Hotel, about one hundred guests have signed the register and booking for accommodations are practically solid—every room having been engaged for some period of the summer season. This well-known hostelry, which employs from seventy-five to one hundred fifty people, during the height of its season has been extensively improved in various departments and was never in better condition to afford first class service to its patrons.

The Inn opened on Sunday, July 1st, with twenty-five guests. A considerable number of regular patrons are expected today and in addition to these, officials of the Addressograph Company, of Chicago, are holding their annual convention at the hotel from the 5th to the 7th, inclusive.

Lee's celebrated colored dance orchestra, of Washington, D.C., has been engaged to furnish music for the dancing and concerts.

At the opening of the Belvedere, on June 25th, a goodly number of guests were registered and the Fourth of July supper was enjoyed by the guests of the hotel, as well as the cottagers of the summer colony. All of the cottages belonging to the Charlevoix Summer Home Association are occupied, or will be within the next few days. The casino will open for its first night with the American Legion dance, on Friday evening, with Frank Winegar's famous orchestra furnishing the music.

City buys land to reroute Marion Center

By Jamie MacMillan

A divided city council approved a resolution to exercise its purchase option for nearly two acres of property between Stover Road and U.S. 31 Monday.

In May, council purchased a 90-day option on the land for $5,000.

The land will be used to re-route Marion Center Road to U.S. 31, away from its current M-66 intersection. It is expected to cost $330,000.

The council was as divided as possible on this issue, with three members supporting the purchase and three others opposed. A.J. Witthoef, Alvin "Butch" Russell and Don Meggison voted in favor of the resolution while Gabe Campbell, Bernie DeVries and Robert Timms were opposed.

The resolution passed after Mayor Josh Barnes cast a tie-breaking vote to buy the land.

According to city attorney Jim Young, Barnes may cast a tie-breaking vote on resolutions, but not on pending ordinances. When council prepares its 1999 budget to include expenses for the project, an ordinance will be required. With Barnes unable to vote in that situation, current voting lines would stall the project.

Traffic congestion at this intersection is expected to be reduced with the pending reconstruction of the Marion Center Road-U.S. 31 intersection. (Photo by Laurie Lounsbury)

Concerns about the overall price of the project and the ability to resell newly acquired land is driving the opposition.

Cost projections have the project running close to $775,000. The city will share expenses with the Michigan Department of Transportation. MDOT's share will cover $340,000 while the city is expected to pay $435,000.

Most of the city's costs will be the $330,000 price tag on the land. City officials, though, expect to recoup more than $500,000 on the sale of land that is left over once the rerouting is complete.

Campbell doubts those rosy projections. "If you think you can get that much for a one acre, thin strip of land, then I got more property for you," he quipped.

While everyone agrees that traffic problems at the Marion Center and M-66 intersection need to be corrected, differing viewpoints on how to do that remains.

Council members opposed to the project said that prohibiting both left-hand turns and straight-through traffic on that intersection will solve most of the problems. They agree with including turning lanes on both U.S. 31 and M-66, but they consider that sufficient to solve traffic concerns there.

Timms questioned the move saying it was simply moving traffic from one busy, dangerous intersection to another one.

"I really question why we would want to route all the traffic on Marion Center Road onto a federal highway," he said. "Do we really want to force people into using the highway?"

The new Marion Center Road would cut across, just south of Budy's Sound Advice and intersect at a new stop light directly across from a new airport entrance. The current Stover Road would be abandoned and the remaining portion of Marion Center Road that

One candidate remains for superintendent

Second candidate withdraws from district race

By Jamie MacMillan

Narrowing the field of candidates for a new superintendent of schools in Charlevoix became easier last week with the announcement that Roland "Ray" Johnson, one of two finalists for the job, withdrew his name from contention.

Johnson, assistant superintendent of finance and support staff for West Ottawa (Holland) schools, said his decision was based on an emotional attachment to a district he has served for close to two decades.

"I'm really committed to this district, the people and the board have been good to me," he explained. "After 20 years, you do have a lot of roots." Johnson, who attended Petoskey High School for a spell and taught middle school for the district in the early 1970s, said he wasn't marketing himself for a new job.

He said only two or three positions in northern Michigan would ever interest him, and when Charlevoix posted its opening he was the first to apply.

The geography, as well as the challenge of building new facilities, attracted him to the job. After going over pros and cons with his wife, however, he decided a change was not what he wanted. "I didn't want to string them along," he said of the Charlevoix district. "I wish them all the luck. It's a real good system."

According to Charlevoix Board of Education president Allen Telgenhof, the withdrawal will not alter the board's direction.

John Sturock

Ray Johnson

Telgenhof said the board will go forward with the remaining candidate, John Sturock, superintendent of Concord Community Schools.

Sturock was in town last week for a second interview and the board will conduct a home visit sometime next week before deciding to offer Sturock a contract.

By all background accounts, though, Sturock is just as popular in his current district as Johnson is in his.

If dcja-vu strikes and Sturock has a change of heart, then what?

Should that happen, Telgenhof said there is board support for either tapping from the four finalists who did not make the second cut or to start the process all over again.

For now, it is not a concern.

"Realistically, this makes it easier for us because it's not as complicated," he said.

Police favor new intersection

runs parallel to the cemetery would be closed.

The new intersection would be along a stretch of U.S. 31, which law enforcement officials consider one of the more dangerous stretches of pavement in the winter. A lack of wind protection from Lake Michigan creates snow drifts and consistent visibility problems.

City police chief Dennis Halverson, who favors the rerouting project, said steps such as snow fences and tree plantings could help protect the area. He also said the eight foot turn lane, which will continue beyond the new intersection for another 250 feet, would also make new congestion in that area safer.

The vote came after a public hearing on the matter. Close to 50 people jammed council chambers and, like the council, appeared split on the issue.

Resident Jerry Rakoczy said trying to cross the M-66 and Marion Center intersection is like "playing chicken," and if the new route saves only one life over the years, then it will be worth it.

Business owners such as Mike Manual of Mike's Glass feared that taking away Stover Road would make it more difficult for customers to access their facilities.

Other proprietors from the area, such as John Dobulis of John's Auto Sales, said the project would be a benefit because it would wipe out an alley short cut that drivers are recklessly using to avoid the current stop light at U.S. 31 and M-66.

Venetian Fest opens Thursday

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce is pleased to announce the schedule for the 1998 Venetian Festival to be held in Charlevoix Thursday-Sunday, July 23-26.

The 1998 Venetian Festival is a continuation of an event that has become one of Charlevoix's most popular homecoming traditions, and one of the longest running festivals in Michigan. The first festival was held in 1931.

The three-day festival begins with a carnival on Thursday night and continues throughout the weekend with a drum and bugle corps competition, the Drenth Memorial Foot Race, a street parade, craft show, on-going musical entertainment, a lighted boat parade and culminates with a laser light show Saturday evening.

The drum and bugle corps championship will be held Friday evening at Kipke Field, where the 1998 Venetian Festival Queen will be crowned. The Championship includes an international contingent from Canada and corps from as far away as Seattle, Wash. The Drenth Memorial Foot Race and a parade down Bridge Street will begin Saturday's events with music, crafts, and food booths set up throughout the day in the park.

In keeping with tradition, the Grand Electrical Boat parade on

"In keeping with tradition, the Grand Electrical Boat parade on Round Lake will precede the laser light show — the highlight of Saturday evening's festivities."

— John Taylor, Venetian Festival chairman

Round Lake will precede the laser light show — the highlight of Saturday evening's festivities. If you want a front row view of the laser light show, be sure to be in the parade and have your boat decorated.

If you choose to be a spectator to view the boats and to experience the festival's first-time laser light show, the best seats in the house will be in Charlevoix' East Park. The laser show will take place in Round Lake and includes animated graphics projected by Lasers onto a huge water screen, all choreographed to music.

In the event that you have recently been near the Chamber office, you may have noticed a 20-foot-Four Winns 200 Horizon boat with trailer, valued at $27,000 on display. The Chamber board is sponsoring a raffle of the boat to meet the added expense of the laser light show. Tickets are $10 each or 6 for $50 and can be purchased at the chamber office or in the park during the festival. (You need not be present to win).

An additional event on Sunday is St. Mary's 3-on-3 basketball tournament in downtown Charlevoix overlooking Round Lake.

So, batten down the hatches, reef in the sails, and prepare for what will be one of Charlevoix's most memorable Venetian Festivals.

Musical ministry visits

The First Baptist Church will be hosting a special event, the Robin and Sharon Musical Ministry at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, July 26 during their morning worship service.

Serving in numerous denominations throughout North America, Robin and Sharon use music as a tool to both praise and proclaim the name of Christ.

and have been doing so since 1978. They offer a variety of musical styles, including contemporary, inspirational and original music — all of which is enhanced by their classical training.

The First Baptist Church is located on M-66, across from Kmart. For more information, call 547-4121.

—What people are saying—

"You will be in the real estate business for a short period of time. Get a hold of Wendy's and it will sell," city resident Dale Boss, on the prospects of selling leftover property after rerouting Marion Center Road.

"If everybody bought a car, then I'd say come on in, but they drive by so fast that they can't see my prices," John Dobulis, of John's Auto Sales, speaking about the alley shortcut that many drivers take to avoid the U.S. 31-M-66 intersection.

"I'd have to admit, you really can't hear back here," former council member Bruce Reid, making light of the acoustics in the back of city council chambers.

Portside Arts Fair Aug. 1

Race for area House seat heads toward home stretch

By Jamie MacMillan

As the summer turns up its heat, so too are the hopefuls in next month's primary election for the 106th District State House of Representative seat.

With less than two weeks to go before election, a docile media campaign should intensify as most candidates, in an effort to save resources, have held off radio, television and newspaper ads touting their candidacy until the eve of the election.

Running for the Republican nomination are Phillip Ludlow, Bill Filber and Friday Brenner, all from Alpena, as well as Indian River's Betsy DeYoung and Wolverine's Jeff Schwalm. For the Democrats, Cheboygan's Lance Enderle will compete with a trio from Alpena; Bob Fournier, Marie Twite and Andy Newman.

Spending between $2,000-$20,000 of their own money, most candidates said that the expense of running constant media campaigns — a basic television ad package could cost as high as $3,000 — is simply too high.

Just because mass media ads have been absent, it doesn't mean the candidates have not found alternative media outlets to promote their message.

Fournier has acquired a toll-free hot line while Ludlow has created an Internet web site to promote their respective causes.

"It's become such a part of our daily life," Ludlow said of the Internet. "We're about to publish our second newsletter on the site so people can go on-line and learn more about me."

Those gimmicks aside, the summer campaign trail has been more personal.

"It's been more of an old-school, grass roots campaign," Enderle said. "In the spirit of Andrew Jackson and Harry Truman it will be the people, not the party, who determines the winner."

To that end, the prospects have spent much of the campaign going door-to-door speaking with constituents in towns through the four-county district.

The 106th district includes Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Alpena and Presque Isle counties.

"The only way to get to people is at their doorstep," Enderle noted.

Term limits, which prohibit current representative Bev Bodem from remaining in office, have not only created a log jam of candidates, but a more willing electorate, Fournier said.

Comparing this election to the 1996 and 1994 elections which he also participated in, Fournier said people appear more passionate about certain issues such as growth and its effect on the environment than before.

"It's an indication that there's more involvement," he said. "I like that, it makes it more fun."

Republican candidate Jeff Schwalm expects a higher voter turnout due to term limits and the volume of candidates.

"The public feels a little more energized than I had expected," he said.

Another off-shoot of the election is that candidates have been barraged with mail solicitations from various hospital, library, insurance and other special interest groups. For the most part the groups want candidates to fill out extensive issue-related surveys so they can get a feel for the prospects.

Schwalm said he receives about 10 of those correspondences a week while Twite said when she's not out campaigning she spends most of the time responding to their inquiries.

"The lobbyists are pursuing harder because they know the people in office will be changing," she said.

Of course, with nine candidates vying for their party's nomination

John Ozoga, environmental engineer for the DEQ, remarked in his

As the company readies its material for its expansion appeal to the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ), Waste Management has, on two different occasions, been informed by that department how it could improve its Cedar Ridge facility.

In an inspection last month, the DEQ found, with one exception, that the facility was both well-run and well-maintained.

The worry that the environmental department had was storm water run-off from the southern side slope of the landfill.

The DEQ's stance is that the company needs to install additional culverts to better manage run-off

It isn't time to revisit Venetian tragedy

Since we're about to embark upon another Venetian Festival, I thought I should do a story on last year's tragic explosion and how people are coping one year later.

I thought about calling the victims to see how they're doing, and if they'll attend the laser show this year — but I just couldn't bring myself to do it. I don't want to intrude on the families while they're trying to cope with the one year anniversary of death and dismemberment.

I thought about talking to the police force, the emergency medical technicians and the firefighters who worked through that fateful night one year ago — but I realized I don't really want to talk about it.

Like many people, I want last year's tragedy to be behind me. I want to see that the victims are taken care of, then I want to be done with the whole issue. I want to go back to the merry, care-free Venetian Festivals I've enjoyed for four decades.

I want to giggle at the sight of Mike Eickhoff dressed in drag on a parade float, and ride the Ferris Wheel to the top and look out at the glorious sight of Round Lake packed with sleek yachts.

I want to stand on the corner of Clinton and Bridge streets and remember past parades when Dick Edwards and Shirley Gibson dressed up as Bonnie and Clyde and robbed the Central Drug Store with toy Tommy guns.

I want to be an ostrich and stick my head in the sand until the ugliness goes away.

But it will not go away.

Each legal file is now as thick as Texas toast, and many more trees will give their lives to those legal folders before it is over.

Not this week, or this month, or even this year. For the victims, it will never go away. With time, it will become bearable, but it will always be there.

A visit to the county courthouse made it alarmingly clear that this issue will be with us for a long, long time.

Each legal file is now as thick as Texas toast, and many more trees will give their lives to those legal folders before it is over.

Added to each lawsuit file in recent weeks were the defendant's answers to the plaintiff's allegations.

Richard Davis, the fireworks operator, says it isn't his fault.

Davis says it's the fault of non-parties (companies not named in the lawsuits), which include

Wolverine Fireworks Display, Star Specialty Design and Fireworks, United Pyrotechnics, Inc., and Hunan Provincial Fireworks and Firecrackers, Import/Export Corp. of Hunan, China.

Those are the companies that manufactured and sold the fireworks to Davis. In Davis' answer, his lawyer wrote, "Wolverine Fireworks Display designed, manufactured and/or sold and held itself out to the public and to Fireworks North as an expert in the use and explosion of pyrotechnic devices."

The same was said of the other nonparty companies named by Davis.

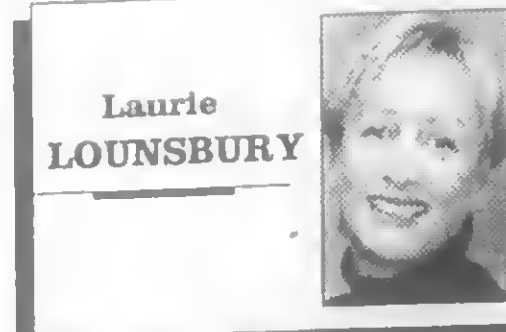

"The importers are wholly or partly at fault... for inadequate warnings and lack of warnings," was the conclusion.

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce — which includes the Venetian Festival Committee — says it's not their fault.

They say it's Davis' fault, and also the fault of the fireworks manufacturers.

The chamber's lawyer, T.J. Phillips of the Traverse City law firm Running, Wise, Wilson, Ford and Phillips, has filed a counter claim. In it, he stated the following:

"The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce specifically denies they are negligent or in any way liable to the plaintiffs in this case."

"But, in the unlikely event they are found to be liable, then cross defendants Richard Davis, Fireworks North, Second Chance Body Armor, Michael Jaye, Glen Crawford and Lawrence Grise are liable in indemnity to the extent that liability is found..."

If you wring all the legal mumbo-jumbo out of that, it comes to this:

Blame is a hot potato and it's being lobbed through the court system by lawyers with really good pitching arms.

When will it end?

One year ago, 15 people and their families were victims of a terrible fireworks explosion that sent metal shrapnel into an unsuspecting crowd of spectators. Their suffering isn't over.

Now those families are victims of the legal system.

No one will admit blame.

No one will go down without a fight.

Insurance companies will not pay without a judgment.

For the attorneys, this is undoubtedly a juicy, high profile case.

For both the plaintiffs and defendants, this is a struggle for their life, for their income, and for their dignity.

For the rest of us watching the court case from the sidelines, this is one tragedy heaped upon another.

In the Chamber of Commerce counterclaim, their attorney used a phrase that no doubt dates back to a time and place when there wasn't a separation of church and state.

"The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and Venetian Festival Committee pray for a judgment in indemnity as against cross defendants Richard Davis, Fireworks North (et al)," he said.

I wonder if that lawyer and all those people are really praying for a judgment in indemnity.

If so, are they also praying for the Dobrowolskis, the Yagers, the Sokolowskis, the Craducks and Francis Ladi?

They — and we — should all be praying for a swift and just end to this court case.

Cake business blooms in home of creative couple

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, July 22, 1998 - PAGE 5

EDITH GILEBERT

The sign on the mailbox on the Boyne City Road says, "Sweet Creations." I take it that "Sweet" stands for the butter cream icing used to decorate the sumptuous cakes that Jeannie Babbitt bakes in her professional kitchen, and "Creations" stands for the landscaped grounds created by her husband, David. As a matter of fact, this lovely property was on a garden tour last year, sponsored by the Petoskey Historical Society.

The Babbitts are quite an unusual team. Eight years ago, they bought 50 wooded acres through which Horton Creek flows like a string of pearls.

"Landscape gardening is David's addiction," according to Jeannie. The terraced flower gardens are dotted with fruit trees. They now have two ponds, one of which is stocked with trout and bass, to be caught and released. Closer to their picturesque Town and Country log cabin is a rock-lined lily pond, with a short path that leads to the outdoor swimming pool. Here the Babbitt's two youngest sons invite their Boyne City High School friends to swim. Another gentle path leads to an orchard-filled greenhouse, located beside a butterfly house.

The Babbitts built a licensed kitchen on the lower level of their home where Jeannie is able to teach the fine art of baking and decorating her chocolate granache specialties. This includes fashioning intricate basket-weave designs, draping and tying elaborate bows out of a sweet dough called fondant. She has even copied Martha Stewart's grape designs to perfection for some of her discriminating clients. She has credentials from several schools, including the Wilton School of Cake Decorating in Chicago. She is currently the State Representative of ICES (International Cake Exploration Society) that boasts 4,000 members. This organization was founded 25 years ago in Michigan, and in the year 2000 will hold a four day convention at the Weston Hotel in Detroit's Renaissance Center, where they expect to show 1,500 pieces of sugar art from 28 countries.

The day I was standing in her spotless kitchen admiring the six orders of wedding cakes, a sheet cake, a birthday cake and a bridal shower cake in the shape of an umbrella, Jeannie explained to me that this was her first "all nighter" this year! (By this she meant of course, that she had been baking and decorating through the night). Her only help and support is her husband, who washes dishes and delivers cakes.

"I couldn't do it without him!" she said. In the meantime, the phone in her adjacent office is ringing off the hook. Yes, you need to call ahead, because she is now booking orders for 1999!

Speaking of planning ahead, the Babbitts have long range plans to turn their property into a Bed and Breakfast place in the year 2001. With the growing reputation of "Sweet Creations," I wonder if these plans will really materialize?

report that the potential to wash out onto the perimeter road exists.

Debbie Johnston, environmental engineer for Waste Management, said that while the company is serious about addressing the DEQ's concern, the overall scope of the problem is minor.

Run-off from that slope, she said, would wind its way only to an on-site access road.

Johnston said initial plans are to install a culvert to direct run-off underneath that road.

Everything else in the June inspection was up to par, according to the DEQ. The department found the facility "compliant" in the other 16 applicable categories such as adequacy of daily cover, noise and debris control, equipment maintenance and prohibited waste disposal.

In the spring, the DEQ notified the company that it had received citizen complaints about odor pollution.

Johnston said that due to the timing of the complaints, many in the company felt that the complaints were unfounded and motivated by those in opposition to its expansion request.

In the spring, Charlevoix County planners denied the company's request for a 12-acre expansion. The company plans to appeal the decision to the DEQ sometime next month, and the DEQ will have 120 days to consider the request.

Johnston said the company never found any cause for possible odor pollution, but nevertheless installed three solar ignited flares atop its leachate risers to suppress any extra odor.

The flares, Johnston explained, burn off excess methane gas which could fill the air with gas smells.

She also said that during the time of the complaints, they were topping off a fill cell which may have made any odor more predominant. Since then, they have begun to fill a new cell from the bottom up.

Lookout Cats serenade people of all ages in East Park

By Nicholas Kessler

People on boats enjoyed a game of cards, kids stepped out on their rooftops, and workers leaned in shop doorways to enjoy the sounds of the Lookout Cats.

"If you feel like movin', please do so." That was a little advice from Elizabeth Rivers, lead vocalist for the Lookout Cats. The Lookout Cats serenaded hearts and ears of all ages as this versatile quartet visited the East Park in Charlevoix.

And move they did. Throughout a rhythm-driven audience, tapping toes and dipping shoulders accompanied the Lookout Cats' version of "Respect" and "The Midnight Hour." The Lookout Cats played Linda Rondstat to Bonnie Raitt, and even the "youngins" recognized Buddy Holly's "That'll Be The Day."

With each song, more ice cream cones, lawn chairs, blankets and smiles found their way to the East Park. Alligators, swimmers, monsters and mashed potatoes were among delighted, dancing audience members that couldn't sit still as drummer Denny Klein kept the beat. Even passing sirens respectfully quieted as the Lookout Cats performed their final number.

The name Lookout Cats, like the group itself, is a combination of different elements. Lead guitarist Charlie Tomlin used to play in the group TC cats. David Chown, keyboardist, used to play in a group known as the Lookout Road in Cross Village. So, as the members of Lookout Cats played together more and more, their name became what it is today. Continuing to move ahead, the Lookout Cats may soon be known as the Lookout Band, as they are playing more original works.

Private parties and small group events keep the Lookout Cats busy. They are regulars at Shanty Creek and the Grand Traverse Resort. Charlevoix turned out a diverse and lively crowd that pleaded the Lookout Cats. David Chown said that playing Charlevoix is always a treat because the audiences are so responsive and welcoming.

"Learn to play a variety of music. Don't limit yourself to one style," is The Lookout Cats' advice for aspiring musicians. They said that people like to dance, so play something they can dance to.

If you are interested in hooking the Lookout Cats, contact David Chown at Lookout Music Productions, 3797 Pleasant Ridge Dr., Williamsburg, MI 49690. (616) 938-2347. David Chown can help you with just about any piano need you have.

Teen center purchased by local drug abuse program

Bay Area Substance Education Services, Inc. (B.A.S.E.S., INC.) has purchased the BASES Teen Center and an adjacent lot as they continue to serve the needs of area teens.

"The purchase of the facility completes phase two of the teen center's five year plan," said executive director Scott Kelly.

Phase three of the plan is already underway and involves developing teen-focused annual fund-raising events to cover annual operational expenses. Phase four includes renovating the facility and paying off any outstanding balance from the facility purchase. And in phase five, the entire operation will become self-sufficient through annual teen fund-raising projects, memberships and on-site activities which will allow our community donors to place their contributions in other needed places. "B.A.S.E.S. is committed to maintaining a safe and drug-free environment for teens of Charlevoix and the surrounding area," Kelly said

Trio to perform in Odmark pavilion

Musicians Randy, Rob and Mary D. will launch this year's Venetian Festival activities with a concert in the Clarence Odmark Pavilion in East Park at 8 p.m. Thursday, July 23.

Known for their three-part harmony, the group offers original and familiar music. They describe themselves as folk singers whose eclectic mix is neither rock and roll nor easy listening.

Randy Marquardt, a member of the trio, said their sound is "Sixties folk, both acoustic and A Capella."

The trio is composed of Marquardt, Boh Snideman and Mary D. Bowman. Marquardt originates from downstate and is currently a vocal instructor in Harbor Springs. He and Snideman played in another popular local band, the Keelhaulers, for nearly eight years.

Snideman is an art teacher in Harbor Springs, and has been active in the music community for over 26 years.

Mary D. has been performing children's concerts in the area for over three years, and currently has two albums out. She joined the trio a year ago. Both Marquardt and Bowman are members of the Little Traverse Choral Society.

Because of their experience, the group is able to play by request, causing every program to be different. Along with requests, they perform new arrangements of songs by artists such as the Grateful Dead; Peter Paul and Mary; and David Wilcox, as well as music for children and a few comedy numbers.

They are appearing as a part of the Charlevoix Visitors and Convention Bureau's summer concert series, which sponsors concerts at 8 p.m. Thursdays through the summer.

The next concert in the series will be the Petoskey High School Steel Drum Band.

Randy, Rob and Mary D.

Warren "Chub" Wilmot

A Beaver Island ritual — music, singing, dancing and story telling — lost one of its finest this spring with the passing of retired Coast Guard Commander Warren "Chub" Wilmot.

"Uncle Chub," as he was known to relatives and scores of others with ties to the island, was an inveterate entertainer. He played the harmonica, bones, spoons, sang and danced for a variety of occasions and family gatherings. He could also mimic colorful island characters, relating stories in traditional Gaelic fashion.

"Wherever there was fun, laughter and good times, there was Uncle Chub," said Mary McDonald, a sister-in-law, island native and long time Charlevoix resident. "He was one in a million."

A resident of Kenosha, Wis., Warren first came to the island as a deckhand aboard the mail boat Marold II in the early 1930s. It was there he met his future wife, Elizabeth "Betty" Gallagher, daughter of Andrew and Elizabeth Gallagher, St. James, Beaver Island natives.

Another sister-in-law, Shirley Gallagher, married to retired Merchant Marine Captain Daniel Emerald Gallagher of Cocoa Beach, Fla., was a young school girl from Detroit visiting the island with the McCauley family at the time the met.

"I can still remember Chub swimming across the harbor (St. James Bay) from the boat dock to the Gallagher family residence, to visit Betty on his lunch break," she recalled. "It made quite an impression on us younger kids. We thought it was so romantic."

He and Betty were married in 1936. That followed his enlistment in the Coast Guard in 1935 as a surf man, beginning a 35 year career that would conclude with his retirement as a commander in Southern California.

Along the way he served on nine different ships, including Michigan-based vessels Sundew and the ice breaker Mackinaw. He also had numerous duty assignments spanning both coasts as well as in the Midwest.

It was during World War II, with the building of the U.S. military air base at Thule, Iceland, that he experienced one of his more unusual duty postings. The Thule base was being built so American transport planes could refuel on their way to the European theater.

He wound up commanding two vessels at the same time for about 40 days.

"Dad was possibly the only officer in Coast Guard history to command two ships at the same time," said Kay Sartor of Lakewood, Calif., the Wilmot's oldest daughter.

The vessels he commanded were used for ice-breaking as well as guiding barges laden with supplies for the construction of the air base.

Subsequent assignments included a stint in Washington D.C., where he authored a book for Coast Guard lifeboat stations, and in San Francisco, Calif., where he coordinated water-related safety and logistics for the underwater portion of the Bay Area Rapid Transit system between that city and Oakland.

A final career transfer to Governor's Island in New York with a promotion to full captain was turned down by him so he could remain in Southern California with his family.

In honor of his memory, the Kenosha, Wis. Southport lighthouse, built in 1866 and unused for many years, was lighted in a special commemorative ceremony in April by the Coast Guard. Commander Wilmot died April 9, 1998 at Memorial Hospital, Long Beach, Calif., a day after his 86th birthday. His ashes were later scattered in the Pacific Ocean from a Coast Guard ship.

He is survived by his wife, Betty; children Kerrin

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

By: Rev. Bruce Hamilton

For years, people have wondered why Jesus said, "Unless a man be born again, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." It's not a physical rebirth at all. It's a rebirth of the human spirit. It's the child-like trust that so characterizes young lives. It is a child-like trust that inspires creativity that occasionally causes us adults to rethink our approach to life.

What follows is just such a moment. Danny Dutton is an eight-year-old from Chula Vista, California and these are his words written for a homework assignment to "Explain God."

One of God's main jobs is making people. He makes them to replace the ones that die so there will be enough people to take care of things here on earth.

He doesn't make grown-ups, just babies. I think because they are smaller and easier to make. That way, He doesn't have to take up His valuable time teaching them to talk and walk. He can just leave that to mothers and fathers.

God's second most important job is listening to prayers. An awful lot of this goes on, since some people, like preachers and things, pray at times besides bedtime. God doesn't have time to listen to the radio or TV on account of this. Since He hears everything, not only prayers, there must be a terrible lot of noise in His ears, unless He has thought of a way to turn it off.

God sees everything and hears everything and is everywhere, which keeps Him pretty busy. So you shouldn't go wasting His time by going over your parent's head asking for something they said you couldn't have.

Atheists are people who don't believe in God. I don't think there are any in Chula Vista. At least there aren't any who come to our church.

Jesus is God's Son. He used to do all the hard work like walking on water and performing miracles and trying to teach the people who didn't want to learn about God. They finally got tired of Him preaching to them and they crucified Him. But He was good and kind like His Father and He told His Father that they didn't know what they were doing and to forgive them and God said OK.

His Dad (God) appreciated everything that He had done and all His hard work on earth so He told Him He didn't have to go out on the road anymore. He could stay in heaven. So He did. And now He helps His Dad out by listening to prayers and seeing things which are important for God to take care of and which ones He can take care of Himself without having to bother God. Like a secretary, only more important, of course. You can pray anytime you want and they are sure to hear you because they got it worked out so one of them is on duty all the time. You should always go to Church on Sunday because it makes God happy, and if there's anybody you want to make happy, it's God. Don't skip church to do something you think will be more fun like going to the beach. This is wrong! And, besides, the sun doesn't come out at the beach until noon anyway.

If you don't believe in God, besides being an atheist, you will be very lonely, because your parents can't go everywhere with you, like to camp, but God can. It is good to know He's around you when you're scared in the dark or when you can't swim very good and you get thrown into real deep water by big kids. But you shouldn't just always think of what God can do for you. I figure God put me here and He can take me back anytime He pleases. And that's why I believe in God.

Somewhere else in scripture you will find it says that a little child shall lead them. Blessings.

LANDFILL ENDANGERS LAKE CHARLEVOIX

Dear Concerned Citizens,

Many of you are no doubt aware of the troubling situation at the Cedar Ridge Landfill which is located in Charlevoix County's Eveline Township just off Sequanota Road. Waste Management is now in the process of once again attempting to site new landfill area at the Cedar Ridge Landfill. There has been repeated opposition from the Eveline Township Board and many concerned citizens. In addition, the Charlevoix County Planning Commission has turned down the expansion request submitted by Waste Management, the current owner of Cedar Ridge. Waste Management, however, is planning an appeal to the Department of Environmental Quality.

Our main point of concern is the fact that Cedar Ridge is located only eight-tenths of a mile from Lake Charlevoix. Two creeks and a drainage ditch are part of the surface water near Cedar Ridge that enters Lake Charlevoix. The drainage ditch enters in the Ironton-Sequanota area, Sear Creek enters just south of Holy Island, and Monroe Creek enters at beautiful Elm Pointe Park in East Jordan. We are extremely concerned about the possibility that any form of contamination from this 30-year-old landfill could make its way into Lake Charlevoix waters, now, or in the future.

WATCH (Water and Air Team for Charlevoix), and the residents of Charlevoix County, have already seen the insidious nature of water contamination. Consider the City of Charlevoix's traumatic and costly experience with the industrial solvent trichloroethylene (TCE), which was discovered in ground water supplies in the 1980's.

This time, let's not wait for the problem to happen. Let's PREVENT it from happening.

At present, Cedar Ridge has capacity for three more years of waste disposal. There are other northern Michigan landfills with much greater capacity that are located in much less environmentally sensitive areas. Also, WATCH continues to promote recycling as a key element of solid waste management.

With your support, WATCH will continue to oppose the expansion of the Cedar Ridge Landfill and to work with Charlevoix County to find a more environmentally responsible solution for solid waste disposal. Certainly, there are better places for landfill activity than eight-tenths of a mile from one of Michigan's most beautiful lakes.

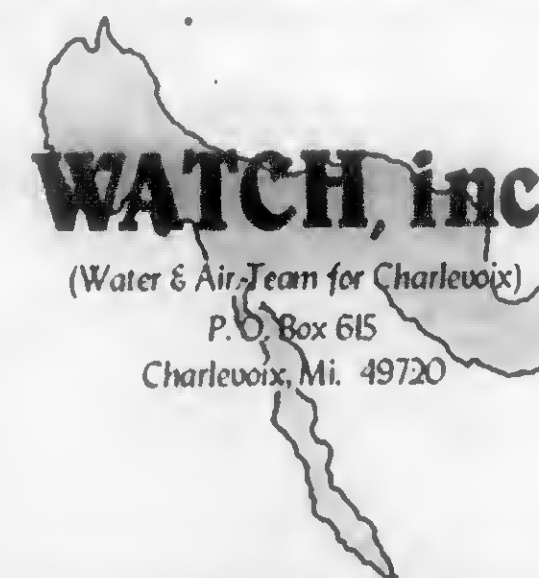

One of WATCH's strengths over its 15-year history has been its proactive approach to protecting air and water quality in Charlevoix County. Whether dealing with a dust problem, a waste tire problem, or a landfill problem, WATCH is consistently on the front-line, not the sideline, working with all parties to seek constructive solutions.

If you are in agreement with our position on the Cedar Ridge Landfill, please sign the form below and mail it to this address:

WATCH, Inc.
P.O. Box 615
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

These signatures will be presented to state and local officials and the Department of Environmental Quality.

I/We (the undersigned), would like to express my/our opposition to any type of expansion to the Cedar Ridge Landfill in Charlevoix County.

Niece remembers family farm

Diane Durance, niece of Frances Durance, submitted the following article to the Charlevoix Courier in response to the many questions she received from people regarding the changes recently made to the Centennial farmhouse at the corner of Mercer and Waller roads. Our readers are sure to be pleased with the history and updated information included in this story.

In her 105 years, Frances Durance has seen many changes in Charlevoix. One recent change is a new look for her family home.

Frances was born in Charlevoix in 1893 and she's always called the Centennial farmhouse at the corner of Mercer and Waller roads home, even during her many years as a teacher elsewhere. She was there when the barn was built in 1910, when the telephone was installed in 1915, and when electricity was added in the 1930s.

In 1964, Frances added gas for heat in the lower level and for cooking. And in 1998, she is here to see the home remodeled and ready for new generations of Durances.

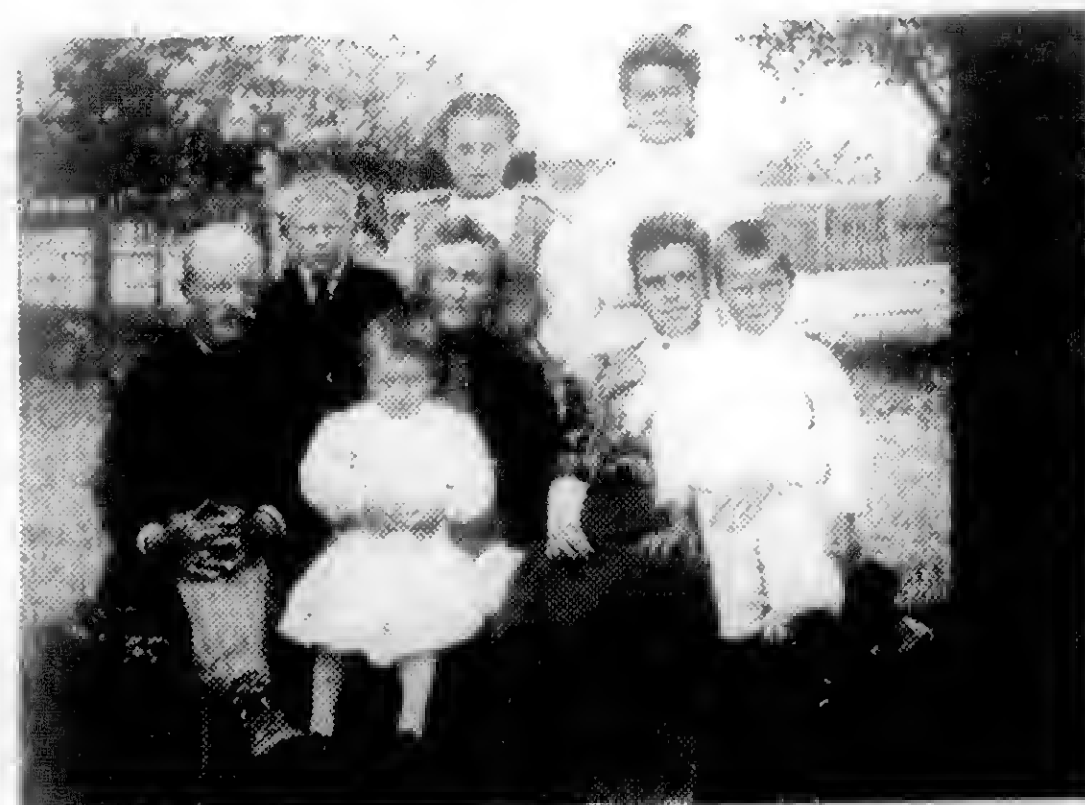

Northside neighbors have noticed significant work on the farmhouse since September. A room addition, interior improvements, a gracious porch along three sides of the house, and a fresh coat of paint have readied the house for gatherings of the Durance family.

The work was spearheaded by Frances' grand-niece Diane Durance and her husband, Scott Ewen. Diane's parents, Edward and Shirley Durance, plan to live in the house as much as half of the year. Other family members expected at the farmhouse include Laura Diestel and her family. The farm continues as a Michigan Centennial Farm - certified by the Michigan Historical Commission as a farm with ownership in the same family for more than 100 years.

The house was built in 1889 by Frances' parents, George and Mary Durance. It originally stood on Mercer at the south end of the property (next to today's Charlevoix Children's House).

The house was moved to its current location in 1912. It was remodeled for the first time in 1914.

Durance family farm filled with fun and fond memories

The farm at first raised vegetables and dairy cattle. The strawberries many Charlevoix residents remember picking each June came later, and Frances continued strawberry farming into the 1970s. In the early 1980s, more than 8,000 hardwood trees were planted by Frances' nephew Edward Durance and his family.

Frances' memories of early Charlevoix families are rich with detail: Her brother William building a row boat with the help of Adolph Novotny; E.C. Waller owning 500 acres and raising apples that were barreled and shipped to the names of all the shopkeepers in downtown Charlevoix when the streets were unpaved, the sidewalks were wood, and horses and carriages were used for transportation.

Frances' father worked as a plaster mason with Johnnie

Chicago by train; and Cook and Henry Hopkins. Frances remembers when old Chief McCauba lived in his log cabin at the foot of Mt. McCauba and when two old Civil War veterans lived on Mercer. She recalls the bridge being opened and closed by volunteers - it was turned augur-style by four men on each arm.

The Durance family worked as a plaster mason with Johnnie looks forward to many more enriching memories of Charlevoix and its families. The Durances thank today's Charlevoix craftsmen whose skills and suggestions improved the farmhouse while preserving its character, including: Steve Kantola, Brian Warner and Kris Bartling. They also want to thank all the Northside neighbors who stopped by while driving, biking, and dog-walking to offer comments and encouragement. And special thanks to Will Simmons, a talented carpenter and builder, who com-muned from Ann Arbor countless times to see the project to completion.

Local woman combs displays to spruce up area homes

By Laurie Lounsbury

Linda Hoffman is a hunter. But she doesn't dress up in camouflage and carry a shotgun to do her hunting. She dresses in comfortable shoes and walks through miles and miles of displays at international retail market shows.

The impressive quarry of her hunting can be seen at her new retail store, Interior Motives.

"I'm used to the retail business, and I love the hunt," Hoffman said.

The hunt she loves is looking for unique, home decorating items that she artistically packs into her 650-square-foot store on Bridge Street.

"People are surprised by everything in here," Hoffman said of her customers' response to the new shop. "It's very eclectic and they seem to like the variety."

Indeed, Hoffman carries everything from whimsical drawer pulls and tassels to classic library tables, leather lamps, cottage china, throw pillows, Italian ceramic tiles and funky martini glasses.

"I have things from around the world," Hoffman said. "Hopefully, it's different than people find other places."

Hoffman is not new to the retail business. When she and her husband, Bob, bought a home in Charlevoix 17 years ago, Linda opened a successful gift shop called Wildwood. Prior to that, she had a store in her native town of St. Louis that specialized in stuffed animals.

It's been seven years since Hoffman worked in retail.

"I thought we needed a business like this downtown," Hoffman said of her decision to get back into the retail business.

Hoffman uses her flair for decorating to help her customers. One woman came in and wanted to buy a large, expensive bowl to place on a table runner. Hoffman knew the bowl would be too big for the table runner, so she steered the woman to a smaller, less expensive bowl. Then Hoffman showed her how to heap fruit in the bowl until it was overflowing for a bountiful, summer look.

Hoffman's eclectic tastes are reflected in the wide variety of items in the store. A large, wrought-iron folding screen captures everyone's attention, with its clear glass balls worked into the design. Corbels, which are architectural detail pieces, are mounted at different levels on different walls in the store.

"People have to spend a lot of time in here to really see everything," Hoffman said.

Linda Hoffman shows off some of the items she believes will improve the look of any home or business. (Photo by Laurie Lounsbury)

Interior Motives today will probably look completely different inside a month from now, as Hoffman continues to get new and different items in the store.

"Things will change all the time,"

Hoffman said. "When I go to market, I won't get the same things. People don't want to pay a nice price for something and then see it all over town."

Interior Motives is open seven days a week, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday. Hoffman plans to keep the business open all year, for more information, call 547-4500.

Travel golf league continues

Playing the old fashioned brand of head-to-head match play, A-Ga-Ming trounced an undermanned Charlevoix Country Club 10.5 to 1.5 to move into first place in the Northwest Michigan Travel Golf League.

The Country Club forfeited two of those matches as they were unable to field a complete team.

With the win, A-Ga-Ming upped its record to 2-1-1 and nudged ahead of the Country Club in the overall standings.

The Country Club, which had entered play in first place, dropped to 2-2.

Last week's other match had Antrim Dells whipping Dunmaglas 8.5 to 3.5.

Antrim Dells is now tied with the Country Club with a 2-2 record while Dunmaglas is in fourth with a 1-2-1 record.

The league was in action yesterday at A-Ga-Ming with the Dells playing the Country Club and Dunmaglas squaring off with A-Ga-Ming. Results were unavailable at presstime.

Rec results

In men's slow pitch action last week, Boss Engineering came out victorious in two games to open up a two game lead in the overall standings.

Boss bested Top Rank Disposal, 5-3, and Grey Gables, 7-2. Both games were played last Wednesday night.

In other action, Top Rank topped, CPI 6-4; Willoway thumped Acacia, 11-1; Gold Nugget edged Acacia, 8-5; and Grey Gables nipped Willoway, 5-4.

Meanwhile, in women's action last week, B.C.S. Network swept a pair of games to open up a two-game lead in the Division A standings. B.C.S. nudged out Skyline Erectors 4-2 and thumped Boyne Valley Hydroseed, 13-5.

Second-place Kilwin's could not keep pace splitting their two games. They topped Skyline 18-9 but were edged out by Boyne Valley Hydroseed, 9-8.

Golfer likes Buick Open showing

By Jamie MacMillan

Despite finishing in the middle of the pack, Ryan Murdick labeled his recent play in last week's Amateur Junior Golf Association's Buick Open a "great experience."

"I was playing with some of the nation's best kids," the 1998 Charlevoix High School graduate said. "It felt good just to be on their level."

The Junior Buick Open is the only stop in Michigan for the junior tour. Murdick was accepted into the field after a sterling performance in a qualifying round two days before the tournament began.

More than 100 golfers entered the qualification round. They were vying for one of 12 available spots. Murdick shot a 76, good enough for eighth place, and a spot in the Junior Buick Field of 90 amateur golfers.

Both events were played in Grand Blanc on the Captain's Club Course, a par 72 design.

Murdick said he didn't enter with expectations to win only to "not shoot any scores in the 90s because that would look bad."

In the three-day tournament, Murdick shot rounds of 84, 81 and 87 for a final total of 252. He placed 79th, 38 strokes behind champion Matt Davidson of Lawrenceville, N.J.

Murdick said he putted better in the qualifying round, but also said the course played tougher during the actual event. In qualifying, the pin placement was in the center of every green, but in the regular tourney, pin placement was changed-up.

"They were the hardest rounds of my life with the way the course was set-up," Murdick said. "It was a really tight course, and really easy to lose balls."

The hardest was the signature 18th hole, a rare par five closer. Murdick called the hole's lay-out "ridiculously windy." While he never made par on the hole, he made up for it each day on the 10th, another par five. More of a straight shot to the green, he birdied the hole every day of the competition.

Play was made harder by the 95 degree heat and humidity that cooked the competitors all week.

Murdick's entrance in the 15-year-old event has him walking in the shadow of some of golf's current stars.

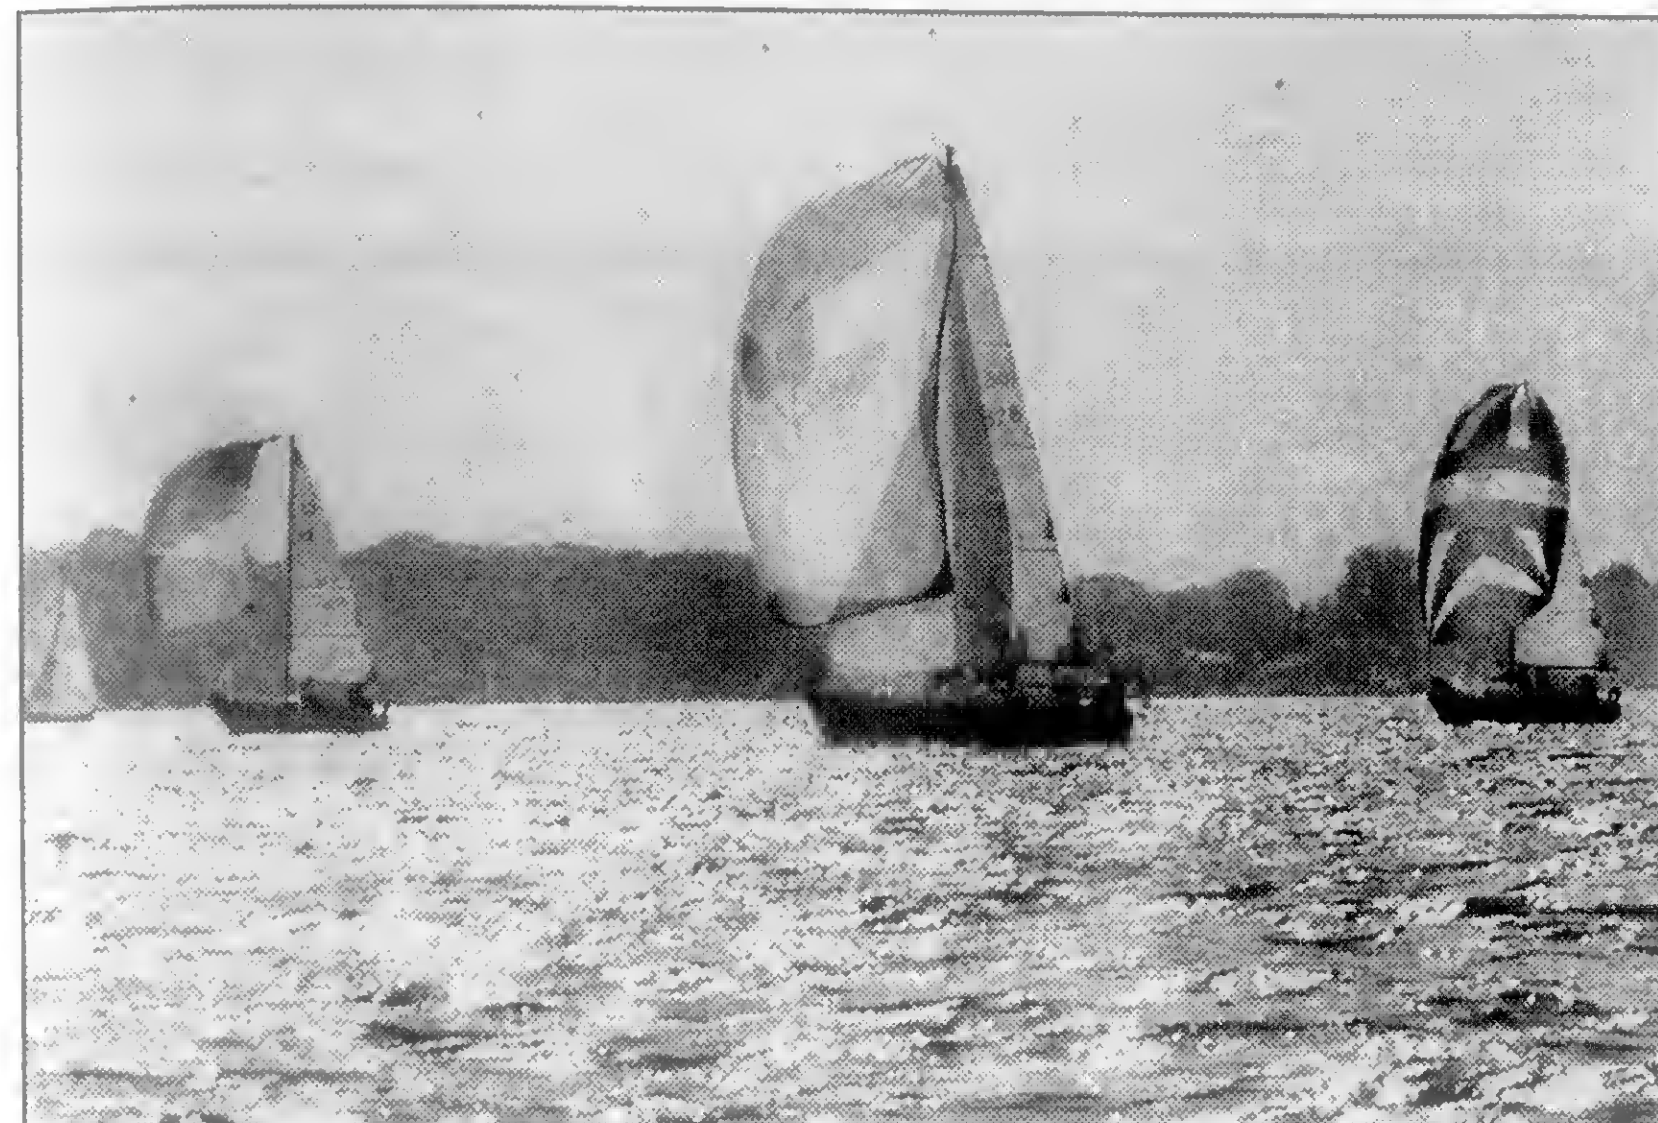

Phil Mickelson, one of the P.G.A.'s top dogs, won this event in 1987 and 1988. On the ladies side, Kelly Robbins, currently in the top 10 of L.P.G.A. player rankings, took home the Junior Buick trophy in 1996 as did Jenny Chuasiriporn in 1994. Chuasiriporn, an amateur, nearly stole this year's U.S. Open after a 20-hole playoff.

Murdick will attend Ferris State University this fall and has hopes of making the school's golf team.

Ryan Murdick

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Trail committee plans path to Bay Shore

The Charlevoix Trail Committee, which is working toward establishing a non-motorized, multi-purpose trail from Charlevoix to Bay Shore, will be holding a meeting at Charlevoix City Hall at 7 p.m. Thursday, July 30. Interested parties are invited to attend.

For further information, please call Jerry Corley at 547-1945 or the Top Of Michigan Trails Council at 348-8280.

Bay View cottages open for tour

Monday, Aug. 3 will be a historic day when the Bay View Woman's Council and the Crooked Tree Arts Council join together for what promises to be a spectacular event - The Bay View Cottage Tour.

Bay View resident Betty Tufts and her committee have done a marvelous job lining up seven cottages built in the late 1800s. Arts council member Jane Smith and her committee pitched in with their home tour expertise. This is a rare opportunity to look into Bay View, the summer-only community, the haven of music lovers, the home of fabulous summer programs, and the historic enclave that was once a Methodist retreat.

There is certainly something for everyone who might come on the tour.

Do you treasure relaxing on a veranda, taking in a view of Little Traverse Bay? The spacious porches will tempt you.

Do antiques set your heart a-flutter? Choose from tin ceilings, Amish quilts, Steuben glass, Flora Danica porcelains, or a dining table which has been in the same home since it was new in 1886.

If you enjoy modern kitchens integrated into historic space, then you're in for a superb treat.

If gardens are your cup of tea, by all means join the tour! Nearly all of the homes have something special growing, including a peony garden that has been developing for four generations.

After all, who hasn't driven through Bay View, wondering about the interior of those charming gingerbread cottages, hoping by some miracle to be asked inside, or at the very least on to the porch for some lemonade?

A box luncheon, prepared especially for the cottage tour by Stafford's Bay View Inn, is available for $10. Tickets for the luncheon will be available until Friday, July 24.

Tickets for the Cottage Tour at Bay View are $15 per person, and are on sale now at the McCune Arts Center in downtown Petoskey, the Tin Soldier in Harbor Springs, and at the Appletree in Charlevoix. The cottages will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday, Aug. 3.

Those attending the tour are asked to park at the Petoskey United Methodist Church, 1804 East Mitchell St., where a shuttle will take participants to Bay View. There will be no parking available within Bay View.

For more information, call the McCune Arts Center at 347-4337.

Boyer City site of 25th antique car show

admission is free, and there will be food concessions on the grounds.

Northern Michigan saves lives by giving blood

The Great Lakes Region of the American Red Cross Blood Services is holding the Venetian Festival Memorial Blood Drive from 1 p.m. to 6:45 p.m. Thursday, July 23 at the Charlevoix High School Gym, in honor of those who needed blood after last year's Venetian fireworks explosion.

This is a busy time of year for everyone — a record number of highway miles is expected to be logged by travelers in Michigan this summer. Vacation travel increases the need for O Negative blood donors. Since O Negative blood can be given to anyone, it is transfused in emergencies when the blood type of the recipient is unknown. An O Negative blood donation could help someone in any number of emergencies, especially car accidents.

"Many of us take vacation during the summer, but the need for blood never goes on a holiday," said Dr. Yvette Miller, medical director of the Great Lakes Blood Region. "For many families this summer, the happiest day will be the day a loved one comes home from the hospital. A volunteer donation of any blood type, but especially of O Negative, will be essential to making that day a reality."

Donors must be at least 17 years old and weigh at least 110 pounds. For more information, call 1-800-GIVE LIFE.

Venetian Festival is rich with tradition

From the Archives
By Geoffrey D. Reynolds

Early in this century, beginning with a simple boat parade on Round Lake, the Venetian Festival has developed into a summer happening that attracts not only visitors, but has also become an unofficial homecoming for many former inhabitants.

Starting possibly as early as 1910, local and resorting yacht owners gathered on Round Lake for an evening boat parade. By 1926, it had evolved into the annual Boat Regatta and in 1929 was officially backed and underwritten by the city fathers with $250. The event was organized and sponsored by the Charlevoix Boat Club and included events such as power boat and sailboat racing and the Charlevoix Boat Club Ball.

In 1931 the Charlevoix Marine Club organized and sponsored the Venetian Boat Parade and initiated what has become the Venetian Festival. This portion of the event continued successfully until the onset of World War II, when it was postponed until the end of hostilities.

In later years the parade was scheduled as an evening event, but not without disgruntled boaters complaining about dripping candle wax and the hazardous use of Japanese lanterns used to illuminate their entries. With the use of electrical generators, the yachts now participate safely and without as much mess in the Grand Electrical Boat Parade.

In 1935 many events were developed to coincide with Charlevoix County's July 4 Centennial Pageant and included bands, fireworks on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, with the boat parade occurring during the display, a visit from Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald, eight boxing bouts per day, and the crowning of 20-year-old Marjorie Jean (Carey) Coleman, the Pageant Queen.

The advent of the Venetian Queen dates from 1930 with the crowning of Angie (Scott) Supernaw as queen of a much older event, the Winter Festival. At that time the Winter Festival was Charlevoix's major event of the year, but has slowly given way to the more largely attended Venetian Festival, and with it, Charlevoix's only annually crowned queen.

Throughout the years queens have been chosen through a variety of ways. In 1950, for example, Ann (Gill) Puffpaff received the crown because she had raised the most money, through locally distributed money containers, for the proposed new hospital.

In 1958 the chamber of commerce was formed and the decision to build a festival around the long-standing boat parade was made. Through the years a carnival was added, concession stands placed, parades presented, and a memorial foot race in honor of Charlevoix's own Jeff Drenth was created. Eventually it became a focal point for Charlevoix's summer season and a major revenue-maker for local businesses and nonprofit groups.

If you would like to learn more about the history of the Venetian Festival and its queens, visit the Charlevoix Historical Society's Harsha House Museum at 103 State St., Charlevoix.

Campaign continues for 106th House seat

it's hard to stand out in a crowd. Long days of travel and hitting the streets appear to be the strategy.

Enderle has handed out almost all of his 15,000 brochures just by walking neighborhoods, while Fournier spent one day last week in Rogers City visiting, in his estimation, close to 85 percent of the homes in the town. He has plans to do the same in Cheboygan and Charlevoix.

Going to many of the areas' special events, from the Posen Potato Festival to this weekend's Venetian Festival, are also high on each candidate's campaign itinerary.

"What we're doing is trying to cram six months of work into 60 days," said Ludlow, who has traveled 1,000 miles a week since the campaign began.

Despite that, some candidates remain surprised at the isolation of a primary election.

Ludlow said it's a challenge to campaign because close to 90 percent of the party remains in a neutral stance until after the primary election.

"It's hard to work with people who, in all likelihood, want to remain neutral, and I wasn't prepared for that," he said. "As a candidate in a primary, you really are out there by yourself."

Election day is Tuesday, August

Venetian Festival was an overall success

By Laurie Lounsbury

Venetian Festival Chairman John Taylor probably best summarized this year's festival when he said,

"Overall, it was a safe and successful event. Nobody got hurt."

The 1998 Venetian Festival brought thousands of visitors to town to enjoy the carnival, street parade, lighted boat parade and laser show.

Charlevoix police officer Paul Ivan reported that the number of people in town seemed typical of previous Venetian Festivals, with a possible exception of the new laser show, which was performed in lieu of fireworks.

"The crowds were down a smidgen for the light show," Ivan said.

Indeed, folks started to stream out of East Park during the laser light show. Disappointment in the show, which was plagued with technical and weather-related problems, actually made for a safer exodus from town.

"Cars started leaving town earlier, so we didn't have the usual traffic jam that we've had in the past," Ivan said.

The Grand Electrical Boat Parade was a highlight of this year's festivities, with 18 boats participating.

"I think it was the best boat parade we've ever had," said Venetian Festival chairman John Taylor. "The boats really went all out this year."

Downtown merchants noticed that business dropped off slightly on Saturday from previous festivals, possibly due to the lack of a fireworks finale.

Gina Whitney, of Whitney's Oyster Bar, noted that her Friday night revenues were up 15 percent from one year ago, and her Saturday night revenues were up only 5 percent, in spite of the fact that the newly constructed restaurant has more seating capacity than it did last year.

Jeannine Wallace, owner of Shop of the Gulls, also said her business was up on Friday and down a bit on Saturday.

For Laurie Gilbert, manager of Polly's Deli, the exodus of visitors during the laser show was obvious.

"I almost cried when I saw everyone leaving town during the laser show," Gilbert said. Her deli was open until midnight, so she was not happy to see people leaving town at 11 p.m.

On the flip side, new 7-Eleven owners Jim and Holly Proctor were quite pleased with business over the weekend.

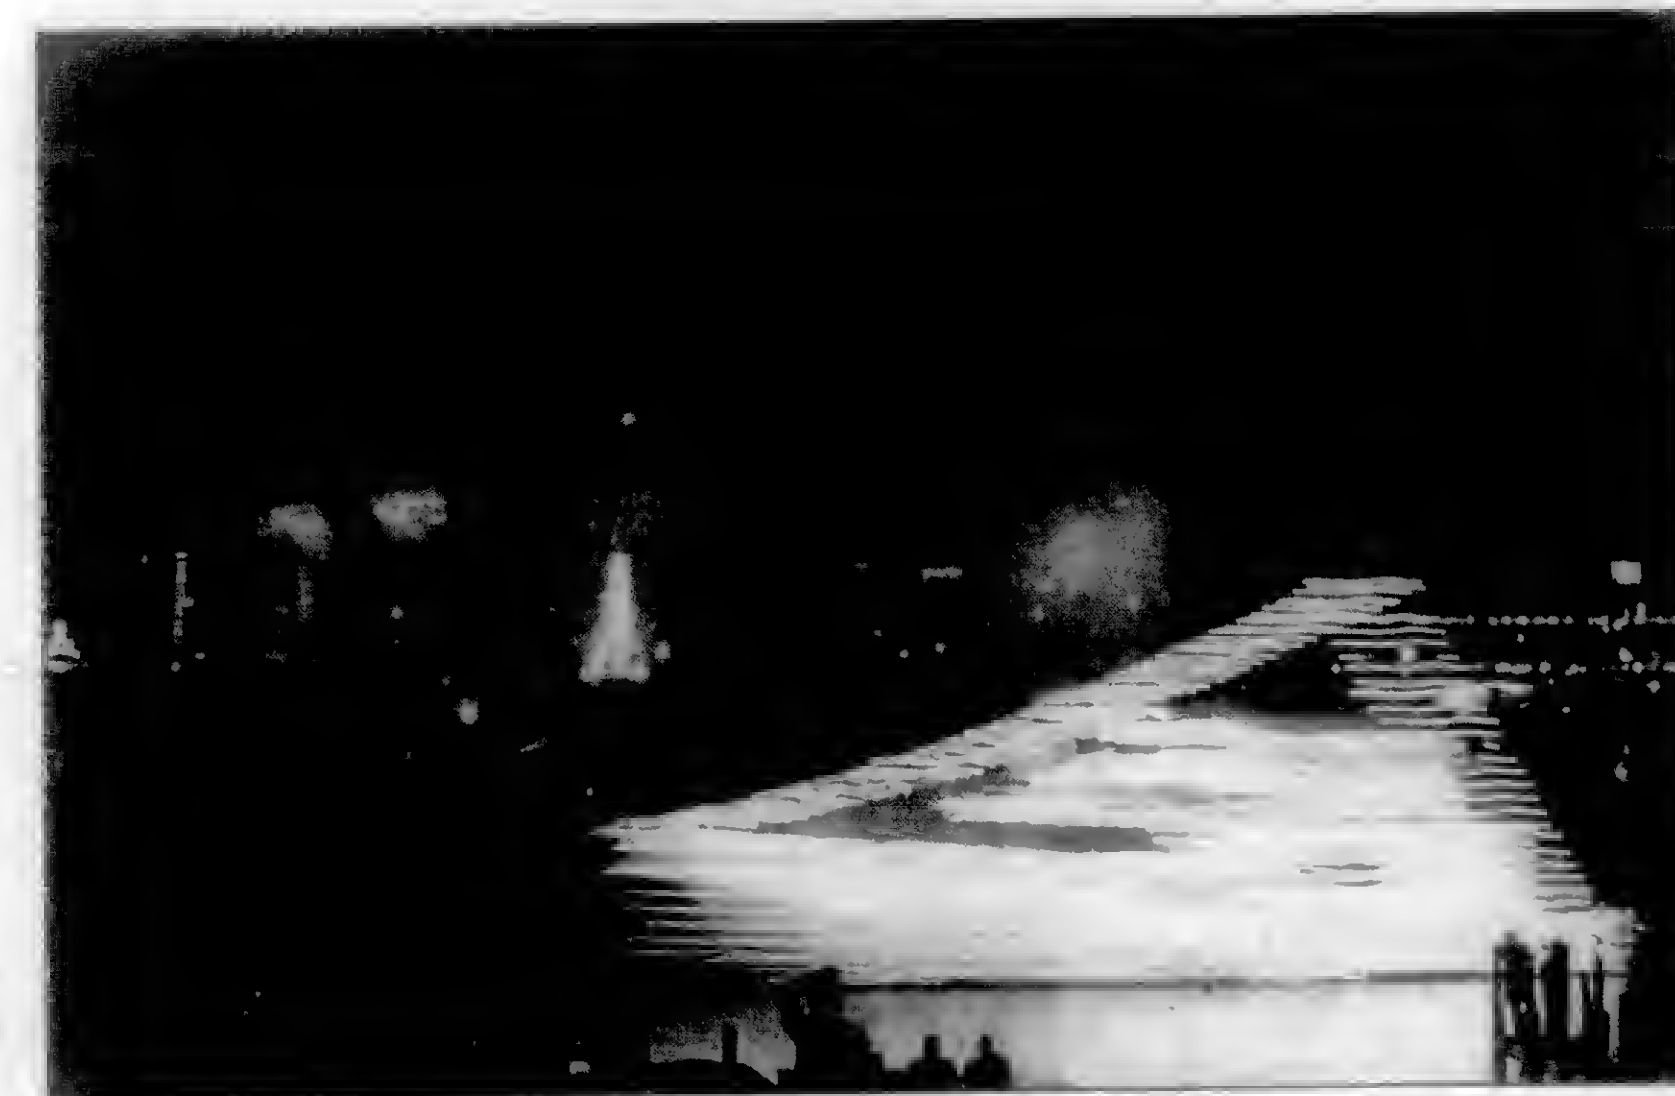

"A lot of people said they didn't like the laser show, but the whole weekend for us was good," Jim said. "It was amazing to me. Business didn't slow down on Saturday until 3 a.m., and we had no problems whatsoever."

On Friday night, Danica Kilander was crowned Miss Charlevoix as part of the Venetian Queen pageant, with Kari Jo Boss taking the first runner-up spot. Kristin Hammerberg was crowned Miss Congeniality of the pageant.

Winners of the drum and bugle corps competition were newcomers to the Venetian Festival — the Seattle Cascades, followed by the

The Laser Light Show received less than rave reviews, but still provided an interesting backdrop to the outstanding Grand Electrical Boat Parade, in which 18 boats ranging in size from 17 to 57 feet in length participated. More photos on page 20. (Photos by Laurie Lounsbury)

Hospital finishes 1997-98 fiscal year in good shape

By Laurie Lounsbury

The Charlevoix Area Hospital finished their 1997-98 fiscal year with money to spare, even after opening a new medical center, hiring more staff and acquiring a CT scanner.

"These developments add up to an impressive list of accomplishments and are a testament to the hospital's stability and steady growth, a pattern we are dedicated to seeing continue in the future," said hospital president Bill Jackson. He delivered the financial report for the hospital at the annual meeting July 20.

The hospital completed its first full year of service at the Boyne Area Medical Center, a satellite care center in Boyne City, with staff physicians Pamela Knysz and Catherine Wonski. A community survey indicated that the center was overwhelmingly well received and townspeople appreciate having physicians in town.

Three attending physicians were added to the hospital staff in the past year. Pediatrician Naghmana Farukh, family practitioner Craig Boss and radiologist Carl Harlan will be seeing patients at the hospital now. Harlan will be directing the new CT scanner department, which became operational May 5, 1998. The scanner was paid for largely through donations, which total $380,000 to date. The total cost of the scanner is $500,000.

The hospital saw total revenues reach nearly $19 million for the fiscal year that ended March 31, 1998. The bulk of the revenue, about $16 million, came from tests and treatments administered to patients. After deducting Blue Cross insurances and charity care, the hospital earned over $13 million in revenue.

Staff wages and benefits cost the hospital $8.8 million, the largest portion of expenses. Medical supplies, interest depreciation, utilities and other expenses totaled $4.3 million.

At the bottom line, the hospital was left with nearly one-half million for plant and equipment needs.

"It was pretty much what we expected," Jackson said of the budget. As the hospital grows, so do the doctors' offices surrounding it. Jackson reported that a new physician office building was built behind the hospital in a former parking lot. It will house Pine River Medical, which is comprised of Drs. Stewart, Joy and Newcomb, and Dr. Roderic Tinney, formerly of East Jordan Family Health Center.

City makes deal for airport usage

By Jamie MacMillan

An agreement has been reached between the city and an Illinois businessman for exclusive access rights to the city's municipal airport.

During its last session, city council approved a contract between itself and David Guanci to allow the businessman to build a private gate on the west end of the airport for access to the facility.

Airport manager Loraine Luepnitz explained that this is a unique arrangement because Guanci owns the adjacent land to the airport, where he's building a hangar. The rest of the hangars are all owned by the city, leased out on a 25 year basis, located on city property and aren't subject to property taxes.

"He'll own that hangar, so he's just paying for access to the airport and all of its facilities," she said.

Guanci's property adjoins the airport and is just east of the Charlevoix Township water tower parcel.

Under terms of the agreement, Guanci would pay the city $2,000 a year for the first five years and then $4,000 annually for each year after that. He would also put up a $2 million insurance liability bond with the city.

Guanci is to pay construction costs for the new gate as well as a 30 X 360 foot taxiway to extend from the airport's runway to the new gate.

Luepnitz told city council last Monday that the contract gives Guanci a break on access fees the first five years because of the costs he'll incur building the new gate and taxiway.

Initial site plans for Guanci's property include a 12,000 square foot hangar and a warehouse of similar size to provide boat and motor home storage. Also expected to be built are office spaces, a conference room and private parking spaces.

Guanci, who signed the contract on July 10, said he flirted with the idea of building his hangar on city property, but didn't like the prospect of the city taking possession of the facility after a 25 year period.

CORRECTION

The Healthshare Group Annual Report inserted into today's paper contains an error. The sixth bullet point on page four should read:

• Healthshare Group employs approximately 1,451 employees who receive $46.5 million in salaries and benefits - dollars that are shared in local businesses and communities.

Planning for year 2000

It's reassuring to know that Charlevoix Area Hospital and staff not only performed well in the past year, but they are looking ahead to future years — specifically, the year 2000.

A recent report on the nation's health care facilities said that many hospitals will not be able to cope with the millennium bug, which will strike at 12:01 a.m. New Year's Day, 2000. The millennium bug, also known as the Y2K (Year 2000) bug, is a flaw in computer chips that won't allow a computer to read the date 2000. Since many computers only read the last two digits of a year, experts fear that computers everywhere will not be able to comprehend '00 as the year 2000 — instead, computers will think it's the year 1900 and crash.

Computer equipment failures in hospitals could present a life or death situation for patients.

Bill Jackson, president of Charlevoix Area Hospital, said that the hospital has already become year 2000 compliant with some of their systems.

"We are compliant in our computer systems, and we have a program in place to test medical equipment, which should be done by the end of this year," Jackson said.

"We do have some concerns about the Medicare Program," Jackson added, saying that Medicare has not yet prepared for Y2K. "If they don't move along with year 2000 compliance, we're afraid no one will get paid."

In a recent report from the American Hospital Association (AHA), it was noted that hospitals and health systems are already struggling to cope with the 1997 Balanced budget Act's spending reductions, and a delay in the year 2000 update adds to the burden.

The Medicare program has to deal with two facets of the Y2K problem — the actual computer fix and developing contingency plans to ensure that day-to-day operations don't crash.

Rep. Bill Thomas (R-Ca.), convened a hearing to review the Health Care Financing Administration's (HCFA) readiness for Y2K, following reports that the agency planned to delay key elements of last year's budget law, including the fiscal year 2000 update for hospital inpatient services.

AHA trustee David Bernd told members of the House Ways and Means Health Committee, "It is imperative that HCFA establish a fail-safe contingency plan."

Don't knock the laser show — at least it was different

LAURIE LOUNSBURY

Enough, already. I do not need to hear from any more people that the Venetian Festival Laser Light Show was a disappointment. I was there. I know what the laser show was. The show was a bomb, OK? But let's look at the bigger picture. No one got hurt, traffic on the water and on the streets after the boat parade was manageable, and the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce at least tried something new and different following last year's tragedy. John Taylor, festival chairman, said that the high winds played havoc with the water screen and there were some technical glitches with the sound system. That's to be expected, I suppose, with something completely new. It's a shame the laser show didn't work as well as anticipated. I think it's a bigger shame that, because of one, less-than-thrilling laser show, the concept will no doubt be dismissed out of hand. "They'll never do that again," I heard one disappointed viewer say as he left East Park. He's probably right. But what if Thomas Edison, after getting a nasty jolt from his kite string when lightning struck, had said to himself, "Ouch, that hurt. It was no fun, and there was only one, wimpy little strand of light from it. I don't think I'll ever try that again." Obviously, a good laser show requires more than we had in East Park Saturday night. It requires a permanent installation of a screen of some sort. It requires some small fireworks to provide smoke in the air for the laser light refraction. Fog would be especially helpful, but probably not desirable to boaters trying to find their way home after the show. I know I'm in the minority when I say that fireworks don't give me a big thrill and I was happy to see the chamber of commerce try something new. I'm sorry that their efforts turned out to be an expensive failure. I've even resorted to speculate that the universal whining and griping in town will probably close the door on any efforts to improve and add to a laser show in future years. Had the laser show been even modestly successful, it could have led to a permanent water screen installation. With that in place, we could have had laser shows all summer long, as a backdrop to concerts in the park, art shows, craft fairs — any number of events. Perhaps the chamber of commerce and their committee members were overly sensitive to last year's fireworks explosion. But is it possible to be overly sensitive when you're talking about the death of one community member and the injuries of many others? I don't think so. Oh well, here today, gone next year. On a different note, my hat goes off to the carnival workers this year. Perhaps they knew that their downtown location was in jeopardy, but for whatever reason, their behavior — at least what I saw — was exemplary. I saw one neatly dressed carnival worker sweeping Mason Street at 11 p.m., scooping up and cigarette butts up into a trash bin. They all seemed to be polite, hard-working and inoffensive. The boat parade certainly deserved praise this year. The only people not happy with the boat parade were those who anchored inside the parade route and couldn't see the outside of the boats, which were drawing raves and cheers from the people on the shore. Taylor said this problem may be solved next year by leaving more anchoring space on the outer portion of Round Lake, so boats will not have to anchor in the center of the lake. The parade route would become more of a narrow loop, swinging close to the shore only in front of East Park and Bridge Park. The Lions Club chicken was tasty, as always, and the only complaint there was that they ran out of chicken too soon. All in all, it was a great Venetian Festival. So let's not dwell on the laser show. They tried. If no one ever tried anything new in Charlevoix, we'd still have an immovable wooden bridge over the Pine River Channel and Round Lake would be a port accommodating nothing bigger than canoes and dinghies. Now, where would be the fun in that?

Letters to the editor

Victim will never enjoy Venetian Festival again

Dear Editor, Thank you for the article about the Venetian tragedy. We are indeed blessed to have you working as editor with such genuine empathy and concern for those of us who were injured. Yes, I want last year's tragedy to be behind me. I want to see that as a victim, we will be taken care of. I want to be done with the whole issue. I want to go back to the carefree, merry Venetian Festivals that I have enjoyed in the past. I've certainly learned a lot about how fireworks are displayed since last July, and how dangerous they are, and how they could have been set up in a safe manner, such as being buried in the sand, ground, or out on the water, and the spectators could have been roped off at a safe distance. One just assumes at a public event, that safety precautions have already been taken. Had I been aware last July that none of these safety measures were considered, I would not have ever attended any of the Venetian Festivals when fireworks were displayed. The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and Venetian Festival Committee should have realized the unsafe manner in which the fireworks were being fired. The chances that an explosive may explode on the ground before it is airborne is possible, therefore that safety factor alone was not considered. Will I attend this year's festival? No, and I can't even bear to go downtown while the carnival and parade and boat parade will occur, until it is all over and everyone leaves town. How long will it be before I can attend a Venetian Festival again? In my heart of hearts, I can say, Never. It was a happy time made unhappy for me, and I'm sure the others who were injured also know what I mean when I make that statement. Those of us who were injured and have to live with our loss deserve to be compensated. Personally, I would rather go back to the way I was that day, before about 10 p.m. on the night the fireworks were fired off, before the shrapnel flew out into the crowd and took so much joy from my life. It was something that never should have happened, had those in charge been responsible for the public's safety.

Actions of a few tarnished boat parade for participants

Editor: Congratulations to all of those involved in the planning of this year's Venetian Festival Boat Parade! We appreciate the hard work that goes into such an event and feel, overall, it was a great success. The caliber of the participants seems to get better each year. Unfortunately, there were a select few who felt they had to inject their own 'spin' to the activities. I am referring to those individuals aboard the vessel ANNEX III, docked in Round Lake. Youngsters aboard the vessel threw water balloons at the participating boats, of which ours was one, while 'responsible' adults stood by and watched. While it is obvious to most why this is reckless behavior — water and electricity do not mix real well folks — all of the boats had decorative lights and electronics on them. It is not really an easy or quick task to decorate these boats, but it is done for the fun of it all and to entertain the thousands who attend Venetian Festival each year. To have something like this happen is despicable.

Guardian program for elderly to change in future

By Jamie MacMillan
For close to 20 years, Boyne City resident Oral Sutliff has acted as a guardian for various people who, because of age or other incapacitations, could not perform certain daily tasks.

Sutliff said that throughout those experiences he's bought groceries, balanced check books, signed legal papers and helped apply for Medicaid funds for his clients.

At one point, Sutliff was an active guardian for 13 people. Some of those people were friends or relatives who contacted him privately. With the others, though, he came to be their guardian through county social service programs.

Now, Sutliff acts as guardian for two people, one of whom he knew previously, and the other through social services.

As the county looks to draft its 1999 budget, the guardianship program could face some serious re-vamping.

Questions over how the county's "Guardians of Last Resort" program will be funded could lead to the creation of a new county job when county officials draft next year's budget.

According to Terry Salacina, director of Charlevoix and Emmet county's Family Independent Agency, 56 people are currently in the care of 12 guardians in the two-county area.

Historically, the FIA has provided through its adult services branch a small monthly stipend to persons serving as guardians.

The stipend money comes from the larger sum of money each county pays to the FIA agency.

According to Salacina, a little more than $40,000 of the agency's $10 million budget comes from county appropriated funds. Emmet County pays the agency $17,000 while Charlevoix County gives over $23,500, according to Salacina.

From those monies, $14,000 is put in a line item to help reimburse the dozen or so public guardians in the two-county area.

With county officials beginning to work on next year's budget, Salacina informed both county boards not to worry about paying for the guardianship program because his agency can no longer administer the program.

Basically, the FIA is handcuffed by technological advancements meant to streamline payments and improve efficiency.

With newly automated payment systems, Salacina said every payment needs to be thoroughly documented and because of "confidentiality issues," guardianship payments cannot be properly documented.

He said he's more than willing to continue bending the rules, but faced with being "beat up by an audit," doesn't want to continue when the next fiscal year begins on Jan. 2, 1999.

"I absolutely want to support this program," he said, "I just think this is a good time to rethink how we do this," Salacina said.

Next month, a meeting of the minds between county commissioners, Salacina and Probate Judge Frederick R. Mulhauser will hash out the future of the program.

The future might be a paid county position of public guardian, where one person would handle all guardianship chores for the entire area.

Mulhauser's involvement is due to the fact that such a new position would be an arm of the probate division of the two-county judicial system. Right now, any court matters involving a guardianship are reviewed in Mulhauser's probate courtroom.

In a letter to both county board chairmen, Mulhauser initially opposed the creation of such a position because it would reflect a conflict of interest.

The court system provides a forum to review guardianship business and settle any disputes. As a result, he said it would not be "ethically appropriate" to have a guardian on staff.

Hiring a staff guardian would not mean sailing into uncharted waters. Alpena County, for example, has had such a position since 1981.

According to James O'Brien, Alpena County public guardian, his office handles about 100 clients a year.

His position is part time with an annual salary of $12,000 with pension and health benefits. The remainder of his office expenses are covered through guardianship fees paid by the client.

As the department has grown, O'Brien noted they've added four staff members whose job is to visit clients at least once a month at their residence. Those staffers get paid $25 a month per client.

A staff guardian, O'Brien said, gives immediate accountability to the job, continuity in care and professional help weaving through the constant changes in the Medicaid system.

WATCH opposes landfill expansion

Dear Editor:

I have in hand a letter dated June 8, 1998, received from a Mr. Jeff Poole, Manager of Waste Management of Northern Michigan. The referenced letter expresses sincere thanks to me for an alleged letter of support of mine, dated September, 1997. It had supposedly been written to the Charlevoix County Commissioners, offering my support of Waste Management's application for an increase of 12 acres to the Eveline Township Cedar Ridge Landfill.

The letter then went on to state that the Charlevoix County Commissioners had received over 700 letters of support similar to mine supporting this landfill expansion. I find this disingenuous for the simple reason that I NEVER sent a letter of support to the Charlevoix County Commissioners. In fact, I doubt that the Commissioners ever received 700 such letters.

As a consequence of receiving this "thank you" letter, I appeared before the Charlevoix County Commissioners on July 8, 1998. I protested the unauthorized use of my signature by Waste Management in support of a project to which I am vehemently opposed. I expressed my doubt that there were 700 letters written in the first place, and I requested that my letter be retracted.

In the discussion which followed, it was revealed that the Charlevoix County Commissioners seem to have no record of these letters and cannot produce the 700 letters. They referred the matter to commissioner Shirley Roloff, a known supporter of the landfill expansion. She claimed that she thought she no longer had these letters in her possession, that she threw them out. This casts strong suspicion on whether 700 letters ever existed.

The same day, I approached Don Pizzurro at Waste Management's offices. He denied ever having been given these letters or of having a list of who wrote these letters. This made me wonder how they are selecting the people to receive the thank you letters.

It seems to me that his whole project involves the use of "smoke and mirror" to confuse the issue and gain unauthorized support for the landfill expansion from innocent citizens, who were unaware that their signatures were being unlawfully used.

If you also oppose the landfill expansion, I suggest that you read the full page WATCH announcement and warning that will appear in the July 29 and Aug. 5 Charlevoix Courier, and in the July 30 and Aug. 6 Petoskey News-Review. There is a ballot at the bottom of the notice that gives you the opportunity to mail your authorized signature of protest of the expansion to WATCH.

Yours truly,
Howard Neilson

Republicans need strong candidate against Stupak

To the Editor:
I am supporting Michelle McManus for Congress in the Aug. 4 Republican primary election because she is the only GOP candidate who can beat Bart Stupak. Bob Carr won the Republican primary two years ago and ran a grossly inept campaign against Stupak. Stupak, who felt no competition from Carr, gave his excess of campaign money to his college buddy across the border in Wisconsin. Carr, therefore, cost the Republicans that seat too. Bob Carr was at a recent state GOP convention arrogantly bragging about how he received the most votes for the fewest dollars spent; an admission that he didn't even try to beat Stupak. During a debate against Stupak, Carr went on and on about the need for light-houses in Negaunee, an inland town. Bob Carr will not even try to win in November. Michelle McManus is really campaigning hard and deserves our Republican vote.

Sincerely,
Alan W. Yeardon

Wedding

Shari Marie Jones and Lewis Ingram Kline, both of Charlevoix, were married in an afternoon ceremony at the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix on June 20, 1998.

The bride is the daughter of Neil and Joanne Jones of Charlevoix. The groom is the son of Charlotte Kline of Charlevoix.

With 250 guests in attendance, the Rev. Larry Grooters performed a double ring ceremony at the altar decorated with white daisies and lilies, and coral and ivory candles in the 14-place candelabra.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore an ivory wedding gown that featured a unique crocheted silk ribbon bodice with a jewel neckline and short sleeves. The skirt had an empire waist with a layered chiffon skirt and a chapel-length train. She carried a bouquet of sonja roses, white lilies and daisies.

Theda Williams played traditional wedding songs on the organ. Matron of honor was Kerri Grunewald of Belleville, Mich.

Bridesmaids were Doretta Anderson, Kimberly Stevens, sister of the bride, Sharon Roberts, and Bethany Walters, sister of the bride. They wore crepe sheath gowns in coral with square necklines and chiffon overskirts with a tiny bow trim detail at the empire waist. They carried bouquets of sonja roses, white lilies and daisies wrapped with coral ribbon.

Flower girl was Katelyn Grunewald, Goddaughter of the bride. She wore an ivory, tea-length dress made of silk with a chiffon overlay.

Ring bearer was Logan Kline, nephew of the groom. Best man was E. Michael Fluke of Menominee, Mich. Groomsman were Ronald Stoneham Jr., Rodney Stevens, brother-in-law of the bride, Rick Kline brother of the groom and Neil Jones, father of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Kline

Ushers were Adam Kline and Trevor Kline, the groom's nephews. A reception was hosted at the Knights of Columbus Hall by the bride and groom. The buffet dinner was catered by Petoskey KFC. Host and hostess were Bob and Kelly Jones, brother and sister-in-law of the bride.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by Charlotte Kline the night before the wedding at Alexanders Restaurant. The couple took a wedding trip to St. Louis, Mo., where they went to a Cardinals/Tigers baseball game, then went to Nashville, Tenn. to Opryland and then to Mammoth Cave, Ky. They are making their home in Charlevoix, where the groom works for Hoskins Manufacturing and the bride is employed by Charlevoix Agency, Inc.

Captain retires from U.S. Navy

Captain David Heine will retire from the United States Navy on Friday, July 31, 1998 after a career spanning nearly three decades.

He is married to the former Darlene Cunningham of Charlevoix, the daughter of Clyde Cunningham and the late Jean Cunningham. Captain Heine is a 1968 graduate of Alma High School, and his parents, Gleason and Helen Heine, still reside in Alma. Captain Heine enlisted in 1969 to "see a bit more of the world," he served as a student and an instructor in the Nuclear Power Program and quickly attained the rank of Petty Officer Second Class. Captain Heine attended Miami University (Ohio) on a Navy Enlisted Scientific Education Program Scholarship and graduated in 1975 with a B.S. in Systems Analysis.

He was commissioned as an Ensign in March 1975 and received his Naval Flight Officer wings the following spring at Naval Air Station (NAS) Pensacola, Florida.

Captain Heine did indeed see the world. His naval career took him to both coasts of the United States, Europe, Egypt, the Far East, Kenya, and Australia. His first operational command was VS-22, a squadron of S-3A aircraft used primarily to detect and attack submarines, based at NAS Cecil Field, Florida. He deployed twice to the Mediterranean Sea aboard the USS SARATOGA and then completed a tour as an S-3A Weapon Systems Instructor. Subsequent tours of duty included a Carrier Air Wing staff at NAS Miramar, California; three Western Pacific/Indian Ocean deployments aboard the USS ENTERPRISE; shore duty in Washington, D.C. and on the staff of Commander, Naval Air Force, U.S. Pacific Fleet; command of VS-35; and Operations Officer aboard the USS CARL VINSON. Captain Heine's last tour came at a time of heightened tensions in the Persian Gulf. He served as the Assistant Chief of Staff for Operations, Carrier Group SEVEN, aboard the USS NIMITZ and completed a round-the-world deployment in March.

Captain Heine's military awards include the Legion of Merit, Meritorious Service Medal (two awards), and Navy Commendation Medal (three awards). He and Darlene live in Chula Vista, Calif. with their daughters, Brianna and Jennifer.

Bergmann Center receives donation from K of C

Ken Brill, executive director of the Bergmann Center, accepts a donation of nearly $1,000 from Al Reynolds of the Knights of Columbus Council 6314 in Boyne City. With them is Suzanne Muma of the Bergmann Center, who will be replacing Brill as executive director this August when he retires. The money was raised during their Tootsie Roll fund-raising drive, and will be used for client activities at the Bergmann Center. Muma anticipates they will use some of the money to go to the county fair in August.

Obituaries

Elizabeth 'Betsy' Lounsbury Downton

Elizabeth "Betsy" Lounsbury Downton, 79, died July 21, 1998, at home in La Grange, Ill., following a brave fight with cancer.

A memorial service was held at 11 a.m. Saturday, July 25, at Highlands Presbyterian Church in La Grange. Interment was in the church memorial garden.

Betsy was born Feb. 2, 1919, the daughter of the late Dr. B.F. and Elizabeth Lounsbury. She grew up and attended school in Oak Park and graduated from the University of Wisconsin, where on one occasion she was Queen of the Winter Festival.

Always active in church affairs, she met her husband, Royal, when, in her role as president of the Young Adults group at the Methodist church in Oak Park, she greeted him at the door on his first visit. Betsy and Roy recently celebrated their 52nd wedding anniversary.

Betsy was compassionate and concerned, feeling a strong obligation to do her part. The word "no" was not part of her vocabulary when requests were made for her time, talents and money. One did not stay home when tired, sick or overextended. As a result, her activities were extensive, many continuing into her retirement years.

She is survived by her husband, Royal C. Downton; her children, Elizabeth A. of Roslindale, Mass., and the Rev. David (Carolyn) Downton, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in East Jordan; one grandchild, Christina; brother, Richard Lounsbury of Oroville, Calif.; sister, Elinor (William R., M.D.) Roach, of Oak Park, Ill.; and many nieces, nephews and cousins.

She was preceded in death by a brother, Dr. B.F. Lounsbury Jr. of River Forest and Charlevoix.

Mrs. Downton was active in church, school and many inner city organizations. She was an avid gardener and loved music and animals.

Above all, Betsy was a loyal and devoted wife and a loving mother to two wonderful children. She enjoyed studying music and playing the piano, gardening, reading, enjoying nature and spoiling her two beautiful cats, without which she could not get through the day.

Memorial contributions may be directed to the church.

Guitarist draws large audience at church concert series

Next in series is opera singer

In 1974 Ken Bier, just 14 years old and struggling with all the problems and trials teens are heir to, came north to Charlevoix to visit his brother Ray and his older sisters Karen and Jo Anne. As he was leaving to go back to his downstate home, Rick Beemon, who had taught Ken six basic chords on a beat-up, $35 Harmony guitar, put the old guitar in Ken's hands.

"Here, see what you can do with it," Beemon told him.

That year Ken went through three guitars and three guitar teachers. Throughout his high school years he practiced between three and eight hours a day. At Grand Valley State University, he studied with world-class artist Guillermo Fierens and earned a degree with a major in guitar. Then he met and married his musician wife, Leslie. Sunday afternoon Ken and Leslie were back in Charlevoix to offer a concert of classical guitar, flute and voice. The concert included Bach, Mozart, Chopin and Faure.

Ken's sensitive interpretation, precise technique, his ability to master the most difficult literature and the ease with which he and Leslie performed vocal and flute-guitar duets made the concert at the First Congregational United Church of Christ a delight. The music committee at the church will be presenting Jane Sleder, Mezzo Soprano, with the Charlevoix Mens' Glee Club, who will perform The Brahms Alto Rhapsody at 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 4. Concerts are open to the public. The church is located at the corner of State Street and Park Avenue.

Musical ministry to perform at First Baptist Church

The Craig Walker Musical Ministry will be performing at the First Baptist Church on M-66 at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 9.

Walker is from Southgate, Mich., and is with the Billy Walker Evangelical Church. This is Walker's second visit to the First Baptist Church in Charlevoix. They enjoyed his musical ministry so much last year that the congregation asked for his return. For more information, call 547-4121.

DEDICATED TO AFFIRMING LIFE BY PROVIDING COMPASSIONATE CARE

Hospice...It's Not
What You Think

Q: When should a decision about entering a hospice program be made and who should make it?

At any time during a life-limiting illness, it is appropriate to discuss all of the patient's care options including hospice. Understandably, most people are uncomfortable with the idea of stopping an all out effort to beat the disease. Hospice staff members are highly sensitive to these concerns and are always available to discuss them with the patient and family.

Q: Should I wait for our physician to raise the possibility of hospice or should I raise it first?

The patient and family should feel free to discuss hospice care at any time with their physician, other healthcare professionals, clergy or friends.

Q: Can a hospice patient who shows signs of recovery be returned to regular treatment?

Certainly. If the patient's condition improves and the disease seems to be in remission, the patient can be discharged from hospice and return to aggressive therapy or go on about his or her daily life.

Q: Does hospice serve only cancer patients?

Cancer is not the only condition for which hospice care would be appropriate. Other illnesses or conditions include: Alzheimer's and Parkinson's; neurologic, respiratory and cardiac diseases; infectious and parasitic diseases; and other life-limiting illnesses that without medical intervention would run their course in six months or less.

Q: What support is available for bereavement and grief recovery?

Caring for the body, mind and spirit of the individual is an integral part of hospice's care philosophy. Bereavement support groups explore normal grief reaction, remembering the person who has died. The groups also provide methods for coping with anger, sadness or guilt, and build strengths to deal with future issues. By providing weekly support groups where participants can freely express their feelings in a safe environment, hospice can help prevent undesirable behaviors, which may surface later in life.

as a result of unresolved grief issues. Hospice also equips children with coping skills necessary to deal with grief in positive and affirming ways.

Top O' Michigan helps small businesses

In a special check presentation, government officials handed over $600,000 in federal rural development loan funds this week to Top O' Michigan Electric Company President Ed Doss that will help create new permanent jobs in northern Michigan.

Top O' Michigan can now begin taking applications from area small businesses interested in the additional financing. Each borrower can receive up to $50,000 to help finance business expansions or start-ups that will create or retain local jobs.

The low-interest loan from the U.S. Department of Agriculture will be matched with $150,000 from Top O' Michigan to create a revolving loan fund to spur rural economic development in its service territory which includes Charlevoix, Emmet, Antrim, Otsego, Kalkaska and Crawford counties as well as parts of Cheboygan, Montmorency, Misisaukee and Oscoda counties.

It will provide 'gap financing' for small businesses unable to line up their total funding from private financial sources.

The revolving loan fund will enable Top O' Michigan to re-lend low-interest money to aspiring

LANDFILL ENDANGERS LAKE CHARLEVOIX

Dear Concerned Citizens,

Many of you are no doubt aware of the troubling situation at the Cedar Ridge Landfill which is located in Charlevoix County's Eveline Township just off Sequanota Road. Waste Management is now in the process of once again attempting to site new landfill area at the Cedar Ridge Landfill. There has been repeated opposition from the Eveline Township Board and many concerned citizens. In addition, the Charlevoix County Planning Commission has turned down the expansion request submitted by Waste Management, the current owner of Cedar Ridge. Waste Management, however, is planning an appeal to the Department of Environmental Quality.

Our main point of concern is the fact that Cedar Ridge is located only eight-tenths of a mile from Lake Charlevoix. Two creeks and a drainage ditch are part of the surface water near Cedar Ridge that enters Lake Charlevoix. The drainage ditch enters in the Iron-ton-Sequanota area, Sear Creek enters just south of Holy Island, and Monroe Creek enters at beautiful Elm Pointe Park in East Jordan. We are extremely concerned about the possibility that any form of contamination from this 30-year-old landfill could make its way into Lake Charlevoix waters, now, or in the future.

WATCH (Water and Air Team for Charlevoix), and the residents of Charlevoix County, have already seen the insidious nature of water contamination. Consider the City of Charlevoix's traumatic and costly experience with the industrial solvent trichloroethylene (TCE), which was discovered in ground water supplies in the 1980's.

This time, let's not wait for the problem to happen. Let's PREVENT it from happening.

At present, Cedar Ridge has capacity for three more years of waste disposal. There are other northern Michigan landfills with much greater capacity that are located in much less environmentally sensitive areas. Also, WATCH continues to promote recycling as a key element of solid waste management.

With your support, WATCH will continue to oppose the expansion of the Cedar Ridge Landfill and to work with Charlevoix County to find a more environmentally responsible solution for solid waste disposal. Certainly, there are better places for landfill activity than eight-tenths of a mile from one of Michigan's most beautiful lakes.

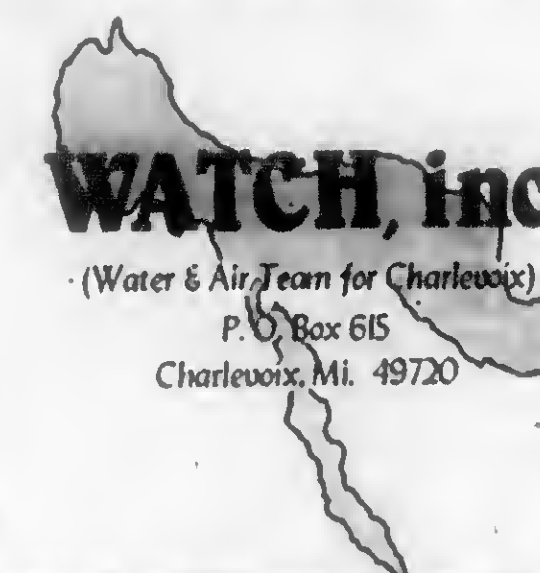

One of WATCH's strengths over its 15-year history has been its proactive approach to protecting air and water quality in Charlevoix County. Whether dealing with a dust problem, a waste tire problem, or a landfill problem, WATCH is consistently on the front-line, not the sideline, working with all parties to seek constructive solutions.

If you are in agreement with our position on the Cedar Ridge Landfill, please sign the form below and-mail it to this address:

WATCH, Inc.
P.O. Box 615
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

These signatures will be presented to state and local officials and the Department of Environmental Quality.

I/We (the undersigned), would like to express my/our opposition to any type of expansion to the Cedar Ridge Landfill in Charlevoix County.

Touch of Spring brings fresh flowers to town

By Jamie MacMillan

A catch phrase once used when she first began in the business has now become the name of Lois Williams' new floral business in Captain's Corner Shopping Center.

A Touch of Spring opened earlier this month, and Williams said the hardest part of opening was coming up with a name for her business.

"I laid awake at nights trying to come up with something," she said.

As a former employee at both Frank's Flowers and Charlevoix Floral, she recalled people stopping in during the long winter months just for a pick-me-up.

Williams would always tell them to come back anytime because there is always a touch of spring inside a flower shop.

With that memory in place, her store was named and Williams' began a business that was always in her dreams since she began at Frank's Floral upon graduating from Charlevoix High School.

Williams said she's always flirted with the idea of owning her own store, but only now that her sons are grown and she doesn't have to always "do the mom thing" did she become more serious about the venture.

"I may be the new kid on the block, but I'm not a rookie," she said of her 20 years of experience in the field.

Inside, her store runs the gamut of floral arrangements from daisies, roses, tulips and sunflowers. Other merchandise includes wreaths, wedding, prom and funeral designs, fruit and candy baskets and balloon bouquets.

She imports fresh flowers on a daily basis and three times a week receives new batches of plants. Special orders can be done within a week's time for arrangements she might not have on display.

Area dentist earns certification for orthodontia

The American Board of Orthodontics is pleased to announce that Dr. Margaret M. Brazones, DDS, MS, achieved certification by the board in February, 1998 and is now a Diplomate. This is the only certifying board recognized by the Council on Dental Education of the American Dental Association for the specialty of orthodontics. Certification as a Diplomate signifies a unique achievement as there are only 1,926 certified diplomate orthodontists throughout the world. The certification process is voluntary and signifies an extensive review of the applicant's basic education as well as an intensive assessment of clinical experience. Brazones is also a member of the American Association of Orthodontists, Michigan Society of Orthodontists, American Association of Women Dentists, American Dental Association and Michigan Dental Association.

Brazones received her dental degree from Loyola University School of Dentistry and her Masters of Science in Orthodontics degree from the University of Illinois School of Dentistry. She has been practicing in the Petoskey area for 13 years. She lives in Petoskey with her husband, Dr.

Dr. Brazones

Howard Beck, and their 4 children.

Brazones extends her thanks to all her patients for allowing her to be a part of their dental health program and to all the referring dentists for recognizing her efforts. She continues to welcome new patients and referrals.

custom designing silk flower arrangements. She said that silk flowers have become more popular because it minimizes upkeep. Vacations and summer residents, for example, aren't around their homes enough to make sure live plants stay blooming.

"People sometimes can be so busy that they don't have time to take care of plants," she said. "The silk flowers are so real-looking these days."

In addition to flowers and plants, the store displays antiques from Don and Lorraine Kelly's collection.

Williams said it's been fun to work her floral arrangements around the antique displays.

A Touch of Spring is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The phone number is 237-5647.

Williams opened on July 6, but will be hosting an official grand opening this Friday, July 31 and Saturday, Aug. 1. Gifts, refreshments and raffle drawings for fresh flower arrangements will be offered.

Williams has lived in Charlevoix for 31 years and she and her husband Randy have two children, Randy, 24, and Trevor, 21.

Township to build bike path, buy another fire truck

By Jamie MacMillan

A year after spending $74,000 more than they had, Charlevoix Township has approved a budget in excess of $1.3 million with the bulk of this year's spending going to a new bike path and fire truck.

The township outspent incoming revenues last year due to a $320,000 loan from the general funds to the township's water funds, as the township was getting its new water tower near Shanahan Fields up and running.

This year, the township expects to recoup that money and, along with $297,000 in property taxes, it will give the township most of its expected $733,000 in total revenue for this fiscal year.

Other revenue sources include $28,750 for fire protection, $30,000 from property tax administrative fees, $50,000 from state revenue sharing and $6,800 from summer tax collection.

This year's $1.3 million budget combines the expected revenue flow with the $651,000 the township currently has in its general funds.

Last year, the township budgeted over $1.1 million for the year, but only spent $545,112. Still it outpaced incoming revenues because of the loan to the water fund.

After spending over $170,000 on township board and employees' wages, the township has two spending priorities for this year.

In the works is the creation of a

Charlevoix Township plans to add a pumper truck to their fleet of fire trucks, which will allow them to maintain their insurance rating. Along with the fire truck, the township has budgeted money to build a bike path on Waller Road. (Photo by Jamie MacMillan) bike path that stretches along both sides of Waller Road from Mt. McSaubia to U.S. 31.

Township supervisor Oscar Stroud said the project was held up in the past as township and county road commission officials attempted to determine the best way to construct the path.

After flirting with a trail that would be eight feet in width, but only run on the north side of Waller Road, the township approved a final plan during its last regular session.

The trail will run on both sides of the road, be four feet in width and will be blacktopped.

The township expects costs of the project to be between $45,000-

$55,000, and township clerk Carol Martin noted that a tentative agreement has been reached with Medusa Cement Co. to pay $25,000 over five years to help cover costs.

Stroud said he would like to get the project started within the next month.

The township also has $250,000 budgeted for the purchase of a new fire truck.

According to township fire chief Curt Thompson, four bids for a new pumper with the capacity to move 1,250 gallons a minute have been turned into the township. The bids are between $220-230,000.

The push for a new truck is motivated by the department's desire to maintain its current insurance liability rating of seven. Thompson explained that the Insurance Servers Organization will only include vehicles that are less than 20 years old in their rating process.

Currently, the township has seven vehicles, two of which are pumpers. The oldest of the two was bought in 1979 while the other was purchased in 1986, Thompson said.

Without an updated pumper, both the township's rating and insurance premiums could rise.

Thompson also said a new pumper would enable the department to keep a pumper at both of its fire stations.

When the township finally decides which vehicle to purchase, it will take about six months for the new truck to arrive.

The old pumper will fall into a back-up role if it's not sold.

"We sold the last one we replaced, so we'll see what happens," Stroud said.

The township board next meets at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 10 at the township hall at 12491 Waller Road.

Neighbor will share airport access

He purchased the 5.5 acre piece of property next to the airport and said his hangar could store about six small jets.

In the future, he said he may develop retail stores on the land.

In other action, council approved two items which will further move along development projects within the city limits.

First, council granted a right-of-way license to Whitney's Oyster Bar for the placement of two lights on the rear of the building.

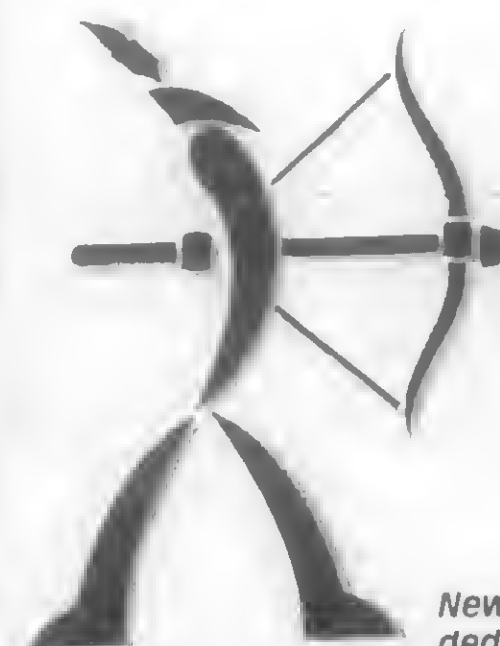

Whitney's, which recently reopened after last September's fire destroyed their building, had a similar arrangement for the lights prior to the fire. The lights give the Erber parking lot its only light at night.

Council also approved final plans for the expansion at the Hillcrest apartment complex at 305 W. Hurlbut.

The complex will add 10 one-bedroom apartments, an owner's residence, garage, and 20 parking spaces in the back of the building.

In March, the zoning board of appeals approved an eight foot side yard variance for the project while in May city council approved an initial development plan. The item reappeared at council's last meeting because of some slight modifications to the plan.

Festival isn't over until the last ball is slammed

The Venetian weekend was not completed until Sunday evening when the 3 on 3 Summer Slam basketball tournament crowned its champions.

Moving the sixth annual event, which benefits the St. Mary's school, to Venetian weekend helped boost the number of applicants, according to event coordinator Dan Buday.

Sixty-six teams entered the double elimination tournament, and Buday said the event was filled to capacity as he had to turn away at least 10 last-minute entrants.

Another change in this year's competition was a change of venue to East Park in front of the U.S.C.G. Cutter Acacia. Usually held in the streets adjacent to St. Mary's school, this year's event was marked by cool breezes from the Round Lake as well as the sounds of blues bands echoing from Odmark Pavilion.

"The competition was still hot, but it was great to have those cool breezes," Buday said. "We did, though, lose a few balls into the water."

The event was divided into eleven divisions with the following teams taking home top honors:

Boys' Division 1, ages 10-12: Spuds, with Ezra Bakker, Matthew Nitchman, Michael Wojan and Chris Wyniawskyj.

Boys' Division 2, ages 10-11: BC Four, with Reed Ameel, Grant Ameel, Caleb Helsley and Drew Mittig.

Girls ages 11-12: Move It or Lose It, with Brooke Blanchard, Elizabeth Shephard, Kristy Skippergosh and Rachel Wyniawskyj.

Flanagan, Damian Lackhart, Colt McDowell and Nate Miller.

Men's Division 2, ages 21 and over: K & D Warriors, with Bud Klooster, George McClellan, Kevin Swanson and Kraig Swanson.

Men's Division 3, ages 16-18: HYPE, with Colin Carr, Matt Dennis, Dominic McClellan and Matt McClellan.

Women's Division 1, ages 16 and over: Cutie Pies, with Katie Conlan, Liz Grunch, Liz Kelly and Ann Marie Terryberry.

Young Men's Division 1, ages

13-15: Mavericks, with Scott Parrish, Ryan Rafacz, Nick Schwein and Jim Shephard.

Young Men's Division 2, ages 12-13: Three Men and a Little Lady, with Todd Carey, Jamie Left, Brian May and Nate Teuschler.

Antrim county teams take lead in golf league

Midway through its inaugural season, the standings of the Northwest Michigan Traveling Golf League have a definite Antrim County look.

A-Ga-Ming's latest win, a 5-1 triumph over Dunmaglas, charged the club into the league's top spot with a 3-1-1 record.

After dropping the season's first match, A-Ga-Ming has now reeled off four weeks of unbeaten play.

On its heels, though, is its county neighbor Antrim Dells, which boasts a 3-2 record after last week's 5-1 win over the Charlevoix Country Club.

The clubs will be battling for the top spot today, Wednesday, in individual match play at the Charlevoix Country Club. Tee-off is at 1:30 p.m.

In today's other match, the Charlevoix Country Club, 2-3, will battle Dunmaglas, 1-3-1, at 2 p.m.

Next week the league moves to Dunmaglas at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 5. In scramble format, A-Ga-Ming will battle the Charlevoix Country Club while Dunmaglas will square off against Antrim Dells.

Sheriff warns about illegal telephone "Slamming"

"Slamming" is the illegal practice of changing a customer's telephone service without their consent. Sheriff George T. Lasater would like to make sure that the citizens of Charlevoix County, and especially the senior citizens of the county are aware of the practice, as they are the most preyed upon.

Here are some tips on how to avoid being "Slammed"

- Never sign anything without reading it carefully. Don't sign "cash bonus" checks or respond to contest offers without reading the fine print. You may be changing telephone companies and not knowing it.

- If you receive a phone call about long distance or toll service, ask questions about which service they're offering and at what rates. Find out what you're paying now, and compare.

- If you haven't switched services but receive a letter or a postcard verifying a switch, notify the sender that you did not authorize the charge.

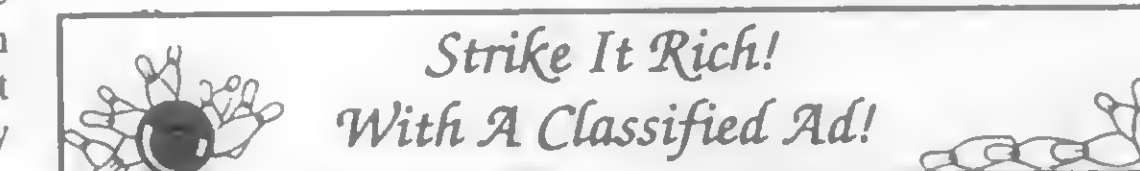

- Read your phone bill carefully every month. If you see any unfamiliar names or charges you can't identify, call the company issuing the charges or your local phone company.

- If you don't know who carries your long distance, here is a fast way to find out: To check your long distance provider, dial 1, plus (700) 555-4141. A recorded message will tell you who carries calls from the number you're calling from.

- If you are "Slammed:"
- Call your local phone provider at the customer service number on your bill to have your service switched back.

- Call the company that "Slammed" you and ask for proof that you authorized a switch. Tell them you'll only pay the charges your preferred carrier would have charged.

- You can also call the company you were switched from, tell them you were "Slammed" and ask them to be reconnected. There should be no charge to reconnect.

Former Charlevoix soccer player trains in The Gambia

Noel Kammermann, a 1996 Charlevoix High School graduate, recently spent six weeks in The Gambia, Africa, just off the Atlantic coast of the continent. Kammermann will be a junior at Wabash University this fall where he is on the soccer team. In Gambia, he trained with one of the nation's top club teams. This is Kammermann's story of his trip.)

By Noel Kammermann

There was a real change in atmosphere the minute that Ben Robinson of Indianapolis, Ind., Scott Schroeder of Evansville, Ind. and I stepped into the international terminal of Air Afrique at JFK Airport. We were sitting around, waiting to board, and I sneezed. Usually, in most parts of the U.S. and especially in New York, people would rather not talk to you if they have the choice, but this was completely different from any other part of the U.S. A black man with an accent spoke to me all the way from the other side of the waiting area and said, "Bless you." It was genuine acts of kindness like this that made my trip to The Gambia in West Africa so memorable.

Ben, Scott and I obtained this opportunity to travel abroad from our soccer coach at Wabash College in Indiana. Coach Alieu Fye was once a citizen of The Gambia and had many relatives still living there. So the three of us were given free room and board by Fye's nephew, Modou Musa and his wife, Ndey. The only thing that we had to arrange on our own were plane tickets. The three of us stayed in The Gambia from May 10 until June 21.

Throughout our stay in Africa, we trained every day with The Hawks Football Club of Banjul (the nation's capital) under the former national team coach Sang Ndong (1992-1995) who is still known as the best coach in The Gambia. The game of soccer, or football (as everyone else in the world calls it), is played very differently in The Gambia than how we play it here in the U.S. The people here in the U.S. have the best equipment and grounds to play with and practice with, whereas those in The Gambia have very poor equipment and training grounds. The field on which we practiced on every day in The Gambia was uneven, sandy, and covered in straw. Because their grounds are in such poor condition, the Gambians would play the ball more in the air than on the ground. The Gambians also had greater concentration on trapping the ball at their feet than Americans do. This difference between our style of play and theirs made it difficult for the three of us to play with the skilled Gambians at first. After a few weeks, our individual styles adapted to theirs and we were able to play more comfortably with them.

The lack of decent training grounds and equipment doesn't bother the Gambians. Although the people have very few nice things in general, it bothers none of them. They are happy with what they have and make the most of what they have. A friend of mine who made the same trip last year gave me a pair of soccer cleats that had the toes completely ripped out to take over and give to someone. I gave them away to a young player; he had the cleats stitched and patched with pieces of leather and ready to play the very next day.

Here in the U.S., a soccer parent would have thrown those cleats away and bought their kid a brand new pair for $80.

The force behind the trip was soccer, but the goal of our trip was simply to go and experience a third world country. For the first couple of weeks, Ben, Scott and I were shocked at the world which we were visiting. Soon, we became very comfortable with the people and their customs and we began to enjoy our new friends.

If I could have another opportunity to travel back to The Gambia, I would take it in a heartbeat. The friends I made and values I learned there I will never forget.

Clockwise, from top left: Noel Kammermann and his new friend Alieu Fye smile during a free moment. Alieu is the son of Pap Fye, who coaches Kammermann's soccer team at the University of Wabash.

Despite being told that the reptiles were somewhat domesticated, Kammermann remains skeptical as he pets the hefty crocodile.

Summer gang activity

Kids at the Belvedere Club enjoy their summers by forming "gangs" and participating in recreational activities. New to the list of things to do are swim lessons at the Charlevoix Community Pool. For volunteer swim instructor Joan Nelson (far right), the experience comes with a blast of nostalgia. Nelson was a lifeguard at the Belvedere Club 34 years ago. She is shown here with (front, from Fun, educational activities, entertainment, and hands-on demonstrations are popular attractions of Lake Expo and this year's schedule is no exception. Participants can try their hand at the ancient art of fish-printing, watch an exciting kayak demonstration, and take a naturalist-led boat tour of Little Traverse Bay aboard the Pointer. Kids will have the opportunity to experience a variety of aquatic critters such as snakes, frogs, and insects. And don't forget to bring old crayons to recycle into a new robot crayon.

An exciting Rubber Duck Race will take place on the Bear River, allowing participants the chance to win a first prize of $500, with additional second and third prizes.

The Watershed Council hosted its first Lake Expo event in 1984 and over the years it has grown into a cherished summer attraction. A wonderful celebration of lakes, rivers, wetlands, and ground water that make northern Michigan special. Lake Expo has activities and fun for all ages.

To kick off the celebration, the Watershed Council will host an evening concert performance at 7 p.m. on Friday, July 31 at the Petoskey Middle School by the Traverse City group Song of the Lakes.

Co-sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council, the concert will enrich Lake Expo activities through a colorful presentation of ethnic maritime folk music.

Tickets are $10 and can be purchased at the Virginia M. McCune Community Arts Center in downtown Petoskey or at the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council office, on Powell Road, off M-119. Children 10 years old and younger are admitted free. Call 347-4337 or 347-1181 for ticket information.

Song of the Lakes will also be performing at Lake Expo on the waterfront beginning at 11:15 a.m. and 1:15 p.m.

Saturday's Lake Expo activities are free and open to the public. So bring your family and come on down to the waterfront. For additional information, call the Watershed Council at 347-1181.

SCRAPBOOK

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, July 29, 1998 — PAGE 27

Water events were prominently featured in old Venetian festivals

Compiled by Cynthia Postmus, with assistance from the Charlevoix Public Library.

WATER CARNIVAL A SUCCESSFUL EVENT

Robert Bergman Winner of Feature 1/2-mile Swim; Forty Boats Entered in Venetian Boat Parade—City Packed to Overflow With Spectators Gathered to Witness Event (Charlevoix Courier, Wednesday, Aug. 3, 1938)

Perfect weather, a well conducted program and a large and appreciative audience combined Sunday to make the Charlevoix Marine Club's 4th annual water carnival the most successful event of its kind ever staged here.

The afternoon program of swimming and diving contests drew an entry far in excess of any previous year and the large crowd which witnessed these events was but a very small portion of the thousands who heard the evening's band concert and special attractions and witnessed a Venetian boat parade which drew the unreserved praise of everyone.

The many points from which contestants entered swimming races gave an indication of the interest in water sports. Robert Bergman outdistanced a field of a dozen contestants to win for the third time the 1/2-mile swim, feature event of the program. He was winner in 1935 and 1936.

Spectators saw a champion in action when Willard Harris took the 1-mile canoe race. Harris, a counsellor at Camp Hay-O-Went-Ha on Torch Lake, is the champion of Canada Province of Saskatchewan. He paced the field by a wide margin.

Contest results: Canoe Race, senior men, 1 mile—1st, Willard Harris, Saskatchewan, Canada; 2nd, Robert King, Detroit.

Junior boys, 25-yard swim—1st Gene Bridge; 2nd, Donald North.

Balloon race, junior and senior men—1st, Glen Milligan, New York City; 2nd, Bill Eggleston, Bellaire.

Junior girls, 25-yard swim—1st, Marian Horween, Chicago.

Junior boys, 50-yard swim—1st, Earl Christiansen, Detroit; 2nd, Bud Kohler, Charlevoix.

Judges were Mrs. Tom Darling of Grand Rapids, and Al Rogers, Chicago, swimming instructor at Camp Hay-O-Went-Ha, who at the close of the program gave a most interesting diving exhibition of professional merit.

We're not sure why these girls were swimming in the channel, but maybe it was part of a water carnival activity. (Courier file photo)

The water program was in charge of Stewart Coleman. Assisting were members of the local WPA recreational staff. Don Campbell, commodore of the Charlevoix Marine Club, presented trophies to the winners. Dean Davenport announced the events and winners.

Johnny Kamona provided a special program treat with two dives off the highway swing bridge in late afternoon. The former Hawaiian swimming and diving champion was given a big hand.

The evening program opened with a concert in East Park by the city band. All available space was occupied by the crowd gathered for this program. Especially appreciated were the special numbers which included a selection of cantatas (sea songs) by a group from Camp Charlevoix and camp songs by girls from Camp Valhalla on Walloon Lake.

Boat Parade Colorful Surpassing in its grandeur and in the number of participants any previous event, the Venetian boat parade climaxed the day's activities.

The throng witnessing the spectacle, estimated as high as 10,000 persons, occupied every vantage point around Round Lake harbor. Parking space was occupied several blocks away from the lake in every direction. Many had driven from distant points to witness this event, which won the acclaim of being the most beautiful ever staged here.

The entry of forty boats, ranging from large cruisers and sailboats down to small launches, eclipsed that of any previous year. The boats, lighted with colored Japanese lanterns and made more beautiful by displays of colored flares, sparklers and Roman candles, entered Round Lake from Lake Charlevoix in three strings, circling the harbor several times. The scene was climaxed by an over-head display of fireworks.

Those entering boats were John Nordrum, Arthur Weststaff, Harry Lesser, Clarence Wood, Don Clothier two boats, Arthur P. Taylor, C.S. Webster, Ray Hamilton, Max Scamehorn, Charles and Will Belling, Allen Campbell, Ray Kipke, Don Herrick, W.H. Wallace, Bruce Withers, Henry Partridge, Bill Novak, Milo Todd two boats, Charles Heise, Culver & Beaudoin five boats, Fred Bergman, Howard Davenport, Don Campbell, Tim Whitley, Bernie Ward two boats, Norman Ance, Dr. F.W. Young, Ken Usher, Robert Gerrie and two others whose names were not obtained, entered boats from Boyne City.

School board hires new superintendent

John Sturock is the unanimous choice

By Jamie MacMillan

Charlevoix Schools' new superintendent, John Sturock, learned the life lesson of team work while in high school participating in an unusual sport.

Attending Allen Park High School, Sturock shunned more standard sports and was a member of the school's club rowing team.

The eight-man shell team practiced twice a day with the first session meeting at 4 a.m. Practice paid off as the squad won top prize in their division at the 1963 Canadian Henley, one of the rowing circuit's premier events.

More than the victories or the early morning discipline, it was the effect of creating a perfect team that helped shape Sturock as he advanced into a career in education.

If one member of the rowing shell splashes his oar in the water too early or too late, then the boat nudges off course, loses speed and, more than likely, won't win the race.

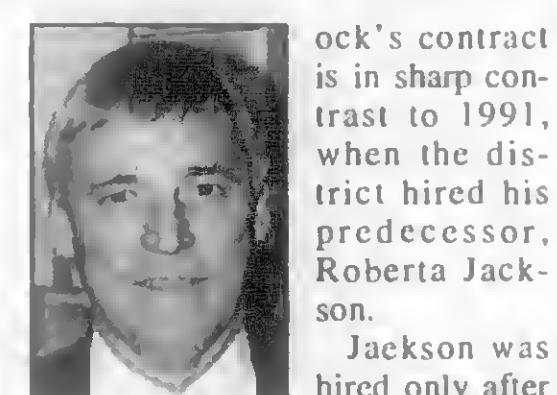

"Optimally everyone has to function as one," Sturock said of rowing strategy. "As I have evolved, that theory has become a part of what I do and how I operate."

Sturock, 54, will bring that teamwork philosophy to Charlevoix after signing a three-year contract worth close to $100,000 a year in salary and benefits to become the district's next superintendent.

Sturock has spent the past five school years as superintendent of Concord Schools, a K-12 system of 1,015 students in southern Michigan, west of Jackson.

"I never saw anything to change my mind that he was our top choice," board member Larry Levengood said after last week's visit to the Concord school district. "He's our selection."

The board's unanimous decision to both offer and agree upon Sturock's contract is in sharp contrast to 1991, when the district hired his predecessor, Roberta Jackson.

John Sturock

Sturock's contract is in sharp contrast to 1991, when the district hired his predecessor, Roberta Jackson.

Jackson was hired only after a narrow, 4-3 vote of approval by the board.

Jackson's contract reflected that dissension. Her supporters didn't have unanimous board strength needed to negotiate a contract that paid her $10,000 more than her predecessor and allowed her to take a total of two paid sick days a month and collect as much as 170 days of paid leave.

With the board in unanimous agreement this time, they entered contract negotiations looking to keep the starting salary of this new contract in line as well as setting forth a not-so-liberal sick day clause.

Sturock's base salary of $88,400 is $395 less than what Jackson would have made this year had she remained in Charlevoix. It is a big jump in pay, though, for Sturock.

Primary election results: Smith and Johnson win board races

In District Five of the Charlevoix County Commissioner race, challenger Don Smith ousted incumbent Joan Blanchard by a vote of 300 to 263. Smith, who lost his seat on the county board of commissioners to Blanchard in 1996, is trying to reclaim the position.

He will move on to the November general election as the Republican nominee, where he will face Democratic candidate Christa Maria.

In District Three, representing Boyne City, veteran board member Phil Johnson claimed the Republican nomination in a race against challenger Thomas Schraw by a vote of 121 to 102. Johnson has served on the county commission board for five, two-year terms, and is currently the chairman of the county board.

Don Smith

In the race for the 106th District State House of Representatives candidate positions, Phil Ludlow of Alpena will be the Republican nominee and Andy Neumann, also of Alpena, will be the Democratic nominee.

The candidates in the 106th race earned the following number of votes:
Jeff Schwalm, R — 376

Friday Brenner, R — 203
Betsy DeYoung, R — 2,354
Bill Filber, R — 294
Phil Ludlow, R — 3,414

School board negotiates contract with new superintendent

SCHOOL

who was paid $77,992 in base salary during his final year at Concord. At Concord, he had just received a 4 percent bonus for completing his doctorate.

Charlevoix Board of Education president Allen Telgenhof said Sturock's new salary figured in the board's advertised offer of $85,000 with the doctorate bonus Sturock received from Concord added to the figure.

The district will also pay into an annuity fund at an annual rate of 2.5 percent of the new superintendent's salary.

Sturock's benefits package includes health, dental, vision, life and disability insurance as well as $325 per month car allowance.

The contract reduced the number of sick days allowed to 14 a year while lowering the accumulated cap to 150 days. The contract also increases required work days from 227.5 to 235.

Sturock's contract with Concord paid annually into a retirement fund at 3.9 percent of his base salary. His deal with Charlevoix does not do that, but it does offer merit-based bonus pay.

Depending on how well he is evaluated by the board, Sturock could earn a yearly bonus of up to 3 percent of his salary.

Contract details aside, board members were more convinced than ever that Sturock was their man after a visit to Concord.

"It was incredible, not only did no one say a bad thing about him, but they were genuinely bummed out to be losing him," board member Scott Boss said. "It was obvious that he was up front with them that he would be applying for this job if it opened up."

After graduating from Eastern Michigan in 1971 with a bachelor's degree in secondary education, Sturock began a 12-year career as an industrial art/vocational education teacher at three different schools.

During his teaching days, he remained in athletics by coaching wrestling, track and baseball. His main coaching endeavor was a 13-year stint as head varsity football coach at Allen Park.

"You're in a position of greater responsibilities with different expectations," he said of his attraction to coaching. "What you do in those situations is out there on display for people to see."

Sturock's first full time administrative position came in 1983 when he became athletic director at Williamston High School. During that time he also had assistant principal duties.

In 1986, he was promoted to high school principal where he remained until the fall of 1993 when he became superintendent of schools at Concord.

During his tenure at Concord, he impressed both faculty and community with programs he initiated and his overall leadership style.

He revamped the district's technology with fiber optics and complete Internet access. His "School of Opportunity" for students who were struggling in traditional school settings graduated 18 students to college or the work force in its three years. Sturock said most of those pupils would not have completed high school otherwise.

Another program, "Common Planning Time," dismissed students early every other Wednesday to allow the faculty to get together as groups to form better methods of teaching and reaching students with their academic goals.

"To reach a common goal and vision everyone from the board to custodians to bus drivers has to play an important part in forming that vision," he said. "That is how schools stay on the cutting edge."

Sturock received recognition nationally when he was tapped three years ago to join the Annenberg Superintendent Fellowship.

Affiliated with Brown University, the group has only 24 members and meets three times a year to discuss new methods of education.

"I pinch myself a lot when I think of being involved with this group," he said.

So did the members of his new board of education. Boss said he was "psyched" to have someone in the Charlevoix district involved in such a "cutting edge group." Sturock's contract provides for paid leave to attend Annenberg conferences.

Sturock and his wife, Suzanne, have a son and daughter, both in their early 20s. When not running the school, he can be found doing home improvements, making stained glass, canoeing and camping in the northern woods. While he has lost touch with his rowing career, he tends to his athletic instinct as a hockey fan and daily distance jogs.

"I'm pleased and looking forward to this," he said of relocating to Charlevoix. "I sense that we have a tremendously dedicated staff that has a lot of pride in what they do and want to do an outstanding job for the students."

County receives grant for jail project

By Jamie MacMillan

Funding for the county's jail expansion project became clearer with the recent announcement of grant appropriations by the Michigan Department of Corrections.

Eighteen counties statewide, including Charlevoix, received a total of $6,293,880, according to Matthew Davis, a spokesman for the department.

Charlevoix County's take was $336,000, or about five percent of the total funding.

County jail administrator Babette Meggison was pleased with the amount, despite being less than the $480,000 the county had applied for.

"We could have received nothing, so we're pleased," she said.

Ingram and Monroe counties were the biggest beneficiaries, as each received $640,000 to expand their current facilities, Davis said.

Downstate, Oakland County will receive $600,000 while Macomb and Wayne counties will receive nothing.

In northern Michigan, Grand Traverse County will get $300,000. Cheboygan County will be boosted $360,000, but neighboring Emmet County, which had applied for $160,000, will receive nothing.

In all, 26 counties applied for funds.

The appropriations were doled out through the correction department's Local Facility Expansion Program, which exists to maintain better local jails in hope of diverting more felons away from the state prison system.

Davis noted that since 1990 the amount of convicted felons who enter the state prisons in comparison to local county jails has decreased from 33 percent to 24. He also noted that during that time the state has increased funding to local facilities from $3.5 million a year to $16.8 million during the 1997 fiscal year.

Despite the state funding, the expansion project is still expected to cost the county close to $3 million.

While bids have yet to be let out, early cost estimates provided to the state for the grant application show a $3,195,000 project.

Subtracting the actual amount received from the state would leave $2.85 million for the county to cover from its own coffers.

The county will pay for the project by dipping into two different cash funds, its general fund and internal service fund, county clerk Jane Brannon said.

As of June 30, 1998 the county's general fund balance was approximately $6.2 million. Brannon noted that after the fiscal year is complete and all expenditures are accounted, the general fund will be down to $3.5 million.

The internal service fund, which receives its revenue from the collection of delinquent taxes, has $2.5 million.

County officials will include expansion expenditures in their spending during the 1999 fiscal year, and ground breaking for the project is targeted for that spring.

operating costs and officials expect an increase of $90,000 in expenses once the larger facility is up and running.

The biggest increase in expenses is expected to come from the hiring of two additional employees, totaling $61,000.

Currently, the jail has nine employees and keep two on duty to run the facility. Meggison said with additional staff she will keep three

Raven Hill hosts annual Cardboard Boat Race

Amateur engineers and boaters alike will enjoy participating in Raven Hill Discovery Center's Sixth Annual Cardboard Boat Race. Kids of all ages can design, build and race a cardboard boat at 1 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 16 at Raven Hill's pond. The object is to stimulate creative design and encourage problem-solving and the use of higher-level thinking skills, as well as have fun.

Large waxed cardboard sheets for boat construction are available at Raven Hill for $5. Cardboard can be picked up during regular discovery center hours, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays, noon to 4 p.m. Saturdays, and 2-4 p.m. on Sundays.

Boats can also be built from cardboard not obtained from Raven Hill. There are no restrictions on the boats except that they must be built mostly of cardboard and a person must be able to ride on or in them to race them. Boats compete first in heats of two for speed and then for endurance in the demolition derby.

Registration for the race can be called in to Raven Hill at 536-3369. Prizes are awarded for ere-activity, participation, speed and overall endurance. Everyone is encouraged to come and compete or watch the races which start at 1 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 16. The museum will be open its regular hours from 2-4 p.m. after the race.

Up North Big Band plays at land conservancy celebration

The Charlevoix County Land Conservancy and the Up North Big Band invite the community to join them in a celebration of the new land conservancy at 7 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 13 at the conservancy office, 108 Park Ave., Charlevoix.

Marie Volovsek and her jitterbugging students will be "cutting a rug" on the Mason and Kammermann parking lot and will entice old and young to join in the fun. Bring a friend, a sprig of myrtle (for the rock garden, roots attached, please) and a blanket for relaxing under the apple tree (or just bring your good wishes and ideas). Lemonade and cookies will be supplied by the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy.

Meet old and new friends in the Charlevoix County conservation community while tapping your toes and snapping your fingers to the cool sounds of the Up North Big Band. In case of rain, the celebration will be moved to the First Congregational United Church of Christ on the corner of State Street and Park Avenue. At 8 p.m., the party will move downtown to East Park to enjoy the potpourri of traditional music offered by Dr. Goodhart's Home Remedy.

Small town ways of doing business are disappearing

LAURIE LOUNSBURY

Richard Farmer has been selling firewood to campers staying in Fisherman's Island State Park for as long as anyone can remember.

He keeps a pile of wood stacked along U.S. 31 south, near the park entrance road.

Next to the pile of wood he keeps a cash box.

This is not a giant, franchise operation that Richard Farmer is running. This is the rural practice of Do-It-Yourself shopping.

The shopping rules are unwritten, yet widely known: Help yourself to wood for your campfire, and leave your money in the cash box.

The rules just changed.

For the second time this year, Richard Farmer was robbed.

The first time he was robbed, someone scurried off with a load of firewood without paying.

Most recently, his cash box was stolen.

"I had it nailed to a big log, and they took the log and everything," Farmer said.

It's not that he lost tons of money in the deal.

Farmer never has more than $10 in the cash box, since he empties it every day.

More important than the money he lost is the way of life we're all losing.

As a person who grew up in a city, I've always marveled at the honesty system employed by area farmers.

Whether it's a Christmas tree farm, a pumpkin patch or an apple orchard, the procedure always touched me with its straightforward simplicity and trust.

Perched near a rural road, there would be a little hand-written sign directing shoppers to pick what they need and leave the money in a specified container.

"Pumpkins — $6 for small, $9 for big."

It was up to the shopper to determine whether or not their pumpkin was in the whopping, $9 size range, or was the diminutive, $6 variety.

The container was often nothing more than a coffee can with a removable plastic lid.

Shoppers with a $20 bill could reach in the Folger's can and make their own change. They could also easily relocate the contents of the can to their own wallets.

But no one did.

People respected the farm way of life and doing business. Buyers knew farmers couldn't afford to sit on their duffs and tend to the money box all day. They knew the farmers had better things to do.

If farmers continue to get ripped off, they will eventually abandon their practice of Do-It-Yourself shopping.

Richard Farmer reported his recent theft to the sheriff's department.

"They hushed me off like spit on a wall," Farmer said.

The theft of a roadside cash box probably doesn't rank very high on the crime wave scale, so I guess it's understandable that the sheriff's department didn't make much of the petty theft.

But those punks stole more than a few bucks in a roadside cash box.

They stole one farmer's trust in us.

In my book, that's grand theft and black-hearted larceny.

Summer Slam was an enjoyable success

Editor:

On behalf of St. Mary's, I would like to extend our sincere appreciation to all the volunteers whose efforts made for a highly successful 1998 Summer Slam 3-on-3 Basketball Tournament. Their time and effort during the busy Venetian week made this event a great way to conclude the Venetian festivities.

Thanks are also due the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and Jacqueline Merta, the Beaver Island Boat Company, The Charlevoix City Police Department and Chief Dennis Halverson, and the City of Charlevoix. The athletes who competed made the event more enjoyable with their good sportsmanship and exciting competition.

Also, thanks go out to all the bands who provided entertainment throughout the afternoon. Many people enjoyed the fun day in the park as a result.

Finally, I would like to thank the following businesses for their sponsorship and donations:

Pepsi, Glen's, Radio Shack, Buday's Sound Advice, Dr. Jay Balasz, D.D.S., Norb's Maintenance, Bridge Street Hardware, Currier Lawn Maintenance, and Charlevoix State Bank.

We look forward to seeing everyone again next year!

Sincerely,
Doug Buday,

Blood donors and helpers: Thank you

Editor:

A warm and heartfelt thanks to all of the people who helped with or participated in the Charlevoix Red Cross Blood drive held last Thursday. We collected 102 units of life saving blood, (three first-time donors!), and already this blood is hard at work, helping the sick and injured people we serve through this branch of Red Cross service.

With the cooperation of the high school who graciously offered their gym for our site, and with the help from the dedicated volunteers from the First Congregational Church who sponsored this drive, and the volunteers who helped with the refreshments and phone calls, this drive was a success. How wonderful it was to have a community who experienced a tragedy last summer extend a helping hand to those people who are currently waging their own battles to regain their health. Your community is to be commended for its care and compassion for others!

Sincerely,
Carolyn S. Matzinger

Money Raised for Camp Quality

Editor:

A special thank you to everyone who participated and helped make Camp Quality's fifth annual fundraising weekend a huge success!

We started out the weekend on Friday evening with the Boyne Meets Broadway-Meets Camp Quality dinner theatre being sold out!

Thank you to the Boyne City High School Drama Department students and the staff at One Water Street for a wonderful performance and dinner.

Everyone who participated in the Champagne and Hors d'oeuvre Yacht Cruise on Saturday must have had a great time because many of the yachts that left for the two-hour cruise returned five hours later. What fun!

The Boyne City Yacht Club had a tremendous turnout, with 19 sailboats racing in the Jim Kuhn Memorial Sail Boat Race.

Congratulations to Boh and Cindy Banner of Boyne City for winning the REMAX Hot Air Balloon Free Flight! Unfortunately the wind didn't cooperate for the flight Saturday night or Sunday morning. We'll get the balloon back here for you in August, Boh and Cindy.

Private collector's "Little Gems" are shared with public

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

Richard Manoogian, has summered in L'Arbre Croche for years, and with the encouragement of his good friend, Melissa Keiswetter — a former board member of the McCune Arts Center — Manoogian's "Little Gem" collection will be displayed for two months in the Exhibition Gallery of the arts center.

Not since the Egyptian mummy was loaned to the McCune Arts Center a number of years ago by the Detroit Institute of Art has our area had a show like this!

Hundreds of enthusiastic and well-dressed guests attended the posh, private opening of this world-class collection last Friday to sip wine and nibble on Stafford's delectable hors d'oeuvres. They heard host Richard Manoogian laughingly admit that he took these "Little Gems" right off the walls of his home in order for us to enjoy them here.

Thirty-four "Little Gems of American Paintings" are now on display in a newly decorated, air-conditioned gallery, including works by John Singer Sargent, George Innes, William Merritt Chase and other 19th century masters. A blend of summer visitors from all over the United States, along with local residents; murmured "How enchanting!" as they gazed at the landscape painters of the Hudson River School as well as the prime examples of American figure painters.

Manoogian is chairman and chief executive officer of Masco Corp., a leading manufacturer of building and home improvement products based in Taylor, Mich. I was told that this company achieved its original success through its innovative design of a single faucet for both hot and cold running water.

In the past, portions of the choice Manoogian Collection have been exhibited at major museums across the country, including the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C.

The show was organized by the Detroit Institutes of Art and made possible by support from the Michigan Council of the Arts and Cultural Affairs, the DIA Founders Society, and locally by the generosity of art patron, Paul Keiswetter, president of Petoskey Plastics Company.

An extra bonus for visitors is the accompanying sparkling underwater photography show by Ruth Petzold. She, too, is a summer visitor at L'Arbre Croche. It is fitting that the Petzold and Manoogian show are shown here together, since these two have been friends since high school. Petzold has photographed the magical work under the sea on all five continents. Her work has been featured in the National Geographic Magazine. She has been awarded a gold medal for International Underwater Photography in Egypt. Her travels have taken her to the Solomon Islands; where a new dive site was named after her, "Ruthie's Ridge."

Viewing this show is like walking through an aquarium filled with beautiful, bold undersea creatures.

We predict that both exhibits, the underwater photography and the "Little Gem" paintings will have special appeal to the 1,000 or more fortunate public and private school children who are scheduled to tour the galleries from Sept. 1 through Sept. 26. To schedule a Docent Tour for your school, please call the art center at 347-6443.

Sun glare contributes to boating accident

The Charlevoix County Marine Patrol was called to a personal injury accident at 9 p.m. Saturday, July 25 on Lake Charlevoix near Boyne City.

Victor Thomas, 68, of Boyne City, was east bound on Lake Charlevoix in a 22-foot Cobalt, making a wide left turn when he struck a 15-foot Sugarsand vessel driven by Jeffrey Cripps of Novi.

Two passengers of the Cripps vessel were treated for injuries at Northern Michigan Hospital; Michele Hodnett, 13, of Meadowbrook, Calif., received head injuries, and Barbara Cripps of Novi received shoulder injuries.

The glare of the sun on the water was said to be a factor in the accident.

Marine officers were assisted at the scene by Boyne City Police, Fire and Ambulance workers.

Swing music comes to East Park

For the third year, Larry Wojcik & Friends will entertain the crowds from the Clarence Odmark Pavilion in East Park as the Charlevoix convention and Visitors bureau's eighth summer concert series continues.

Performing at 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 6, the group will entertain with the interpretations of compositions by performers such as Henry Mancini, Sonny Rollins and Cole Porter, in a variety of tempos and styles that is meant to appeal to all ages, from 1 to 90. This variety gives the audience the opportunity to dance, or to simply sit back and reminisce with a touch of nostalgia.

The band, organized by musical conductor Larry Wojcik, features many promising musicians. Wojcik himself started his musical career playing drums at the age of 10, and had his first professional engagement at the age of 12. An entertainer in the northern Michigan area for over 30 years, he has played all over the world.

In the event of rain or inclement weather, the concerts will be canceled.

Illustrator to sign books in Charlevoix

"The Legend of Sleeping Bear" named State children's book by legislators p.m. Friday, Aug. 7.

The book, written by Kathy-Jo Wargin and illustrated by Frankenhuyzen, was recently adopted by the State House of Representatives as Michigan's Official Children's book.

The Legend of Sleeping Bear is a beautiful tale of a mother's love and devotion. In her version of this touching tale, Wargin writes of the beauty and symbolism that lives on through the Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore. The love and dedication of the mother bear has been passed on across the Great Lakes and the country through the tale, capturing everyone's hearts. After the resolution making it the state's official children's book, a foundation was established named The Sleeping Bear Literacy Foundation. A portion of the book's proceeds will go back to the foundation to support reading programs throughout Michigan.

Illustrator Frankenhuyzen has a lifelong connection to nature and wildlife. Brimming with passionate details and brilliant color, his paintings have been published in several books. His talent for mural painting can be seen in several Michigan museums, including Fort Mackinaw on Mackinac Island.

He lives with his wife, Robbyn, and their two daughters, Kelly and Heather, outside of Lansing.

New business features work of Michigan artists

By Jamie MacMillan

For Marcia Stacey, the opening of The Salt Marsh this summer was phase one of a larger business dream.

A native of Tennessee, Stacey wants to split her life between a store in a northern resort town in the summer and migrate south to a second store in the winter months.

"Eventually I'd like to keep two going, so I guess I'm starting on my dream early," she said.

The question of course is how this volunteer who calls Kentucky home and who once owned a store in Saginaw ended up a downtown Charlevoix merchant.

Stacey explained that a visitor came into her Saginaw outlet around Christmas time and on the spot determined her store belonged in Charlevoix the Beautiful.

In March she got a return call from the same person alerting her about a rental storefront near the Round Lake Yacht Basin.

By Memorial Weekend, the Salt Marsh had opened in Charlevoix at 105 Clinton St.

The store, whose name is tribute to her late husband and their children's last name, offers a potpourri of merchandise.

"I'd call it a boutique only for a lack of a better name," she quipped.

The bulk of the store is devoted to hand-painted art done by Michigan artists. She said she has merchandise from close to 25 Michiganders, including the rustic look of Annie Russell and floral look of Pat Dodson from Charlevoix.

"My main focus is to show the wonderful creativity of the Michigan artist," she said.

Stacey said she enjoys Michigan artists because they exhibit versatility and originality. She noted the area's long winters give artists time to work and perfect their craft.

"I love giving talented people a chance," she said. "I feel good when I look around and see one-of-a-kind items in my store."

Other non-Michigan lines of merchandise in the Salt Marsh include Momma-Ro pottery from Italy, Louisville Stone Wear, April Cornell linen and place mats and A Tail that Can Wag dog wear from Idaho.

She also has antiques and an extensive children's section.

Adding to the myriad of shelf items is a self-help and personal growth book collection. Stacey noted that books such as "Wonderful Ways to Love a Teen," and other family-structure books have been top sellers.

Thus far business has been steady, but she was swamped during this past Venetian Festival.

"It's such a people-oriented weekend," she said. "Charlevoix has some of the neatest people. The shopkeepers work together and you don't see that in most places."

The Salt Marsh is open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The store is open from noon to 8 p.m. Sundays.

Despite her dream to open stores in two different climates, Stacey will remain open year-round and will modify her hours accordingly. She did say an open house will be scheduled in the fall.

Waterfront Art Fair marks four decades of art in park

Tradition continues in East Park as Round Lake provides the backdrop for the 40th annual Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair. The fair will be from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 8.

The prestigious art fair draws artists from throughout the United States and Canada. The show's reputation of quality art has produced a large following of both artists and collectors.

The juried show consists of a wide variety of artistic media, techniques and styles to suit all tastes, ranging from contemporary to traditional, abstract to representational and functional to nonfunctional.

Exciting discoveries await collectors, with the blend of established artists and first time exhibitors who will pack the show.

Along with being an important part of summer in Charlevoix, the art fair is also an integral part of the Charlevoix Council for the Arts. The show allows the council to sponsor professional performances to enrich the community and expose Charlevoix students to the performing and visual arts.

Last year, the council provided funding for students in first through 12th grade to attend the exhibition of "20th Century Masters from Picasso to Warhol" at the Denos Museum in Traverse City.

The Waterfront Art Fair also provides scholarships for local students to continue their studies in the arts.

By supporting the Waterfront Art Fair, collectors are also supporting the continuing tradition of bringing art to Charlevoix students.

against dark, warm against cool color and hard against soft edges. The push and pull of these forces still hold great importance in all of his watercolors.

In 1985, Weber was elected into the American Watercolor Society. Some of his awards include Travel Awards in 1975 and 1984 from the American Watercolor Society. Best in Show at five different art festivals, and First in Watercolor with four awards at the Buffalo, N.Y. art show.

Chip Denison and Pat Custer Denison are a husband and wife team collaborating on producing Denison Tiles. The Denisons' annual series of 6-inch by eight-inch tile designs are small edition silk screen prints. Pat hand cuts the stencils to silk screen low fire underglazes on the bisque tile. Each printed color of the design requires a separate stencil. Pat further complicates the printing by varying the color runs in each edition to give a wide variety of color selections for every design. The Denisons also add a number of hand-painted details to each piece. After printing and painting, the tiles are overglazed and fired in an electric kiln. Metallic glazes, ceramic decals and luster colors may be added.

Pat and Chip also do large scale, ambitious, one-of-a-kind wall pieces.

The Denisons have a lot of fun making their art. No wonder Denison Tiles make people smile.

"One needs to be slightly pyromaniacal to be successful at Raku," is what Doug DeLind said of the distinctive clay firing process he favors. Raku is traditionally used by the Japanese and recently adopted by many American ceramicists.

Pam Kessler is an accomplished artist with a refined sense of draftsmanship, composition and watercolor technique. A Michigan native who grew up in the state's southeast corner, Kessler now makes her home in Clarkston, Mich. Kessler earned a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree from Wayne State University. Her work has been featured in major watercolor exhibitions and has had numerous one-woman shows.

Hayes Township approves plans for new pet clinic

By Jamie MacMillan

After restricting the number of animals allowed outside to five at any one time, the Hayes Township Planning Commission approved a special use permit, paving the way for a new animal clinic.

"Who is going to monitor that?" quipped commission chairman Joe Rivard of the restriction.

Planner Nancy Nash explained that doing so gives neighbors some legal recourse, should noise from boarded animals become a burden.

The clinic, expected to be in operation by next April or May, will be on U.S. 31 in between Barna Log Homes and the Burgess Road intersection.

Matthew and Julie Greimel purchased 2.5 acres of property in that vicinity and plan to build both a 2,000-2,400 square foot animal clinic and a 1,000 square foot residential apartment above the clinic.

The couple will be moving into the area from Grand Rapids, where they are currently employed at an animal clinic in the city.

Matthew Greimel told township planners that they expect maximum capacity in their new facility to be 25 animals, mostly cats and dogs on an outpatient basis.

The couple does not expect to board animals for extended periods of time, but will offer the service to their regular clients.

The couple's preliminary plans include up to four inside dog runs, but no outdoor runs are currently being planned.

Township clerk Ethel Knepp said if they want to add outdoor runs, then they would need an additional approval from township officials.

Only one residential neighbor in the area appeared at last month's public hearing to voice concerns about possible noise pollution.

Ralph Pervis, representing his son and daughter-in-law, Mike and Teresa Pervis, who live on the corner of U.S. 31 and Burgess Road, left the meeting with good feelings toward the clinic after Greimel detailed how noise would be limited.

Greimel explained that a small outdoor walking area for animals to relieve themselves will be in use only under supervision. Also, the waiting area, which could house up to 10 animals, will have windows high up the wall for light, but will not be opened, so barking will stay confined.

The site is located in a C-2, general commercial district.

Typical uses in that district include restaurants, barber/beautician shops, grocery stores, banks and other professional offices, utility buildings and civic nonprofit buildings.

Planners also tagged a second restriction to the special use permit regarding the proposed outdoor lighting for the facility.

Greimel explained since they will be offering emergency services they want their sign to be lit throughout the night. The commission allowed it as long as it does not shine onto any neighboring properties and cause distraction.

If plans continue, the clinic would be the fourth in Charlevoix County.

The planning commission next meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 17 and the township board next meets at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 10.

Jordan River Arts Council presents youth performance

The Jordan River Arts Council and the Jordan River Players will present an original children's play, "The Legend of Lohengrin," at 7 p.m. Thursday and Friday, Aug. 6 and 7 at the East Jordan High School auditorium. There will also be a matinee performance Sunday, Aug. 9.

The play was written by Lenore Bechtel and adapted from Richard Wagner's 1849 opera, "Lohengrin," which is the tale of a mysterious hero who arrives to save a maiden's honor. His name and origins must remain hidden, even from the maiden he will wed. She must promise never to ask his name or his powers will end, as well as their relationship.

Hospice...It's Not What You Think

Q: When should a decision about entering a hospice program be made and who should make it?
At any time during a life-limiting illness, it is appropriate to discuss all of the patient's care options including hospice. Understandably, most people are uncomfortable with the idea of stopping an all out effort to beat the disease. Hospice staff members are highly sensitive to these concerns and are always available to discuss them with the patient and family.

Q: Should I wait for our physician to raise the possibility of hospice or should I raise it first?
The patient and family should feel free to discuss hospice care at any time with their physician, other healthcare professionals, clergy or friends.

Q: Can a hospice patient who shows signs of recovery be returned to regular treatment?
Certainly. If the patient's condition improves and the disease seems to be in remission, the patient can be discharged from hospice and return to aggressive therapy or go on about his or her daily life.

Q: Does hospice serve only cancer patients?
Cancer is not the only condition for which hospice care would be appropriate. Other illnesses or conditions include: Alzheimer's and Parkinson's; neurologic, respiratory and cardiac diseases; infectious and parasitic diseases; and other life-limiting illnesses that without medical intervention would run their course in six months or less.

Q: What support is available for bereavement and grief recovery?
Caring for the body, mind and spirit of the individual is an integral part of hospice's care philosophy. Bereavement support groups explore normal grief reaction, remembering the person who has died. The groups also provide methods for coping with anger, sadness or guilt, and build strengths to deal with future issues. By providing weekly support groups where participants can freely express their feelings in a safe environment, hospice can help prevent undesirable behaviors, which may surface later in life.

as a result of unresolved grief issues. Hospice also equips children with coping skills necessary to deal with grief in positive and affirming ways.

Bigger staff needed to run larger jail

on duty. The jail's current budget is $420,000 with a little more than $290,000 already going to employees' wages.

To cover the increased costs, the county has plans to provide the jail with an additional $44,000 a year from its general funds. The remainder of the expenses will be covered from a variety of state-distributed funds and inmate boarding fees.

The county's plan will more than triple the available capacity for prisoners.

Currently the facility has 25 beds. The expansion will add 60 beds, with 18 of those new beds forming a separate work-release dormitory.

Meggison explained that such a jump in the number of beds is for two reasons. The county wants to be prepared for future growth and to bring in extra income by renting out beds to other counties that lack space in their facilities.

Charlevoix County already rents out beds and last week housed four inmates from neighboring counties. Meggison said the county charges those counties $35 a day and all traveling and medical expenses are covered by the home county.

The project will also include a new inmate intake/processing area, a new indoor activity area to replace the present outdoor recess area, larger visitation rooms, three detox cells, two holding cells, and an expanded library.

The project includes renovations to the current jail, updating the present cells by modernizing the mechanical and ventilation systems, adding a laundry/storage room, and expanding the kitchen.

Parking spaces will be added to the east side of the building between the jail and the Pine River Place. The county had two options for parking, but providing spaces to the south of the jail would have eliminated the baseball field in the area. As it stands, the jail expansion would come to within 50 feet of the diamond, Meggison said.

The Charlevoix County Humane Society building will be eliminated during the expansion process. A possible snag in the construction process will be the speed of the animal shelter's relocation to Boyne City. The humane society has not yet set a start date for construction on their new facility.

Lions raise money for vision-impaired

On Friday and Saturday, Aug. 7 and 8, the Charlevoix Lions Club members will be around town collecting donations for their annual White Cane Fund Drive. Donations to the Lions help support the Michigan Eye Bank and Transplant Center; the Michigan Leader Dog Training Center and Puppy Research and Development Program in Rochester; and the Welcome Home for the Blind in Grand Rapids.

Locally, the Lions Club provides glasses for needy individuals with special eye problems and several years ago, donated the eye-testing machine used by Judy Johnson, Charlevoix Public School nurse, for screening students for eye problems. The Lions also take donations of used eyeglasses for distribution in needy countries.

The White Cane Safety Program was initiated by the Peoria, Ill. Lions Club over 70 years ago. The white cane with its red bands is now recognized world-wide as a means for identifying and protecting the sight-impaired persons when they are crossing streets or otherwise moving about.

Lion John Kurtz, chairman for the Charlevoix club's White Cane Days, urges the public to be extra watchful and helpful when they see individuals using their red-banded white canes. As a symbolic reminder, each of the Lions collecting donations will carry an official white cane.

Scholarships available at local college

North Central Michigan College in Petoskey has over 60 new scholarships available this fall for students interested in training for high wage, high demand technical jobs.

The college will award a total of $135,000 in financial aid through the new, Governor's Career Scholarship program.

These scholarships are limited to students in NCMC's service area, which includes Charlevoix and Emmet counties. Scholarships are for up to $2,000.

The program is part of Governor John Engler's 14-point Gold Collar Jobs Agenda. In all, $20 million has been allocated statewide for scholarships. Funds for the program come from the state's revenue from Michigan's Native American-operated casinos, and must be used for educational programs.

The Michigan Jobs Commission will administer the scholarships through local work force development boards, commonly known as Michigan Works! Agencies.

NCMC was eligible to apply for scholarship funds through the two Michigan Jobs Commission work force Development boards in the college's service area, and received scholarship allocations from both agencies.

Students must enroll this fall to be eligible for the scholarships. The application deadline is Aug. 30.

Programs of study at NCMC which are eligible for the scholarships are in fields identified as high skill, high demand and high wage, including computer aided design, computer information systems, nursing, paramedic/emergency medical services, and several options in office administrative services.

Soccer player earns state honors

Erika Kammermann, daughter of Eric and Vel Kammermann, was the Michigan State High School Athletic Association's Honorable Mention All-State in girls soccer. Erika is the first Charlevoix soccer player, boys or girls, to receive all-state recognition.

"It was surprising, but fitting, that such an honor would go to a sophomore," said her coach Hagen Mankcr. "Her hard work and commitment to the sport more than justifies the selection. I am proud of Erika and the standard that she has established for future Charlevoix soccer players."

As a sophomore, Erika led the team in scoring, knocking in nine goals and assisting on six others in the past season. She currently has 41 career points and was also chosen 1998 team Most Valuable Player, was a 1998 All-District Selection, and 1998 All-Regional Selection. Erika, a two-year letter winner, exemplifies the term "Student-Athlete," being a member of the 1998 Academic All-State Team with a 3.7 grade point average.

Golf legend plays at the Belvedere

Tom Watson played a round of golf at the Belvedere Golf Club Saturday, Aug. 1, again pronouncing it one of his favorite courses in the world.

"Most people playing here don't understand why this is truly a great course," he said, noting his preference for the old style, linked course.

While the Belvedere crew knew he was coming, nothing was made public in order to let Watson enjoy his round of golf with his father. He played in shorts and carried his own bag.

Watson's round was highlighted by holing an 8 iron shot for an eagle two on the 435-yard seventh hole. He also was on hand to witness a hole-in-one by 16-year-old Scott Kury of Portage, Mich. Watson was waiting to tee off at the 15th hole when he turned around and saw Scott's shot on the 14th hole roll in the cup. Scott hit a 5 iron and had the "thrill of his life" when Watson walked over and asked to have his picture taken with the young ace-maker. Watson said he had a great day reliving some boyhood memories at the Belvedere.

Erika Kammermann (right) receives congratulations from her coach, Hagen Mankcr, for her achievement of being named Honorable Mention All-State player in soccer.

Call one of the contact people listed at the end of this announcement to volunteer.

The event is a fund-raiser for Friends of the Jordan, whose mission is to conserve the natural resources and protect the environmental quality of the Jordan River and its watershed. The event will also promote and raise awareness of the group, its goals as an organization, and opportunities for involvement.

The races will give participants a chance to enjoy the natural surroundings of the Jordan River watershed, while seeing first-hand why the scenic wilderness area is preserved and protected.

The 15K run and the 5 run/walk will begin at 8:30 a.m. at the Alba Sportsman's Club in Alba, approximately seven miles north of Mancelona and one mile west of US-131. ## SPORTS

Charlevoix golfer tackles Michigan Junior Amateur

Preparing for his final season on the high school links, Charlevoix senior Keith Grunch placed 21st in last week's Michigan Junior Amateur Championships.

The event, in its 20th year, was played this year at the Bay City Country Club. Grunch scored rounds of 78, 78 and 79 for a 54-hole score of 235.

Grunch qualified for the event earlier in July by competing in one of eight qualifying tournaments throughout the state. At Sugarloaf Golf Course, he had to place in the top 15 of the field to advance into the Junior Championships. He shot an 81, which placed him 12th and in the final field.

Upon arriving in Bay City last week, Grunch laid out two goals for himself: make the cut and shoot three solid rounds.

Of the 78 golfers in the field, only the top 30, plus ties, would survive the cut after 36 holes. Scoring back-to-back 78s, Grunch cruised into the final round in 16th place. Despite falling off the pace a bit after carding a 79 in the final round, Grunch said his game was in good form.

"Sure, I would have liked to shoot lower, but to put together three rounds in the 70s is pretty consistent," he said.

His game was sparked by solid hitting of his driver off the tee. It was on the large, fast greens that Grunch had his biggest problems of the week.

"I didn't putt very well," he said. "The greens were fast and difficult and I never got used to them."

Golf courses can be compared in a variety of ways, one of them being a course's putting scale, which rates the difficulty of the links' greens. The Bay City Country Club was an 11 on the putting scale. By comparison, the Belvedere Country Club, the home course for the Charlevoix Rayders, is tagged as an eight on the same scale.

Other than the greens, Grunch

Keith Grunch is keeping his golf game sharp this summer by playing in Michigan tournaments.

said the par 72 course was "wide open, but very well protected."

Each hole is lined with fairway bunkers in addition to each green being protected by at least two other bunkers, he said.

Derek Arnott of Hartland took the top prize after downing Stephen Polanski of Livonia in a two-hole playoff. The pair tied with a 215.

The tournament really was two in one, with the above pair setting a blistering pace. They were tied after 36 holes, six strokes ahead of third place en route to besting the field by a total of nine strokes. Only 17 strokes separated the remainder of the field. Grunch just missed qualifying automatically for next year's Amateur Buick Open. The top 20 from this field will have spots reserved, and Grunch's finish places him no worse than first alternate with a handful of other qualifying opportunities before next July's tournament.

Grunch also competed in the Traverse City Collegiate Junior Tournament in June and finished in 23rd place. He is also busy this week at Michigan State Junior Golf Championship played at the Pole Cat course in Mt. Pleasant.

A more aggressive summer of tournaments was by design, Grunch said, to fine tune his game for his final year in high school.

"I really think this will give me an edge over the others in my conference," he said. The high school season begins with the Russ Harvey Invitational at Boyne Mountain on Wednesday, Aug. 19.

"Townies" whip Belvedere Club

The "Townie" all-star team made it two in a row with a victory over the Belvedere Club in their annual Venetian weekend softball game.

The 10-7 victory featured sparkling defensive play by both teams. Townie Mike Thompson smacked two homers into Lake Charlevoix. Dave Novotny was the winning pitcher for the Townies.

"Hall of Fame" inductees were Tom Alexander for the Belvies and Vince Left for the Townies. Most Valuable Players were Louis

McKenzie for the Townies and the ageless Potter Orr for the Belvies.

A hot dog and brats luncheon was provided by the Belvedere Club as tribute to the "Summer of Sun."

Tops in the major league

Taking first place in the Major League Division of Little League was Oleson's team. They are (front, from left) Aaron Hagen, Ben Scheelk, Matt Teuscher and Kellie Young. ## Substance abuse education directors attend workshop at Hazelden Renewal Center

Executive Director D. Scott Kelly and Program Director Celia Partida of Bay Area Substance Education Services, Inc. (B.A.S.E.S.) completed a Young, Sober, and Free workshop Wednesday, July 29 at the Hazelden Renewal Center near Center City, Minnesota. Eighteen young people (15 to 21 years of age) from Georgia, Oregon, Montana, Texas, Minnesota, New York, Michigan and Wisconsin participated in the workshop.

Assisting the lead trainers, Kelly and Partida served as co-trainers to educate themselves on conducting this kind of workshop with the idea of beginning a Young, Sober, and Free workshop in our local area.

The highlight of this workshop came when United States Drug Czar General Barry McCaffrey spent time discussing ideas concerning prevention and recovery with the young people at the workshop. Kelly said he was very impressed with McCaffrey. "He was concerned, sincere and genuinely interested in what the young people had to say," Kelly said.

Hazelden Center for Youth and Families is the international leader in chemical dependency treatment, publications and prevention programs. Hazelden's involvement in northern Michigan is due to generous donations from Offield Family Foundation.

Kelly and Partida have been trained consultants of the Hazelden Center for the past two years.

College hosts cookout to celebrate 40th anniversary

North Central Michigan College (NCMC) in Petoskey was founded in 1958, so what better way to mark its 40th anniversary than a "Fabulous 50's" Cookout? The large-scale community cookout will be from noon to 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 13 at the college.

The event includes food, entertainment, games and activities. All proceeds will be used for scholarships at NCMC. The college anticipates over 1,000 people will attend, according to NCMC Director of Marketing Carol Krumbach.

"We hope to make this an annual community event which will keep growing and have a different theme every year," said Krumbach.

The Northern Michigan Chefs Association is planning and preparing the food, which includes broiled whitefish, burgers, hot dogs, several side dishes and dessert.

Entertainers scheduled to perform include Sean Ryan, the Northland Noteables, Apathy and the Sundown Dancers.

"There will be face painting, line dancing, a cakewalk, demonstrations, displays and exhibits, and lots of games for kids," said Krumbach. Service clubs and community groups will sponsor the games and activities. Wal-Mart of Petoskey has donated all the game prizes.

Besides the food and festivities, people attending the cookout will have a chance to win a door prize drawing for a computer with monitor, donated by ComputerLand of Petoskey.

The cookout is sponsored by the NCMC Foundation. Tickets are $5 each and are available from NCMC staff members, the Petoskey and Harbor Springs chambers of commerce, and other locations. For more information, call 348-6839 or 348-6621.

For more information or to register contact Bob Roloff at 547-3279.

Depot Beach swimmers

Whoops! We didn't take a close enough look at last week's Scrapbook photo to determine the exact location. Observer Ike Boss told us that this photo was actually at Depot Beach, where a long dock extended into Lake Charlevoix. Schooners would unload their freight on one side of the dock, where it would be transported to the train. On the other side of the dock was the swim area. Boss said the pilings from the old dock are still there.

How To Kill A BUSINESS ... in ten easy steps

1. Don't Advertise
Just pretend everybody knows what you have to offer.
2. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself you just don't have time to spend thinking about promoting your business.
3. Don't Advertise
Just assume everybody knows what you sell.
4. Don't Advertise
Convince yourself that you've been in business so long customers will automatically come to you.
5. Don't Advertise
Forget that there are new potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded.
6. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have competition trying to attract your customers away from you.
7. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise and that you don't get enough out of it.
8. Don't Advertise
Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling ... not an expense.
9. Don't Advertise
Be sure not to provide an adequate advertising budget for your business.
10. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have to keep reminding your established customers that you appreciate their business.

An enjoyable career comes to an end

By Laurie Lounsbury

When Ken Brill accepted the job as executive director of the Bergmann Center 19 years ago, his first directive from the center's board of directors was to find a bigger building for the group.

Since then, he's not only moved the work activity center to bigger quarters, he's guided the Bergmann Center through big changes.

After nearly two decades at the helm of the center for developmentally disabled people, Brill is retiring.

"The highlight of being here is the positive impact we've had on so many people," Brill said.

Founded in 1954 by a group of parents who had developmentally disabled children, the center originally worked to educate children. It was called the Charlevoix Association for Retarded Children, but was later named for its first teacher, Lillian Bergmann. In 1965, the State Department of Education took over the education and training of handicapped people.

Since the state was not responsible for disabled people over the age of 21, Lillian Bergmann and her husband, Bob, started the first work activity center in their home. When the program grew too big for their home, it was moved to 201 East Garfield St.

Brill was new to the job when he moved the Bergmann Center into the old Charlevoix Chemical building on Martin Road in 1981. Since then, the building and the programs offered have both been expanded.

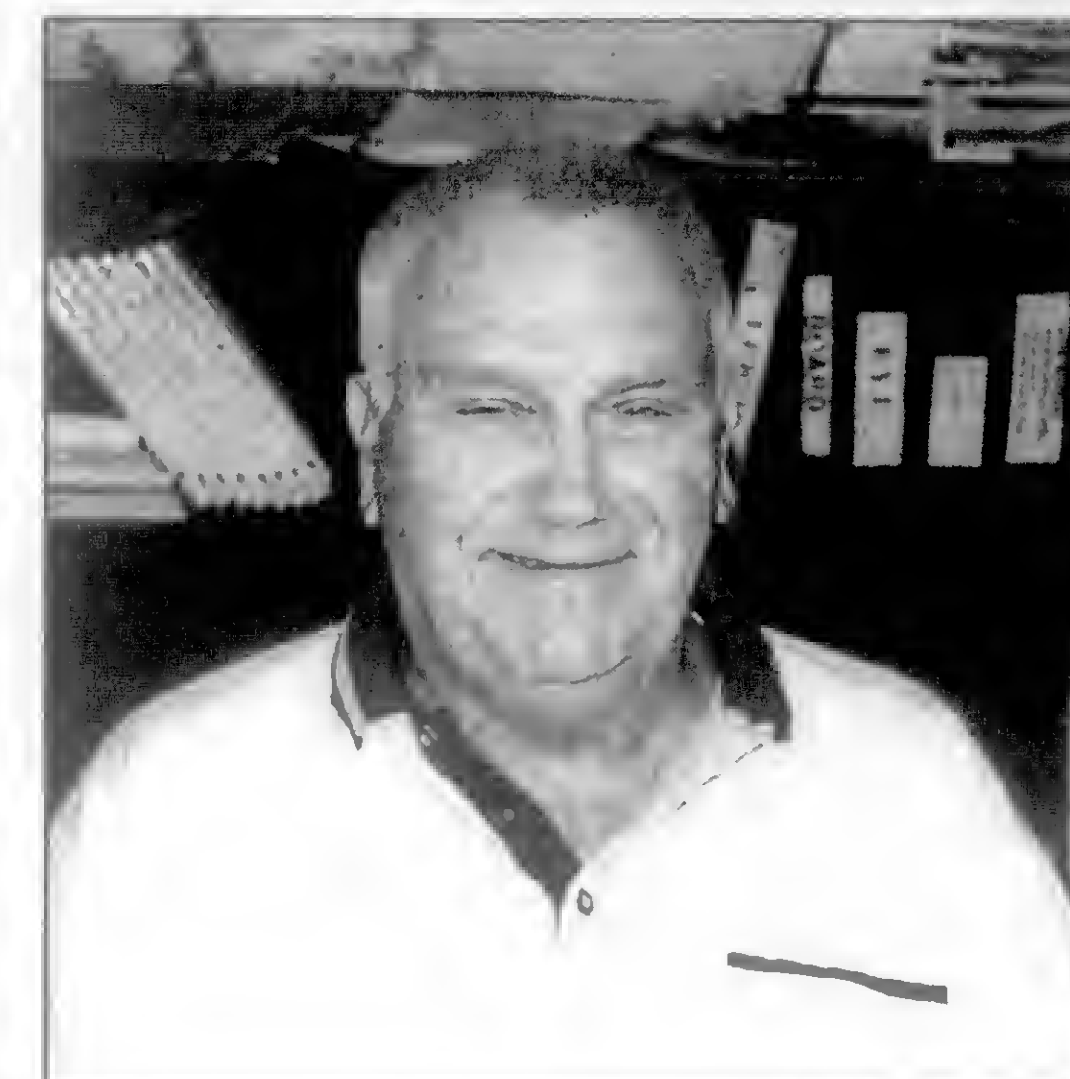

The Bergmann Center now assists 60 people by teaching them social skills and personal management skills. They also provide them with work from area industries. Bergmann Center clients, or consumers as they're now called, do piece work for local companies such as Hoskins Manufacturing, LexaLite, Harbor Industries, the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and the Charlevoix County building.

Hank Graffinius, workshop manager, is proud of the work the consumers perform.

"They do excellent work," he said. "They're more persistent, more loyal and more dependable than most of the so-called normal people."

The Bergmann Center's goal is to integrate their clients into society, where they can be productively employed.

"It's very rewarding to see our clients improve and advance with their living skills, and see them get placed in jobs in the community," Brill said. "I came in completely cold, not perience every day. For Brill, it's been a learning experience every day. see BERGMANN, page 2

Charlevoix real estate title expert Don Berlage dies

By Laurie Lounsbury

His outward manner was sometimes gruff and intimidating, but those who knew Don Berlage best could see beyond the tough exterior to the earing man inside.

"He intimidated a lot of people with his big, deep booming voice, but anyone who worked for him would say he was a big teddy bear, always generous and thoughtful," said Debra Bartlett, vice-president of Berlage's company, Northern Michigan Title Co.

Berlage died Tuesday, Aug. 4, after playing a round of golf at the

Don Berlage

Charlevoix Country Club. Berlage was perhaps best known as an innovative, progressive risk-taker in Charlevoix.

In 1968, he bought his title company from Ben Schenck in East Jordan and moved the business to Charlevoix in 1972. In its infancy, the company employed three people. Today, there are 11 employees, reflecting Berlage's success in a competitive industry.

"He employed a lot of people, put food on a lot of tables, and I respect him for that," said Richard Joseph, a fellow attorney.

Joseph said Berlage had an interesting life. see BERLAGE, page 3

Sybil Levinson dies

By Laurie Lounsbury and JoAnne Beemon

The downtown area will never look quite the same without the sight of Sybil Levinson walking about in her pink sweat suit in the summer and her snowmobile suit and red scarf in the winter, blithely ignoring crosswalks and doling out chatter to the passersby.

Sybil died Friday, Aug. 7, at the age of 84.

Everyone in town knew Sybil. Young children learned at an early age who Sybil was and where she lived. They learned to accept her quirky personality as part of Charlevoix's character and culture.

The whole town took care of Sybil. The community was her family and she was ours. When she got hungry or lonely, she would go to the two banks for coffee and snacks, as often as four times a day. Funerals were also a place Sybil would go to find other people.

She attended more funerals, weddings and receptions than any person in town. Sybil rode in the sheriff's car and led the Venetian Parade. Always doing things her way, Sybil ignored crosswalks and never looked for cars. She was never in a hurry.

When she was younger, she rode her old blue Schwinn bicycle right down the center of the highway, never looking to the left or right. She received more birthday cakes every single birth-knowing what to expect," Brill said. "I quickly learned they (the clients) were special."

The sentiment is mutual. When Brill walks through the center, the consumers run up to his side like devoted family members, reaching out for him and bombarding him with questions. "I'm going to miss them," Brill said. "It's going to be difficult to stay away, because I've known them all so long."

Retirement for Brill doesn't mean not working anymore — he'll just switch to new challenges to occupy his time. Two of his daughters have started new businesses in northern Michigan, and he plans to be on hand to help them.

Brill was a teacher in Ohio for 21 years before relocating to Michigan, where he and his wife ran a resort on Pickere Lake.

"The resort business was too confining — I had no time off," Brill said.

Hayes Twp surveys residents

Residents of Hayes Township have been asked to help determine the future growth of the township by completing a survey mailed last month.

"We're in the process of revising our long range plan and how people answer these questions will help determine the direction we go," said Ethel Knepp, township zoning administrator.

The survey was designed by a subcommittee of the Hayes Township Planning Commission, made up of both planning commission members and representatives of the public, including the business community, development interests, environmental organizations and township residents.

"This is the time for residents to let the township know how they will be Aug. 28. At that time, Suzanne Muma will take over as director. She has been an employee of the Bergmann Center for 10 years, acting most recently as administrative assistant.

"She's done every job here, so she should be ready for this one," Brill said.

"I'm glad my position was filled by a promotion from within. I think it will help them to continue with my philosophy, which is to keep the center independent. It would become very political if the government controlled it," Brill said.

Brill might not stay away from the center for long. He's been asked to come back and teach painting to some of the consumers. Painting is one of Brill's hobbies.

Brill will take many happy memories with him when he leaves the Bergmann Center.

"I've enjoyed my job. I think we've made a lot of progress over the years to help these people. The challenges were kind of neat — every day has been different."

Sidewalk sweepers

Shoppers will be sweeping the sidewalks of Charlevoix this Thursday through Saturday, looking for bargains during sidewalk sales. This summer's weather lured people to the beaches more than it did to town for shopping, so there should be plenty of items for sale offered by downtown merchants. (Courier file photo)

Vandals strike many vehicles in high school lot

By Jamie MacMillan

A typical hotbed for minor vandalism, the Charlevoix High School parking lot last week was the scene of a one-night spree that involved 10 different cars. Vehicle windows were smashed and a handful of cell phones were swiped.

The spree was last Tuesday night, Aug. 4, and the damage was discovered the next morning by Beaver Island Boat Company employees who were parking their cars before going to work.

During the summer, the lot is used for medium- to long-range parking for people taking the ferry over to Beaver Island. About 200 cars are currently parked in the lot.

A dimly lit parking lot, combined with the cover that many cars parked together can provide, makes the lot a usual target of vandalism, city police chief Dennis Halverson said.

"From a security standpoint it's hard, but for criminal work it's easy," he said.

Police answer a handful of calls each summer of damage to the parked cars typically of the stolen hood ornament variety. Halverson guessed that many vandalism cases from that lot probably go unreported because victims don't realize any damage was done to the vehicle until they return home from their vacation.

Not all crime from that lot occurs when the cars are long term sitting ducks during the summer months.

On March 6, a CD player was stolen out of a student's car. Police connected an East Jordan teen with the crime and in May the youth was sentenced to serve three months in the county jail, two years probation and pay $1,094 in fines and costs after pleading guilty to attempted breaking and entering into a vehicle with damage.

"The incentives are the extra electronics in cars, like cell phones and CD players that never were in cars to this extent before," Halverson said.

Police have very little clues regarding this crime spree except for a claw hammer discovered on the scene which is assumed to be the weapon used to smash the windows.

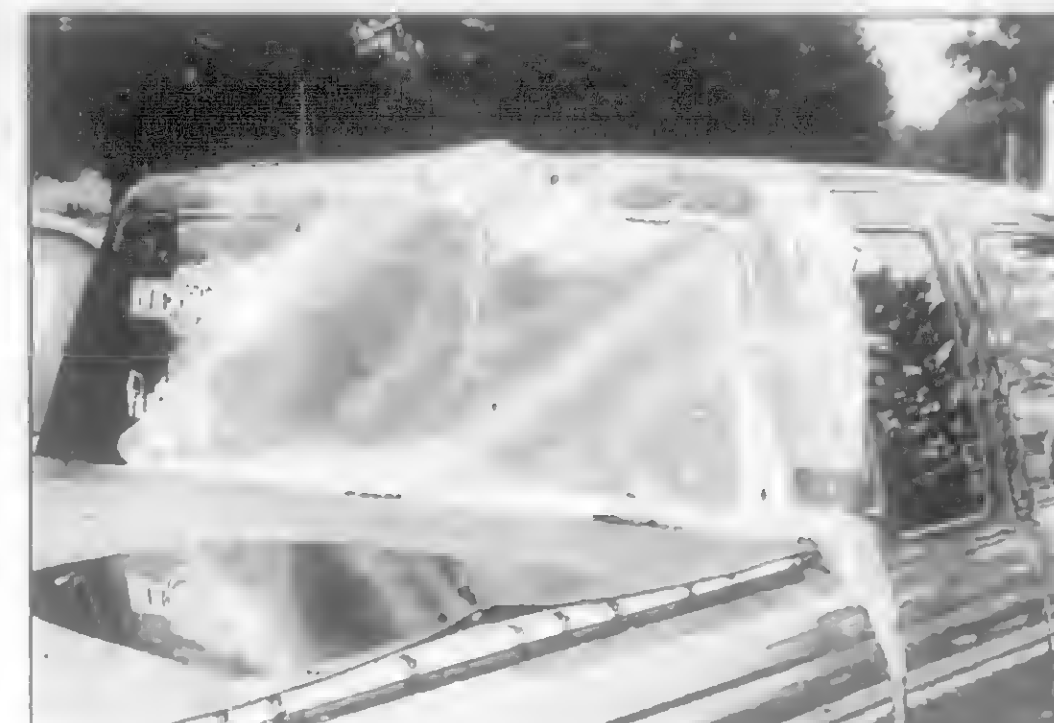

Halverson said he believes the hammer was taken from an unlocked tool box in the back of a pick-up truck that was subsequently damaged.

The vandal hit cars, pick-ups and vans in a mishmash pattern throughout the lot doing "various levels of damage," according to the police chief.

Early estimates have damage to the vehicles totaling $3,000, including the theft of two cell phones. Halverson said that figure could increase since they have only been able to contact about half of the victimized car owners on the island. Until police have conversations with those owners they won't know the full extent of what was taken from the automobiles.

By the end of last week, glass shards remained scattered on the asphalt, and, in some cases, on the front seat of the damaged vehicles. Boat company employees have tacked plastic covering on the windows of the cars that remain in the lot.

Halverson encourages anyone

One of 10 vehicles to have its windows smashed in last week while parked at the high school parking lot, this truck differed from the other damaged vehicles in that the back window was shattered to pieces. The other vehicles were broken into from side door windows. According to city police, over $3,000 of damage was done in the one-night vandalism spree.

Don was a man who helped shape Charlevoix's future

credible ability to find solutions to real estate title problems, which was at the heart of Berlage's business.

"I always thought that he helped people with their property development," Joseph said. "If you had a tough title problem, he'd try to work it out, and he'd be willing to take a chance."

Berlage was involved with several property development projects, most notably, the Park Place Condominiums on Park Avenue overlooking the Pine River Channel.

"Some people disagreed with his approach, but if you look at other towns that haven't progressed like Charlevoix, it's because they didn't have a Don Berlage, a Gordon Wellman or a Rik Lobenherz to look down the road and move things along," Joseph said. "Berlage was just that type of man."

Gregg Smith, a partner in Vacation Properties Network, said his professional relationship with Berlage goes back to 1980.

"He had a lot of long term, loyal employees, because Don had a good heart and rewarded them well," Smith said.

Berlage's success was due to his diligence and constant hard work along with his intelligence.

"He was very, very intelligent — probably the most intelligent man I'll ever know," Bartlett said. "He had a wonderful gift, to be able to analyze a problem and solve it."

Berlage's son Jim would agree with that statement.

"He was a visionary," Jim said. "He was always able to think ahead and look down the road. And he was always passionate about whatever challenge he decided to undertake."

Berlage had an interesting life story, starting in Cincinnati, Ohio, where he was born. He earned his law degree from the University of Ohio Law School and worked for the Federal Bureau of Investigation in San Francisco, Calif. and New York City before returning to the Midwest, where he ultimately settled in Charlevoix in 1967.

Berlage married Barbara Good in 1950 and they had three sons together; Clint, Jim and Steve.

He later married Sally Lignell, and in 1996, married Kathleen Lanciault, with whom he was very happy.

Berlage was a vital part of the real estate growth and development in Charlevoix. He was definitely one of the men who contributed to this ever-changing community.

OPINIONS

Sybil Levinson was a valued community member

With the death of Sybil Levinson, Charlevoix lost one of its few remaining characters.

This saddens me. We've lost Beannie Russell, Jimmy Bogart, and now Sybil.

It has always amazed me how the citizens of Charlevoix treat our unique assortment of characters.

We don't hide them in attics or send them off to institutions.

There is never any malice toward them, no shame to have them wandering our streets.

Instead, children are taught at a young age who they are, what they're called, and to be polite and helpful to them.

It is perhaps the most meaningful small town quality that sets us apart from big cities.

When I was talking to Lou Hollow about Sybil, he mentioned that he used to run up to McDonald's to get a meal for Sybil when she was hungry. I told him that was terribly sweet of him, but he pooh-poohed my comment.

"It was nothing special, it's what you'd expect people to do," he said.

Many people of Charlevoix stepped up and did what was expected of them. They didn't view it as unusual. They just saw their actions as appropriate behavior in a small town.

What was considered expected behavior in Charlevoix would be viewed as extraordinary in other, bigger towns.

Long ago, someone once said to me, "In Charlevoix we're not ashamed of our crazy people — we take care of them."

EDITORIAL

It's true. And it's a wonderful thing.

In bigger cities, kids grow up leery and afraid of homeless people or strange characters. In Charlevoix, they learn tolerance and acceptance of those people.

I will miss Sybil. There was something very reassuring about seeing Sybil walking around town.

If she was wearing her snowmobile suit, red scarf and knit cap, I knew it was going to be a cold day. If she was in her light-weight sweat suit, I knew it would be warm. It tickled me to see her walking around barefoot after she had recently gotten a pedicure, showing off her bright red toenails.

I think I will miss her the most because she brought out the best in the people of this community. She inspired tolerance, compassion, patience and thoughtfulness in our citizens. She taught us all that being different isn't a bad thing, it's just different.

It was rumored that Sybil's trust fund was pretty thoroughly depleted in the last year. She probably had nothing left to her name except her house. And yet, the people and business owners in this community made sure she didn't go hungry.

Sybil needed us to watch out for her and look after her. We needed Sybil to remind us to be decent human beings.

Letters to the editor

Stupak has supporter in Traverse City

Editor:

I urge all residents of the First Congressional District to reelect our congressman, Bart Stupak, this November.

Unlike Michelle McManus, whose campaign practices have been questionable in the least, Stupak is a strong example of the honesty and integrity that is rare in government.

Unlike the stereotypical politician, Bart Stupak has followed through on his campaign promises and serves his district well. Stupak believes in the ideals of democracy, in grass roots representation, in the idea that democracy does not end at the polls.

Bart Stupak believes in the importance of the family, having raised two sons. Bart Stupak believes in the ideals and values that make democracy work.

By sending Bart Stupak back to Washington, we will maintain the advantages that his seniority in the house provides, we will retain a man Bart Stupak this November. Vote Stupak on Election Day.

Millages are supported by two area townships

By Jamie MacMillan

Residents of two northern Charlevoix County townships approved millage initiatives during last week's primary elections.

In Norwood Township, residents approved a three-year, .5 mill tax for fire and ambulance services.

The new tax passed by an 81-41 margin.

"It didn't surprise me that it passed," said township supervisor Earl Muma. "People want to get the township fixed up and this could be the start of it."

Usually the township pays $12,000 annually out of its general funds to the city of Charlevoix for fire and ambulance protection.

With a budget hovering around $65,000, such a chunk leaves little left over for improvement projects, Muma said.

With the taxpayers covering most of the fire and ambulance costs, Muma said the township will redirect the money to fix roads or make improvements on the township hall.

Muma said the current township hall, which also serves as the historical society, has no bathrooms and limited heating capacity.

For the roads, which Muma labeled "deplorable," funds could be raised from another source.

"My next goal is to get a millage passed strictly for our roads," he said.

The Norwood Township board next meets at 7 p.m. Monday, Aug. 17.

In Eveline Township, voters extended the current two-year, one mill tax for another two years, through the year 2000.

The millage, designed to raise money for road projects, was extended by a 134-56 margin.

During its first two years, the millage collected approximately $200,000 and the extension is expected to bring in $119,000 each year, township supervisor David Willson said.

The collected tax revenue has paid for black-topping projects on Ranney and Mountain roads as well as seal coating roads around the Charlevoix Shores Estates during the first two years.

The last portion of finances from the millage's first approval will pay for the resurfacing of a .5 mile stretch of Peninsula Road from Loomis Road to Ridge Road.

Willson said the township received bid proposals for the project ranging from $92,000-$120,000.

With an extended millage, the township will continue its work on Peninsula for another .5 miles, from Ridge Road, Willson said. Willson said the township will let out bids for the project at a later date.

The millage extension will also, in time, fund the rebuilding of a one-mile stretch of Brock Road from Shaw to Ferry roads as well as gravel work on a slew of secondary roads.

The Eveline Township board next meets at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 8 at the township's hall on 08525 Ferry Road.

Charlevoix County residents as a whole extended a millage to fund the Grandvue Medical Care facility for another four years.

The .75 millage was extended through 2002 by an overwhelming 1,820-458 margin.

Expected to bring in just over $750,000 this year, the millage makes up about 15 percent of the facility's annual budget.

Town will be different without Sybil's familiar presence

day than anyone else in town. She was a guest at the movie theater, the bakery and restaurants all over town.

Sybil carried her towel and sun tan lotion to Michigan Beach and basked in the sun until she was 70 years old. She knew local history and scandal. She scorned politicians and for years, gave the city council a run for its money.

"She was definitely very opinionated," said Lou Hollow, president of Charlevoix State Bank. Hollow would frequently make a trip to McDonald's to get lunch for Sybil.

Oleson's grocery store loaned her a shopping cart, and when it wasn't parked outside the house, you knew Sybil was doing the laundry or shopping. She loved her little dog Tommy and her dog Billy.

"We all hear the story of Sybil throwing her dog off the bridge, but Sybil said it never happened, so I believe her," Hollow said.

Sybil honored her mother and father until the day she died.

"She would bring in photos of her dad and show them to us," Hollow said. She was a faithful Jewish woman and never wavered from her faith. Her home was never locked, and she was never burglarized.

Sybil was a strong and independent woman who loved children and played grandmother to many, sometimes admonishing them to eat their dinners or help their mother. Other times, advising a distraught mom, she would say, "Shhh! He's just a child!"

When she was 75, she walked across the Mackinac Bridge during the Labor Day bridge walk.

She was loved, avoided, tolerated and cared for. She had a wonderful, eccentric sense of humor. Sometimes it seemed that she was more amused by us than we were by her.

Sybil was a part of who we are. She tried our patience and earned our love and respect. She demanded the best in us. She was our friend. We are less without her.

Wooden boat show raises money for medical clinic

More than $46,800 was raised to improve patient care at the recent Wooden Boat Show on Round Lake in Charlevoix, sponsored by the Northern Michigan Hospital/Burns Clinic foundation.

Over 330 tickets were sold for the July 11 event, hosted at the home of Robert and Claudia Scherer.

"We were so pleased with the community support for this wonderful occasion," said Lyn Jenks, president of the Northern Michigan Hospital/Burns Clinic Foundation. "Never before has this area seen a gathering of this caliber with such an extensive display of antique, wooden and one-of-a-kind boats."

Jenks especially thanked the hosts for the event — the Scherers, Lawrence D. Jr. and Fay Buhl, Michael and Rhea Dow, Fred Walstrom and Ward Walstrom.

About 33 boats were on display that evening. Boat owners who participated in the show included George W. and Emily Cook, Van Dam Wood Craft, Michael L. and Rhea Dow, Rick and Sheila Tomkinson, Dick and Matt Sligh, Doug and Barb Morin, James and Della Seeley, Robert and Bonnie Ferguson, Lowell and Sharon Blossom, John and Mary Kuhnle, Jon and Lor, Bartell, Robert and Claudia Scherer, John Winn, Wallace Cole Sr., Richard and Cheri Detkowski, William and Julie Munro, and Charlie and Janna Winn.

The Northern Michigan Hospital/Burns Clinic Foundation is dedicated to raising, managing and distributing donations. Contributions to the foundation pay for capital and technological needs at the Petoskey medical complex and support health promotion, public and professional education, disease detection, prevention and research programs.

The home of Robert and Claudia Scherer on Round Lake in Charlevoix was the perfect setting for the recent Wooden Boat Show and fund-raiser for Northern Michigan Hospital/Burns Clinic Foundation.

Local band will perform in East Park

The local band called Dr. Goodheart's Home Remedy is known for their fun and eclectic mixture of music.

This variety will come to the stage at 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 13 as the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau summer concert series continues. Held in the Clarence Odmark Pavilion in East Park in downtown Charlevoix, the concert promises to be a highlight of a successful series.

Dr. Goodheart's Home Remedy has been performing many music styles, from Swing and Blues to Celtic and Bluegrass, for over 16 years. The music on a given night varies, based largely on the audience's response.

According to Dr. Goodheart himself, (Jim Gillespie), the goal of the band is to satisfy the crowd by performing what will please them. Audience involvement is a must. To connect with their audience, the group plays numbers that mandate participation, such as the Hungarian Folk Dance No. 5 and the original Ouf Dah Polka.

The band is composed of Gillespie playing mandolin, fiddle, guitar, pennywhistle, and Irish drum; Rick Beemon on the guitar; and husband and wife pair Krista and Dave Knight, playing the violin and washtub bass, respectively. All members sing, and the band often performs A Capella numbers.

Spectators see a variety of events while the group is on stage, from the traditional clogging to classic washtub bass playing. Even more unique is the group's trademark, the famous, patent pending, all-natural Dr. Goodheart's Home Remedy tonic. According to Gillespie, the concentrated tonic is a "great base for vinaigrettes, marinades, sauces, and can even be drunk straight from the bottle."

At 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 20, Dane Tollas will perform folk and blues at the Clarence Odmark Pavilion in East Park.
